All About Prosperity
Ford Talks Sense
Good News From Hoover

MR. HOOVER'S "super galaxy" of business talent reads like a Who's Who in the upper brackets of high finance. Fords, Du Ponts, Rosenwalds, Youngs, Sloans are called to tell the nation how to "spur trade." The names will inspire confidence, but there are too many to do any actual work together. The President will listen and do something.

Already money is cheaper, and that is 50 per cent of the battle.

A wise Italian said: "Give light and the people will find their own way."

Prosperity says: "Give credit and business will find its own way."

The nation ought to find out who is responsible for the outrageous usury that disgraced the country and precipitated panic, and who is responsible for shameless stock issues that lie on the financial market like a ton of plum pudding on the stomach of a child.

The people reading the list of big guns brought into action to help business ask themselves:

"What is the matter? What is there besides the slumping of a Wall Street gambling mania, of which we have not been told?"

The American farmer, listening to the radio for the prices of wheat and corn, might muse as follows:

"How busy they all get when anything happens to Wall Street. "How quietly and calmly they take it when things happen to the farm."

It is refreshing to read Henry Ford's ideas about "stabilizing and increasing prosperity."

Invited by President Hoover to join the army of advisers, Ford begins by announcing "an immediate increase in wages among his own employes."

He says the only thing that should be high-priced is the man who works. Wages must not come down, they must not even stay at their present levels. They must go up.

To that statement, rankly bolshevistic to many gentlemen with plenty of money, Ford adds:

"We must see that increased wages are not taken away by increased prices that do not represent increased values."

Ford even says that middle-aged men, who have done their duty by the country and are most frequently laid off, should be protected and kept at work. If all that is not rank "bolshevism" and "socialism," what on earth would you call it?

It was cheerful yesterday. Prices up from $2 to $18 a share. The Bank of England reduced the discount rate to 5½. Ours is 4½. London usually stays one point above us.

President Hoover was expected yesterday to say something pleasing about business.

Nothing better can be said by anybody than what Ford says about wages. Wages are to prosperity what sunshine and rain are to crops.

It is hard to make big men understand that their own prosperity demands liberal pay for the little fellow.

It is hard to make many workers realize that when they fail to do a fair day's work they cheat themselves and other workmen.

LATER.—A statement from the White House shows that things can be done when somebody takes hold.

Big concerns have promised the President that they will spend more money in 1930 than they have been spending in the past. Mr. Gifford of A. T. & T., the great telephone organization, spent in 1929 more than $600,000,000. It will spend more than that in 1930.

Scores of other business and industrial leaders have promised the President to expand construction, which means giving more employment "in every prudent direction" to cover any slack in employment.

Power, gas and other public utilities are going to spend money freely.

The railroads are ordering quantities of steel, and the steel industry will undertake large construction programs, replacing antiquated and obsolete plants. It ought to be a good year.

Hoover Mobilizes the Capital and Labor Chiefs; Easy Money Is Plentiful

Washington, Nov. 22 (INS)—The business clinics which President Hoover has been conducting with railroad heads, manufacturers, industrialists, merchants, bankers and men of large affairs generally, has resulted in bringing forcibly to public attention an imposing array of favorable factors which support the view that business conditions are basically sound, and that prosperity is still a part of the national picture.

Summarized, these factors, as developed by the White House conferences, are:

1—The great railroad systems of the country are planning to spend $1,000,000,000 during the next year for equipment and in expansion activities.

2—The utilities interests are mapping out an expansion program for next year greater

Clemenceau Is Near Death in Paris

Paris, Nov. 22 (INS)—Former Premier Clemenceau's condition apparently took a further turn for the worse this afternoon when his son, Michel, rushed from the Clemenceau home and ordered his chauffeur to obtain an electrical ozone machine with all possible speed.

Scores of journalists surrounded the "Tiger's" son for a statement but the latter only said that his father's condition was "unchanged."

Nevertheless, the hurried call for a machine to administer oxygen was taken as a bad sign.

Dr. Degennes issued the following statement when he left M. Clemenceau's home at 1:15 p. m. after examining the aged statesman for half an hour.

"The patient is again lucid. He said he was suffering great pain in his stomach, but I thought it unwise to continue morphine injections so I injected camphor oil instead. M. Clemenceau is now resting comfortably."

Four doctors assembled at the 88-year-old Tiger's home after Clemenceau had spent the night in sleep induced by injections of morphine. He had suffered agony and the injections were given him to allow him the peace of sleep.

The grave demeanor of the physicians told the story more eloquently than words. It seemed im-

Stock Exchange to Resume Full Time

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—The Board of Governors of the New York Stock Exchange today voted to resume normal 5-hour trading sessions on Monday of next week, but to close the exchange all day on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 29 and 30, in addition to the regular Thanksgiving holiday on Thursday. The exchange will be closed tomorrow.

BROCKTON BOYS AIDED AFTER PRAYERS

Pilgrimages From Shoe City and From Pennsylvania at the Grave

In the snow and cold of Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden, three cures were reported today by suppliants who prayed at the tomb of the Rev. Patrick J. Power.

Three Brockton youths, a part of a pilgrimage of 24, of whom nine were crippled, gave joyous thanks at the chapel for the alleviation of their ills.

Francis Keenan, 17, of Farrington st., whose left arm has been paralyzed since he was 14 months old, prayed at the grave and then lifted his arm in triumph above his head. It was the first time, he claimed, he had been able to do this since his affliction beset him.

WALKS WITHOUT CRUTCH

A fellow pilgrim, Carlton Raymond, 20, of Main st., whose right side has caused him constant pain since it was injured two years ago, rapturously declared the dull ache had abated, after he had knelt at the snow-covered grave.

The third was Harold Munnick, 14, of 63 South Leyden st., whose right leg has been partly paralyzed for two years. Munnick, who has been unable to walk without crutches, arose from the tomb and cast aside his crutches. He took several faltering steps unaided. He expressed confidence that his cure would be complete.

The number of pilgrims coming in groups is growing daily, one of the first groups today coming in a bus from New York. There were 40 in the party, including 11 cripples.

Another bus brought 36 from Pennsylvania, from various communities in that State, nearly a dozen of the number suffering from afflictions which they hoped would be cured.

EARLY CROWD IS BIG.

The sun shone brightly on the snow covering the cemetery, and the flow of suppliants mounted steadily after daybreak. It was expected that a large number would arrive during the day, because of the order closing the cemetery at night next week.

In the hours before midnight earlier pilgrimages continued, despite the coldness and the snow that covered the grave.

One of those who knelt before the shrine and asked for relief was Mrs. James M. Curley, wife of Boston's mayor-elect, who was making her second visit within a week.

She went to the cemetery by automobile, accompanied by her nurse, Mrs. Estella Schirch, and by Edmund L. Dolan, formerly sinking fund commissioner of Boston.

Shy Hero in 'L' Pit

Perce Dwyer, a fish pier worker, who risked his life to rescue a woman from death under an "L" train in the tunnel at Maverick sq. (Staff photo.)

Leaps Into Train Pit to Save Woman's Life

Down into the pit of the East Boston tunnel at Maverick sq., with a train roaring down upon him, Perce Dwyer, a fish handler, leaped today to rescue a young invalid mother who had stumbled from the platform.

Dwyer lifted Mrs. Mary Pullo, of 13th st., New York city, and then scrambled out himself as the train, brakes screeching, came to a stop a few feet from the spot.

Mrs. Pullo, with her mother, Mrs. Tessie Capasso, came from New York to visit the grave of Rev Patrick J. Power in Holy Cross cemetery. They became confused on the way to the South Station to entrain for home and landed eventually at Maverick sq. While standing near the pit edge, Mrs. Pullo was seized with a dizzy spell and fell.

Dwyer, on his way from his Maverick st. home to work at the Fish Pier, saw the approaching train and did not hesitate. The operator of the train saw the woman first, then the man, upon the tracks and applied the brakes.

Mrs. Pullo was taken to East Boston relief station where it was learned she had suffered no injuries. She has been an invalid since the birth of a child some months ago.

Dwyer, without making known his identity, left the station on a car and at South Boston was reluctantly engaged in unloading baddock from the "Fisher" when another pier worker, who had witnessed the rescue, notified his fellows and congratulations began.

SAY M'MANUS 'GAME' LOSER

New York, Nov. 22—The fifth day of the trial of George McManus for the murder of Arnold Rothstein opened today with the state calling to the stand more of its gambler witnesses.

The first today was Meyer Solomon, alias "Meyer Boston," a betting commissioner. He testified he attended the famous "no limit" game at Meehan's apartment and won $8000 in cash. McManus lost $41,000, witness said.

Rothstein lost "about $300,000," Solomon declared, and gave "I. O. U.s" for his losses. Rothstein, however, won thousands of dollars in cash, but he kept that. "Nigger Nate" Raymond won $200,000 but all in "I. O. U.s" from Rothstein.

Solomon admitted he knew Hy-

Mystery Veils North Shore Search Being Made by the Hub and Federal Officers

While Lynn police today were investigating a strange story of the body of a man seen propped up in a New York car speeding across the marshes, Boston officers and Department of Justice agents, armed with riot guns, were scouring the North Shore in search of New York white slavers.

The white slave hunt was conducted with considerable secrecy, and it was impossible to learn whether there was any connection between the search and the investigation of the Lynn police.

Judging from the heavy armament carried by Boston police and department of justice agents, they were prepared for a desperate resistance on the part of their quarry.

Their hunt started before midnight last night, when a Boston police car, filled with armed officers, was seen passing through Stoneham sq., trailed by another machine carrying Department of Justice agents.

The Boston officers consisted of Sergt. Robert J. Mooney and Special Officers Mark Madden, Joseph Cunningham and Cornelius O'Brien of Division 1.

At daybreak they were in Saugus Center, accompanied by Capt. John T. Stuart of the Saugus police and two uniformed patrolmen.

SEARCH NORTH SHORE

In the meantime Clement Fearns of Lynn, a truck driver, drove his truck into McDonough sq., Lynn, and hailed Patrolman Maurice Keenan.

Fearns said he was driving from Boston to Lynn, when a car [illegible] were carbons a car approached him from the rear, its horn sounding stridently.

Fearns said he pulled well over to the right of the road and the machine flashed past him. As it did so the light of an arc lamp revealed the body of a man propped up by a stick against the chest, in the front seat with the driver.

According to the truck driver the machine was a coupe with New York registration, the number of which he took.

He said he continued on his way and when near the Fox Hill bridge encountered the same coupe again. The machine, according to Fearns, emerged from behind a billboard, and headed for Lynn or Boston, but this time with only the driver inside.

Officer Keenan hurried to the scene and searched behind the billboard, but found nothing. Later a detail consisting of two inspectors, a sergeant and two patrolmen was sent to search the neighborhood, which is only a short distance from the place where the North End boy was found some months ago.

It was also planned to drag the channel which runs up into the marshes at this point, on the theory that a body might have been thrown overboard.

It is known that a number of white slavers have left New York because of federal activities against them, and department of justice agents have been traveling between that city and Boston frequently of late.

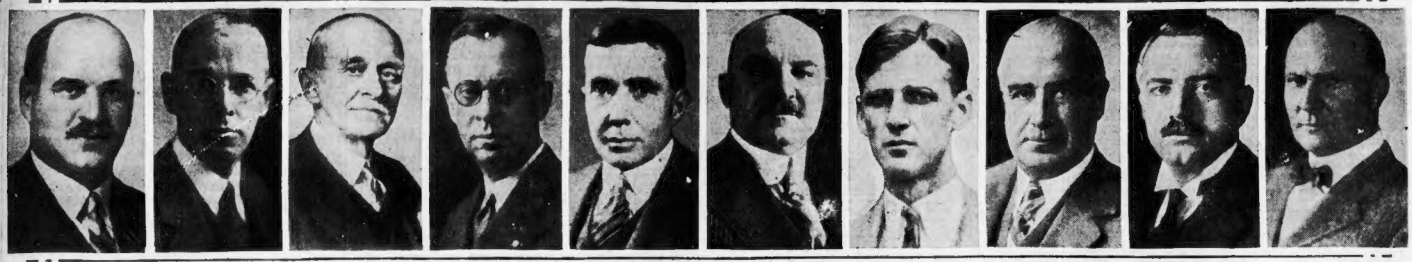
Fifth New England Conference the Occasion to Pledge All Effort to the Cause of a Prosperous New England



WILLIAM T. GARDINER, Governor of Maine (Bachrach) | CHARLES W. TOBEY, Governor of New Hampshire (Bachrach) | JOHN E. WEEKS, Governor of Vermont | REDFIELD PROCTOR, President N. E. Council | JOHN S. LAWRENCE, Treasurer N. E. Council (Blank & Stoller, N. Y.) | ARTHUR L. ALDRED, Secretary N. E. Council (Bachrach) | DUDLEY HARMON, Vice-president N. E. Council | FRANK G. ALLEN, Governor of Massachusetts (Bachrach) | NORMAN S. CASE, Governor of Rhode Island (Bachrach) | JOHN H. TRUMBULL, Governor of Connecticut (Bachrach)

FIFTEEN HUNDRED representative men, each and every one a leader in his field, are assembled in Boston this afternoon for the purpose of taking account of stock.

There are editors among them and manufacturers, bankers and business men, hotel men and farmers.

From Bangor down to Bridgeport, and from Buzzards Bay to Burlington, there is no community of industrial importance without a representative in this Fifth New England Conference.

What brings them together?

Love for New England, ardent, prompt and ready interest in her welfare!

They have come, from each of the Six States, to define STATE problems, plan STATE development programs, discuss STATE needs.

They are here for the purpose of considering NEW ENGLAND'S present status and the outlook for her future, the future of her railroads, what New England must do in order to take advantage of changing trends in business and economics.

New England "conference"? This is New England's Town Meeting!

There is nothing quite like it in any other section of the country, although events of the past few days have shown that the President has in mind the organization of a body which will serve the Nation in the same way.

THE FIRST New England Conference came together at Worcester four years ago because certain farsighted gentlemen were convinced that the time had come for the New England States and their business interests to recognize the NATURAL UNITY OF NEW ENGLAND AS AN ECONOMIC AREA.

"Let us seek," they said, "to develop the FACTS about New England AS an economic area. Let us strive to develop comprehensive views of the economic problems COMMON to these Six States, and promote co-ordination of effort for their solution."

OUT of that first meeting came the New England Council, the executive body of the Conference, with twelve members from each State, who meet quarterly and put into effect such activities as, in their judgment, will best promote New England's prosperity.

Their initial task was to "find the facts." Out of these facts was created a new confidence. Aggressiveness, a ready willingness to take the initiative, has succeeded to unconcern.

At the present Conference—to consider briefly one of many directions in which the fact-finders have been busy—reports will demonstrate that FOR THE THIRD SUCCESSIVE YEAR NEW ENGLAND HAS GAINED MORE INDUSTRIES THAN SHE HAS LOST!

Not only is this true but the INDUSTRIES GAINED ARE GIVING EMPLOYMENT TO MORE PERSONS THAN WERE ON THE PAYROLLS OF THE ESTABLISHMENTS WHICH HAVE PASSED.

HOW do we know this?

We know it because the New England Council, through its Committee on Community Development, has made studies of the extent of "industrial migration" within, to and from New England in the years 1926, 1927 and 1928.

What are the figures?

The study for the year 1926, covering 197 communities, revealed a net gain for New England of 224 industries and 10,998 employes, after subtracting industries which either moved to other locations or suspended operations.

Twenty-three industries, not counting branch plants, came to New England from other sections, while only eight moved away.

THE study for 1927 covered 266 communities and showed a net gain of 266 industries and 7,587 employes. Twenty industries, again excluding branches, moved into New England from other parts. Only five moved away.

The study for 1928, covering 262 communities with a population of 5,559,274 — approximately 95 per cent of our total urban population —showed a net gain for New England of 251 industries and 9343 employes.

These 262 communities reported the acquisition of 584 NEW manufacturing concerns, employing 29,762 workers. Of these, 416 were newly organized companies, 41 were branch plants, 127 represented removals from other communities.

Of the 333 manufacturing concerns, employing 20,419 workers, lost by these communities, 224 either failed or suspended operation, while 109 moved to other communities.

It seems to us to be of peculiar significance that of the industries which moved to other communities ONLY FIVE, employing 155 workers, moved to points outside of New England!

THERE are other encouraging factors in the present status of New England which it is well to have in mind when the subject is up for discussion.

Let us mention but one or two, frequently emphasized by the Council and its publications.

While New England comprises only 2 per cent. of the area of the United States, this section accounts for 10 per cent. of the Nation's manufacturing establishments, 11 per cent. of the country's "value added by manufacture," and 12 per cent. of the wages paid in manufacturing.

IN the four short but momentous years of its life, the Council has set up a co-operative machine which does its work as noiselessly as thoroughly.

Into a pattern of interacting groups are tied the community organizations of six States, along with the six New England Governors—all of them with us today and to remain over for meetings tomorrow—the Commissioners of Agriculture, the hotels, rail and water transportation interests, automobile clubs, marketing officials, advertising clubs, gas companies, power companies, aeronautic groups, publishers, foresters and business research groups.

A cross section of all the important activities of New England, they meet in the realization that organized effort is essential to the welfare of their communities, their States, OUR New England.

CONFERENCE and Council have justified their existence time and again. We could not do without them. The question is how we were able to do without them for so long.

Read the names of some of the more active participants in the two-day program at the Hotel Statler and you will better understand the scope and the character of this meeting.

Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy; Clarence Young, assistant Secretary of Commerce.

Governors Gardiner, Tobey, Weeks, Allen, Case and Trumbull.

Redfield Proctor, John S. Lawrence, Robert P. Bass, Henry I. Harriman, president Boston Chamber of Commerce; Edwin F. Gay, professor of Economics, Harvard University; Walter S. Bucklin, president National Shawmut Bank; Percy R. Todd, president Bangor & Aroostook Railroad; Charles L. Edgar, president Edison Electric Illuminating Company; Howard Coonley, president Walworth Company; George R. Crooker, acting chairman New England Governors' Railroad Committee.

Walter S. Wyman, president New England Public Service Company; Editor Arthur G. Staples, Lewiston Journal; Edward H. Jones, Commissioner of Agriculture, Vermont; Frank E. Langley, publisher Barre Times; Joshua L. Brooks, Dr. Arthur W. Gilbert, Major P. F. O'Keefe, Col. Frederick H. Payne, Charles F. Weed, First National Bank of Boston; Franklin Fort, M. C.; Hiram W. Ricker of Poland Springs.

Henry D. Sharpe, Browne & Sharpe Mfg. Co.; John F. Rolfe, Editor Glenn C. Sevey of the New England Homestead; J. E. Aldred, chairman of the board, Gillette Safety Razor Company; A. Lincoln Filene, William Filene's Sons Company; William A. Barron, president Barron Hotel Company; former Governor Ralph O. Brewster, Emily Louise Plumley, president of the Connecticut Federation of Women's Clubs, who will discuss "Keeping Our Youth in New England."

BOSTON had to wait until Worcester, Springfield, Hartford and Portland each had entertained the annual conference, but it comes to us, at last, when both Council and Conference have established themselves in the life of New England and have reached the first bloom of power and influence.

The KEYNOTE of the Conference is: "Maintain Prosperity through Organized Effort."

What does that mean?

"Hold everything!"

Is an amendment in order?

We suggest: "Hold Everything and Get More."

Meaning, of course, more business.

All together!

H. G. Wells on "The Science of Life"

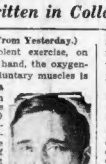
DURING violent exercise, on the other hand, the oxygen-need of the voluntary muscles is enormous; a resting man consumes roughly 200 cubic centimeters of oxygen per minute (just under half a pint), but during exercise he may need 10 or 15 times this amount. These are the opposite extremes of his requirement.



H. G. Wells

To meet this constant variation in the amount of muscular exertion, there have to be corresponding changes in the breathing rhythm and in the blood-flow.

The contraction of the muscles concerned in breathing—the intercostal muscles between the ribs and the muscular part of the diaphragm—are due to nervous impulses coming from the brain. The impulses emanate from a center at the lower end of the brain-stem, and travel to the muscles concerned along certain nerves—the intercostal nerves to the intercostal muscles, and the phrenic nerves to the diaphragm.

It is a continual series of rhythmic nervous discharges from this center that keeps the respiratory system in motion.

Now, the activity of the respiratory center can be modified, either by nervous impulses from other sources or by changes in chemical composition of the blood which bathes it.

The respiratory center is very sensitive to the amount of carbon dioxide in the blood, responding to any increase by a more vigorous and rapid stream of impulses. If the carbon dioxide in a man's blood is increased by as little as 5 per cent of its normal value, the rate of breathing is doubled.

Similarly, if the carbon dioxide in blood is unusually low the rate of breathing falls off. If it is decreased by only 3 per cent his breathing stops altogether. On the other hand, the center is not very sensitive to the amount of oxygen in the blood.

Suppose, for example, that a man goes into a room where the air is deficient in oxygen—containing, say, half the normal amount—but where the carbon dioxide concentration is normal. There is a slight sensitiveness to oxygen-lack, and he therefore pants a little—but by panting he blows out most of the carbon dioxide in his blood, and since this is the more potent controlling factor, his breathing slows down again.

He suffers no further discomfort, but a certain lassitude comes from him and presently he falls unconscious from oxygen-lack.

The paradox presents itself heretofore that although carbon dioxide is a poison there must be a certain amount of it present if the respiratory system is to work. This does not injure an animal or a savage living a normal life; any oxygen shortage in the blood of either will be due to bodily effort, and therefore accompanied by carbon dioxide production. But it is beginning to endanger man.

The oxygen demands of an active body are met not merely by increased breathing; they are also supplied by more rapid circulation.

The most important adjustment of the circulation is made by the capillaries. The capillaries are not rigid tubes; they are contractile, and can narrow or widen their bore from its normal condition. During exercise the capillaries open more widely, permitting a flow through the tissue.

The importance of this fact is enormous; it has been calculated that as a result of the simultaneous relaxation of the millions of capillaries when the body is violently exerted the volume of blood in the voluntary muscles is increased about three hundred times.

Contractility is not confined to the capillaries; the smaller arteries and veins are also capable of marked change in diameter.

Variation in size of the capillaries may be seen without any elaborate apparatus; the redness of skin depends on the amount of blood it contains, and the flush produced by a hot fire, or the blushing that accompanies various emotional states, are due to this factor.

The essential response of the circulation to muscular exercise is this increase in blood-flow through the tissues.

But there are other changes, too. It is clear that a mere dilatation of the capillaries, unsupported by correlated changes in other parts of the circulation, would be of little avail.

NATION-WIDE TRUCE BETWEEN CAPITAL AND LABOR DECLARED

INDUSTRIAL BOARD IS PLANNED

Business Leaders to Organize to Keep Industry on Even Keel at All Times

than they carried through this year. An indication of what this means may be gleaned from the fact that the American Telephone & Telegraph Company alone spent some $500,000,000 this year.

2—Henry Ford is going to raise wages in his plants. His experts are now making out the plans for percentage increases in all classes of employment and the history of such increases has been that industry generally follows an example to higher levels.

NO RETRENCHMENT

3—Steel manufacturers have assured the President their prospects are good for next year, and that instead of retrenching they are going ahead with plant extensions and replacements.

4—Automobile manufacturers informed Mr. Hoover that while production next year may drop off somewhat from this year's abnormally high figures, they are counting on normal production and normal expansions.

5—The outlook is for easier money conditions as reflected in lower rediscount rates, and the diversion of an enormous amount of cash heretofore going into stock speculation to the channels of productive business, largely construction.

7—Employers and labor heads have both given their word to President Hoover that the wage question will not be raised during the present emergency—the employers not to cut wages and labor not to demand increases.

EASY MONEY BIG FACTOR

The President considers the easy money factor a most important one. It was emphasized in the statement to which the President got his scores of "big business" callers subscribed at the conclusion of their conference.

"It was considered," said the statement "that the absorption of capital in loans on the stock market had postponed much construction, and that the flow of this capital back into the commercial world now would assist the new construction."

One of Mr. Hoover's pet theories is that when any country is building houses and factories that country is in a prosperous country, for the ramifications of the construction industry extended on to every line of business, hence this particular interest in encouraging construction activity at this time. The Government itself, at his direction, has enormously expanded its own building plans for the next year.

Out of the conferences which the President has held this week, and which he will continue next week, has developed, also, a definite policy of close co-operation between ordinary business and commercial agencies and those the Government maintains.

The large group that conferred at the White House yesterday, which included such industrial figures as Henry Ford, Owen D. Young, Pierre du Pont, Alfred P. Sloan, Gerard C. Swope, Julius Rosenwald, Homer Ferguson, Clarence M. Woolley, Eugene G. Grace, and Walter Gifford, was turned into a temporary advisory committee, which will function through the present unsettled period, and until a more or less permanent organization can be effected to control the Government in the maintenance of prosperous times.

DEFINITE PROGRAM.

Julius Barnes, chairman of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, and long associated with Mr. Hoover, was given the task of creating an executive committee from this group to work out a definite program for expansion of construction activities and maintenance of employment.

Later Barnes announced the meeting would be held in the capital within two weeks, and will include representatives of all major industries of the country. The conference will choose an executive committee which will co-operate with Government agencies "to assist in organizing business to help itself."

Henry Ford was the only one of the group to expound his views at length and in public.

The principal trouble at this time, in Ford's opinion, is that the people generally have reached the limit of their purchasing power. By the simple expedient of raising wages, therefore, the automobile magnate proposes to increase the purchasing power of his own employes. His early in the week.

theory is, if they get more they will spend more.

"The purchasing power of the people has been practically used up," said Ford, "and still they have not been able to buy all they must have. I, therefore, suggest the need of increasing the purchasing power.

"This may be done in two ways: first, by putting additional value into goods, or reducing prices to the level of actual values, and, second, start a movement to increase the general wage level. Nearly everything in this country is too high priced. The only thing that should be high priced in this country is the man who works. Wages must not come down, they must not even stay at their present level—they must go up."

PLEDGE OF STABILITY.

Ford's announcement of his intention of raising the wage level in his own industrial plants, coupled with his statement, constituted an indirect challenge to his fellow industrialists to follow the lead. For the most part, however, they did not comment on it.

After the conference with the various chiefs of the American Federation of Labor, the White House issued a statement in which the employers agreed "they will not initiate any movement for wage reduction, and it was their strong recommendation this attitude should be pursued by the country as a whole."

"The President was also authorized by the representatives of labor," the statement continued, "to state that in their individual views the present is a favorable condition to the country as a whole, no movements beyond those already in negotiation should be initiated for increase of wages, and that every co-operation should be given by labor to industry in the handling of this problem.

"The purpose of these declarations is to give assurance that conflicts should not occur during the present situation which will affect the continuity of work, and thus to maintain stability of employment."

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—Men who guide the instrumentalities of American building were added today to the list of representative groups consulted by President Hoover in working out his plans for sustaining and increasing American prosperity.

Through an expansion of private and governmental building, the Chief Executive hopes to accomplish many of the results that he has fixed as the objectives of his present program, and he sought the co-operation of the leaders of the building industry as a vital factor of his campaign.

Manufacturers of lumber products, cement and bricks, general contractors, road builders and officials of building trade organizations were called to the White House for the fifth of the series of conferences on current economic conditions begun by the President early in the week.

'Permanents' for Men Land Him in Court

Providence, Nov. 22—Permanent waves for men are quite the thing in Woonsocket, but Gedeon Fontaine, proprietor of a barber shop in Main st. there, will give them no more to either men or women, at least until the Supreme court decides whether he has a right to.

Fontaine was found guilty of exceeding his legal rights in giving a woman a permanent wave. He countered by testifying that permanent waves are a mere incident to his trade and that he has given them in many men who want their locks to remain curled constantly.

Although Fontaine is a registered barber he was charged with practicing hair dressing without being registered by the State board. Under the law barbers are restricted to shaving, haircutting and services incident thereto." The jury decided that a permanent wave does not come under the definition of an "incident thereto" and so found Fontaine guilty of exceeding his legal rights.

LINK BANKER IN TUNNEY SUIT

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 22 (AP)—Attorneys taking depositions in the $500,000 suit brought by Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty against Gene Tunney, have indicated several days will be required to obtain evidence as to Mrs. Fogarty's alleged visits here covering a period of from eight to 10 years.

An apartment house manager and a tenant of the apartments were among those who visited the offices of the attorneys during the taking of the depositions.

D. D. Adams, former president of the defunct Union Bank & Trust Company of Batesville, Ark., was named by counsel for Tunney as a man frequently seen in company with Mrs. Fogarty at the apartment house.

Australia Imposes Heavy Income Taxes

Canberra, Australia, Nov. 22—The budget of the new labor government proposes heavy income taxes, varying from 10 per cent on those exceeding $1000 a year to 20 per cent on those above $15,000.

Petition for Link to Join Bridle Paths

An appeal for a bridle path along the circumferential highway now under construction from the Fellsway in Melrose to the Newburport turnpike, connecting Fellsway and Lynn Woods bridle paths, is being considered by the metropolitan district commission.

Approximately 3000 persons signed a petition making the request and a video appeal was made by State Senators Angier Goodwin of Melrose and Congressman Richard Revere and by Representatives C. F. Nelson Pratt of Saugus and Tony Garofano of Lynn.

CHAMPION FREE 'PHONE DIES OF OVERWORK

Kicks the Bucket After Running Up $2274 Bill for the Month

Chicago Nov. 22 (AP)—The telephone known as Franklin 3083 has been disconnected until such a time as payment of $2274 is made for last month's long-distance calls.

The telephone was in the press room of the County Building. As far as the county's paying the bill, it is pointed out that there already is a $5,000,000 deficit.

Somehow, Franklin 3083 got the name of being a free telephone. Anyone wishing to call distant relatives, friends and the like simply called them. There was no other ceremony, no embarrassing conversations such as "Drop in another half-dollar, please."

WHAT HE FOUND IT

When James Russell, acting superintendent of public service, received the bill for $2274 yesterday, his first step was to order the phone pulled out by the roots. He next called reporters on the carpet. They satisfied him they were not the ones he wanted, but they produced several valuable clews.

One of them told of arriving at the press room early one morning to find a group of hoboes squatted around a can of alcohol, while one of their companions was shouting into the telephone as follows:

"Operator, get me the Hotel Adlon in Berlin, Germany. I want to talk to the girl I met during the war."

This phone call, the company's records revealed was never completed, possibly because the girl was not at the Hotel Adlon, or possibly because of static over the north Atlantic. The telephone company, however, did make a $14 charge for service.

CALLS UP CZECHO-SLOVAKIA

Another reporter reiated he had overheard a scrubwoman calling the old home in Czecho-Slovakia. This call, also was not completed.

One call, the company records showed, was to Jimmy Collup, a convict at Sing Sing prison. Another was to the S.S. Paris docked at San Francisco. The call was for the purpose of bidding someone bon-voyage.

There was a call, too, to a Quebec liquor house asking the price of Napoleon brandy, 1904. The caller explained that he wanted to find out if his bootlegger was charging him too much.

The smallest call on the bill was to the Texas oil field. It was $383.

possible that the aged statesman, who often declared recently that he would not live beyond the end of the year, could hold out much longer against the ravages of pain and illness.

His entire family assembled at his bedside. There were his two daughters, his son, Michel and his grandson, Georges. They took over the vigil kept all through the night by Clemenceau's faithful valet, Albert, and Sister of Charity Theonaste.

Emile Pons, the French composer, said there seemed to be no hope for the ex-premier. "His condition is extremely low, and if he lives throughout today it will be a miracle," was Pons' comment.

Finds $50,000 Gems; Gets $5000 Reward

New York, Nov. 22 (INS)—Keen eyesight coupled with honesty today had won $5000 for Frank De Luca, taxi driver. Noticing a shining object in the gutter as he cruised along, De Luca stopped and picked up a $50,000- strand of pearls. A grateful owner today was to hand De Luca the reward.

TARIFF BATTLE BLAMED FOR STOCK CRASH

Banker Kent Also Cities Increases in Brokers Loans, Capital Tax, Securities

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—Fred I. Kent, a director of the Bankers Trust Co. of New York, reiterated today before the Senate lobby committee that the action of the Senate coalition on the tariff bill was partially responsible for the recent stock Market disturbance.

Other reasons for the fall in stock market disturbance.

Other reasons for the fall in stock prices, witness said, were the increased issuance of new securities during 1929, the increase in brokers' loans and an increase in the capital tax.

Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, a former Secretary of the Treasury, who is not a member of the lobby committee, asked Kent if he omitted to say that 90 per cent of the transactions on the stock exchange "were as much gambling as if they would bet on the point of an arrow on a roulette wheel."

"I think speculation had quite a little to do with it," the banker replied.

TARIFF BILL FAILURE

Kent, a small man who is rather deaf, told the committee he was sorry to cause any inconvenience.

Before beginning his testimony he set up a mechanical contrivance to aid him in hearing.

He said he had been correctly quoted in a recent speech holding the Senate coalition partially responsible for the stock market decline, but he added that that was only one the causes named.

Kent said the "psychological effect on the people" became "the Senate did not function on the tariff bill," was a contributing factor to stock disturbances.

He testified the deposits of his bank were between $450,000,000 and $500,000,000, and that its loans to brokers "were only about $40,000,000."

Asked by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, what effect the federal reserve board warning that brokers' loans should be restricted had, the witness answered:

BACKS MITCHELL POLICY

"I had no effect on banks that wished to borrowing from the federal reserve banks."

"Did it have any effect on Charles E. Mitchell of the National City Bank?" Walsh inquired.

"I can't speak for Mr. Mitchell" "Did you make a speech denouncing Mr. Mitchell?" Walsh asked.

"I did not."

"If you were a sworn officer of a Federal Reserve bank, would your regard it as wise during a financial stringency several months ago for which Mitchell has been assailed by Glass.

3 Youths Get Relief at Malden Shrine

tery, the future frail lady of the city told reporters that she has felt much better since her visit to the grave last Sunday. She has been ill for nearly two years.

Five bus loads of pilgrims, many of them cripples, were expected today. Five more bus loads will come from Springfield next Sunday, according to word received. The buses will be met by the police at the approaches to Malden and will be allowed to enter within the cemetery.

CURED MAN AIDS OTHERS

The buses for the Springfield group are provided by Andrew Ahern of that city, who is reported to have been cured of an affliction several years ago following a visit to the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, near Quebec. Since his recovery he is said to have spent much time in aiding other persons to regain their health.

Plans were discussed by police and cemetery officials for handling the enormous crowds expected over the week-end. Officials will not be surprised if the record crowd of 150,000 last Sunday is duplicated the coming Sunday.

Two more partial cures were reported among members of a group of 22 men, women and children from Lisbon Falls, Me., who have spent the past three days at the shrine. The party was in charge of Rev. Fr. Felix C. Feiehl, pastor of SS Cyril and Methodius Church in Lisbon Falls and came to Malden by bus. For thes mornings the group attended mass in St. Joseph's Church in the Maplewood district here with Fr. Feiehl as celebrant. Then the pilgrims proceeded to the cemetery and spent most of the day in prayer at the grave or in the chapel.

When they were about to depart for home, it was reported that two children of their number had been partially cured.

Frances Jenec, 10, an attractive and bright little girl, has been ailing with spinal trouble, the result of an accident. She said that it had hurt her to take off a back brace she had been obliged to wear, but declared that when she removes the brace now there is no pain. She wore the brace, however, for the long ride home.

Another member of the party, Mary Kokos, 10, has been suffering with paralysis in one hand for the past few years and her right eye has also been affected by paralysis. She was able to straighten her paralytic hand and said she considered the condition of her eyes had improved.

BAREFOOT PILGRIM

Mrs. Lena Thomas of Floral st., Taunton, walked from the main entrance to the cemetery to the grave, a distance of more than a third of a mile, in her bare feet as a penance and to show her gratitude for what she considers a cure of rheumatism from which she suffered.

Following her visit a few days ago she said she believed her rheumatism had disappeared. As a sign of appreciation she removed her shoes and stockings at the outer gate and walked over the snow-covered ground in her bare feet.

Mrs. Lillian Ross, 31, a widow, of Lafayette st., Bridgeport, has visited the priest's grave each day since last Sunday. After she had prayed, she said that she could walk without stiffness in her legs, something she says she had not been able to do before for several years, since she was injured in an accident.

Mrs. Carmello Romano, 55, of Chelsea st., East Boston, stated that for 17 years she has suffered leg trouble which required a silver wire to hold a bone in position. Following her fourth daily visit she stated that she could move the leg and walk without pain and she considered she had been helped considerably.

M'Manus Under Barrage man Biller, who was indicted with McManus and Dolan and "Richard Roe" for Rothstein's murder. Witness said he saw Biller and McManus together at the race track several weeks after the shooting of Rothstein. He described Biller's occupation as a "scalper," one who buys and sells horses.

Meyer Solomon, like his brother Sam, who testified yesterday, is a swarthy, smooth talking, well-dressed little man. He sat at an angle in the chair, leaning on his elbow, but apparently calm enough. He frequently glanced at McManus in his chair at the defense table.

Solomon denied McManus had ever discussed the game at a later date. Rothstein had mentioned it to him but once.

"LOST WITH A SMILE"

Witness admitted he saw McManus several times after Rothstein was slain, once at a ballgame last summer, but the defendant "did not" discuss the killing of their former gambling companion.

"Did this defendant show any temper when he lost the $51,000 in the high spade game?" defense Attorney James D. C. Murray asked.

Solomon admitted McManus owed Rothstein $20,000 at the conclusion of the game. He was prevented from saying McManus paid that debt a day or two later.

The state charges that McManus lured Rothstein to the Park Central Hotel November 4, 1928, two months after the game, and shot him in a quarrel over payment of the losses.

3 MEN FOUND DEAD AFTER STAGING FALLS IN BIG SMOKESTACK

FIND BODIES 12 HOURS LATER

Phone Call From Wife of Victim Gives First Tip on Accident

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Three workmen who were cleaning the interior of a huge smokestack in Brooklyn fell to their death yesterday, but the fact was not discovered until today. Anxious inquiries by the wife of one of the victims, who was worried because her husband did not come home last night, led to an investigation and the discovery of the bodies.

The men went to work yesterday noon scraping the grimy inside of the 160-foot chimney at the plant of the American Sugar Refining Company, not far from the Brooklyn Bridge on the water front. Only a few persons in the plant knew the men were working.

Their scaffolding collapsed at a height of 75 feet from the base of the smoke stack, but the noise of the accident was drowned by the racked of machinery in the plant and the roar of traffic over Brooklyn Bridge and busy nearby streets.

Mrs. Clark, wife of William Clark of North Arlington, N. J., called the superintendent's office this morning and asked if her husband had been seen, as he had not returned home last night. Michael Walsh, the engineer, was ordered to investigate. Opening the door at the base of the stack, which is 17 feet in diameter, he was horrified to find three mangled bodies, buried under the wreckage of the scaffolding.

William Clark's body was quickly identified. Another victim was his brother, Alton Clark of 8 Park ave., Westerly, R. I. The third man has not been identified.

The medical examiner said the men had been dead for at least 12 hours.

WOMAN LIFER FRAMED, RUM SLEUTH SAYS

Michigan Cop, Fired, Tells of "Stool Pigeon" Planting Liquor

Chicago, Nov. 22—Frank W. Eastman, former plain clothes detective on the Lansing police force, caused a stir here that became nation-wide when he made a "confession" of frame-ups in the two "Life-for-pint" sentences imposed on Mrs. Etta May Miller, mother of 10 children, and Fred Palm.

Eastman declared his conscience has been bothering him and he thinks that the inside of both the Miller and the Palm cases if conveyed to the public will bring freedom for the man and the woman.

Eastman took two newspapermen into his confidence after he lost his job on the Lansing police force. He was fired in September as a direct result of what he maintains was a frame-up on the part of his former partner, William Knapp, who still functions as Lansing's chief undercover agent.

The deposed sleuth declared that all employment has been barred to him in Lansing by his enemies. He remarked that R. N. Holmgie, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, would see that he never got work again in that state.

State Senator Seymour Person of Lansing, who was defense counsel for Mrs. Miller, the woman "pint-lifer," was called in. Her case goes before the state supreme court in a few weeks on final appeal. Eastman expressed pleasure at Mr. Person's presence and voiced the hope that what he had to say would be of value to him.

"Etta Miller was brought up on the next farm to me," interrupted Mr. Persons. "She used to scrub out my office in Lansing. A poor, simple, obliging soul trying to grapple her problem of 10 children, with the mind of a five-year-old girl. I've never got a penny, for fighting her case and I never will."

"She's all right, Senator," said Eastman, "and I hope what I've got to say will get her out again.

"Her conviction was engineered by Knapp. He had the official stool pigeon, Harry Metz, get him to get him some stuff at a bootlegger's house—not her own. Knapp gave him the money to buy it with. Then Metz went back with her to her house and hid a pint of it in a cupboard. Along comes Knapp, picks it up, and there you are. Fourth conviction and automatic life."

"You didn't help at all?"

"No, sir. If there's one thing I can't stand it is a grafter or a stool pigeon. I'm a fighter. I've fired bullets at people and I've had them fire bullets at me. I go in the open, not behind any man's back. That's why I've been run out of Lansing. For being square. Taking my orders from the top kick and doing the job, no matter how much I hated it."

THREE HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Providence, Nov. 22—Three persons were injured, one of them seriously, when the automobile in which they were riding overturned in Scott Hill rd., Bellingham, after collision with another car. The accident occurred directly in front of the home of Police Chief Alfred Pouliot.

The most seriously injured was Archie Boyd, Jr., of Sanford, Me., driver of the overturned car, who was removed to Woonsocket hospital suffering from a probable fracture of the skull, fractured left arm and probable broken collar bone.

Others taken to the hospital for treatment, who were in Boyd's car are Allen Keegan, of Burnside st., Providence, who sustained lacerations of the scalp and body bruises, and George Reilly of Coval st., Olneyville, whose head was bruised.

The driver of the other car, Joseph W. Fioravanti, of Hero ave., Woonsocket, was uninjured.

Nothing Heard of Ship in Quake Zone

Truro, N. S., Nov. 22 (AP)—The Farquahar Line steamer Fernfield, which sailed Monday from St. Pierre, Miquelon, for Burin, N. F., has not reported, her owners revealed today, although they professed no fear for her safety. The Fernfield carries no wireless.

The distance from St. Pierre to Burin is less than 70 miles and it is believed the ship's course would have taken her within the scope of the tidal disturbance which seriously affected many large steamers hundreds of miles at sea.

63 Found Guilty in N. Y. Poultry Trust

New York, Nov. 22—Forty-five days after they went on trial in federal court on charges of restraining trade in connection with the operations of the New York "poultry trust," 63 individual defendants and three organizations were convicted. Two men, Joe Goldman and Emanuel Herbert, were acquitted.

The jury had been out more than 27 hours.

Third Victim of Shooting Dead

The other women, Mrs. Frank Dileo, his wife, and Mrs. Antonio Mazzulli, died almost immediately from the effects of their wounds.

Princess Marie Glad Prince Is No Golfer

Brussels, Nov. 22 (INS)—Princess Marie Jose of Belgium, who is engaged to marry Crown Prince Umberto of Italy, is glad her future husband is not an American.

Her chief reason is that she does not like golf, and she believes that all American men are one and all victims of the links bug.

The princess is extremely fond of every other sport, however, and is easily Europe's most sportive princess.

Indefatigable swimmer, she is also an expert diver. In summer she mounts her horse every day or takes a long bicycle ride through the lovely forest which surrounds the country palace near Brussels.

Elevated Tied Up by Defective Door

A ten minute elevated tie up between Forest Hills and Dudley stations caused many to be late for work today.

An outbound train from the North Station responsible for this delay because of a defective door, was taken off at Dudley street and another train sent out in its place to pick up the inbound passengers at Forest Hills.

12 Seamen Hurt as Giant Wave Hits Ship

St. Johns, N. F., Nov. 22 (AP)—Four members of the crew of the S. S. Georgian were taken to a hospital today when the ship reached port.

The men were injured when thrown against the winches by a terrific sea which swept the ship and shifted her cargo at 2:30 a. m., last Monday, 12 days out of Copenhagen.

Lady Lobbyist Takes Rap at Congressmen

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—Gladys Moon Jones, some time attorney-poet-Chautauqua artist, who is to give the Senate lobby investigating committee the feminine slant on the business of lobbying, is waiting eagerly to tell how she earns a yearly salary estimated at between $25,000 and $30,000.

She cancelled a speaking engagement in New York to return to Washington last night, kissed her two young children goodnight, and rallied the points she will lay before her investigators as justification.

"My right to represent clients before the bar of public opinion is as clear as any attorney's is to plead a case in court," she said.

Slender, smartly attired, youthful, she added that "in the judicial branch of government, a judge is disqualified for trying a case by having any personal interest in the matter at hand; but among the legislators now engaged in framing laws are many most vitally interested. So long as that situation obtains, there will be unofficial spokesmen of special interests in the Capitol."

Beginning life-after-college as an attorney, she turned author, succeeding in having poetry and prose published; then she ventured into the news field, writing special scientific articles. She did a swing on the Chautauqua circuits, giving dramatic lectures, shortly after she graduated from Northeastern University. Now, in the middle thirties, she represents Americans whose investments in sugar production in Cuba she placed at just four times that of domestic producers.

Preferring to call her activites "publicity," Mrs. Jones will tell the committee how she conducts the All States News Bureau and acts as resident secretary of the American Chamber of Commerce of Cuba.

Her entrance into the publicity business, she says, was "an accident." She had an acquaintance who was a member of the law firm of Shattuck, Banks & Winant, of New York, representatives of the investors in Cuba. They chose her to do their publicity because her acquaintance decided that an enthusiastic woman, trained in law, could do the job more effectively than anyone else. So she started the All States News Bureau, through which she now serves, she says, "any reputable client."

M'ALPINE HELD BY WEATHER

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 22 (AP)—The first word in 10 days from Col. C. D. H. MacAlpine and seven aerial prospectors revealed today they still were at Fort Reliance, on MacLeod Bay, awaiting favorable weather for their flight south.

After wandering almost two months in the barren lands they were guided by Eskimos to Cambridge Bay, a Hudson's Bay post on Victoria Island.

Aviators in rescue planes brought them to Bathurst Inlet and 10 days later a 400-mile flight was made to Fort Reliance.

Andy Cruickshank made a 200-mile flight from Fort Reliance to Fort Resolution, and learned that landing conditions along the 1000-mile trail to The Pas were not favorable for the big ski-runnered plans being used to bring out the stranded prospectors.

Providence Couple Are 50 Years Wed

Providence, Nov. 22 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. James A. Needham of this city, tomorrow will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary. They were married November 23, 1878 in England and have liven in this city 40 years.

Drunken Driver Is Assessed $50

Joseph Lopes of Tremont st., Cambridge, was today found guilty by Frank J. Good in Boston municipal court of operating an auto while under the influence of liquor, and fined $50.

He was found guilty of drunkenness and the case filed. He was found not guilty of leaving the scene of an accident.

Senate Asks About Power Commission

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—Information about the work the federal power commission has accomplished was asked in a resolution presented by Senator Sackett, Republican, Kentucky, and adopted by the Senate today, preparatory to consideration at the regular session of a bill to extend the commission's life.

60 NEAR DEATH IN SHIP CRASH

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 22 (AP)—Sixty men aboard the U. S. army dredge Manhattan narrowly escaped with their lives today when the oil tanker Bessemer collided with the dredge in the Delaware river near the mouth of the Christiana river.

The dredge sank in 40 feet of water. Divers were sent down to determined the extent of the damage to the dredge with a view of salvaging her.

The Manhattan is about 20 years old and cost about $500,000 to build. It is 300 feet long. The Manhattan was in command of Capt. Anton Predricksen of Camden, N. J.

Sees Need Today of Pilgrims' Spirit

Providence, Nov. 22—"More of the spirit of the Pilgrims is needed today," said Dr. Clarence A. Barbour, president of Brown University, in addressing the Society of Mayflower Descendants at a banquet in Hotel Biltmore.

In praising the Pilgrims he said they were "men and women who lived with a purpose in life and tried to fulfill the will of God for them." Dr. Barbour said there was a difference between the Pilgrims and Puritans which many people do not understand. He explained there was never any persecution by the Pilgrims in Plymouth, but there was in the Massachusetts Bay Colony of the Puritans, whose charter did not mention religious liberty.

Broker Crash Victims May Escape Losses

Providence, Nov. 22—There is hope that all persons involved in the $4,000,000 crash of the Mandeville, Brooks & Chaffee brokerage concern will eventually get all their money, Robert Emerson, receiver, announced today.

Emerson obtained a court injunction preventing Dates W. Flint, alleged to be a $600,000 debtor to the firm, from disposing of 2500 shares of common stock in the Dates W. Flint Oil Co., recently purchased for $1,000,000 by the Standard Oil Co. of New York.

Divorcee Shot by Radio Announcer

San Francisco, Nov. 22 (AP)—Mrs. Gertrude Hawkins Lavine 26, a divorcee, was shot and killed during a party in a Telegraph Hill apartment. Police announced that Laurence Tulloch, radio studio employe, who came here from New York three months ago, admitted he fired the fatal shot but claimed the shooting was accidental.

Tulloch said he and Mrs. Lavine were in the apartment conversing after the other guests had departed. The conversation turned to fire arms and he showed her a revolver. As she reached for the weapon it was discharged. He was held by police.

INDICT MALAGA AND GIRL IN VICE PROBE

The Federal Grand Jury reported five true bills to Judge Elisha H Brewster in Federal District Court. Among the indictments were those of Harry Malaga of Easton, Penn., charged with transporting Elizabeth Martin from there to Boston for immoral purposes.

Anne Martin of the Back Bay was indicted for transporting from Boston to Portland for immoral purposes Eunice Abarie, 21.

Seven men were indicted in connection with the alleged transportation of lottery tickets from Massachusetts to Maine and Connecticut. These were tickets in the alleged Leader Lottery with headquarters in this State.

The defendants are Thomas O'Day of Newton, James O'Shea of Middleton, John O'Shea of Lynn, Henry Hendrickson of Gloucester, Clarence Spiller of Portland, Joseph King of Hartford and Bob Joyner of West Hartford.

It is further charged that the defendants, Thomas O'Day and Clarence Spiller, did transport these tickets to points outside this State.

Four Connecticut men were indicted for conspiring to transport lottery tickets from that State to Massachusetts and Rhode Island. They are Robert Leventhall, Frank Butterworth, George Newton of New Haven and Louis Itskowits of New London.

The indictment further presents that the defendants Robert Leventhall and Frank Butterworth did transport these tickets from Connecticut to points in Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Harold B. Rollins of Pittsfield, employed by the United States Postal Department in that city as a special delivery messenger, was indicted for alleged stealing a letter containing $5 which was addressed to J. F. O'Connell of Pittsfield.

Quote Bargain Rates for Seats on N. Y. Stock Exchange

New York, Nov. 22—Revealing for the first time the effect of the recent market reaction on the prices of seats on the New York Stock Exchange and the New York Curb Exchange, announcement was made that a membership in the former institution had been sold for $380,000, a decrease of $144,000, and one on the curb for $180,000, a decrease of $100,000.

These are the first transactions to be announced since the sweeping decline in the market.

They show that the aggregate value of the 1375 seats on the "Big Board" has fallen from $676,250,000, before the break, to $491,250,000, a shrinkage of $185,000,000.

HUB ATTACKED AS MENACE TO PROGRESS

Amherst, Nov. 22—The most destructive force in the cultural transition of New England today is the repressive spirit of Boston, Waldo L. Cook, editor of the Springfield Republican, said in an address here before the students of the Massachusetts Agricultural College at the weekly assembly.

"It is the most obvious force, because the most advertised," he said. "The tendency toward unwarranted suppression of public meetings, and the excessive zeal of the censor to ban books and plays, if not held in check by the forces of liberalism, would be an obstacle to the highest development of our educational institutions as well as of our artistic and literary activities."

Mr. Cook's subject was "New England in transition."

"Transition," he said, "is like the movement in the stock market, up and down. What concerns us is which way it goes."

"New England," he said, "doesn't need a cultural center; we are doing very well as we are. We certainly need no more snobs, cultural or otherwise. Most of the arts are secure in New England, the press a constructive force, and New England culture today takes less color and style from Boston than ever before."

Banquet Highlight of Horse's Career

Presque Isle, Me., Nov. 22—To residents of Aroostook County, the great potato belt, news that the "Iron Horse" was dead carried a note of pathos.

John R. Braden (2.02¾) was the "Iron Horse." He was born in Nashville, Tenn., in 1912. A statute of him probably will be erected in a square in this district.

In four years of racing from 1921 on the tracks of Northern Maine and the Maritime Provinces John R. Braden never really lost a race, never finished outside the money.

Leaving the sunny climate of the southland at an early age, this rare horse came to the rugged clime of the northland and throve. In his span of years, he accomplished what few human beings have achieved.

He paid heavy dividends to his backers the Mooselook Club. He was given a banquet in a local dining room, eating his oats from a punch bowl as the throng of horse fans, men and women, cheered and lauded him in speech and song.

"Pop" Willard, the famous veteran horseman, more than 70 years old when he guided John R. Braden to victory after victory, always was behind the "iron horse." "Pop" boasted that he never used the whip on the "iron horse."

"Pop" always waited for the home stretch to give John R. Braden the call to victory." Leaning forward in his sulky at the last turn, "Pop" would take an extra turn of the reins around his gloved hands, pull the visor of his cap down near the top of his eyes and call out: "Come on old boy."

Claims Ex-Wives Are Better Teachers

While Boston school teachers were assailing Dr. Bernard Glueck, New York psychiatrist, for his statement that unwed school teachers should be barred from the profession a school department official declares that the ex-wife is the ideal schoolmarm.

William B. Snow, assistant superintendent of schools in Boston, made the statement in the absence of School Superintendent Burke.

The assistant superintendent, commenting on the "ideal teacher," agreed that they should be wed—but in the past—so that a concurrent marriage will not interfere with the proper administration of their school duties, thereby placing the "ideal teacher" squarely in the ranks of the ex-wives, widows and divorcees to fill the bill.

Snow made clear in his interview that Boston bars married teachers. It does so for two reasons, he said.

One is that a married woman cannot give her undivided time to her job, because she has an outside interest which might be greater. Another reason is that a married woman is expected to be receiving support from her husband.

The ideal teacher, he said, would be one whose dominant interest is her profession. The more complete her life and the fuller her background, the better she will be, providing her training and experience are concurrently opportune.

CAPE BRETON CLUB PLANS DANCE

The Cape Breton Club of Boston will hold the opening dance of the season in Intercolonial hall, Dudley st., Roxbury, on Monday evening. The dance is listed as one of the most successful of the club's social events.

The committee is as follows: Chairman, Daniel H. MacLean, assistant; Catherine MacInnis, Florence MacNeil, Anna MacGillivray, Catherine Cash, Margaret MacDonald, Andrew MacNeil, John Doucette, Michael MacDonald, A. A. Campbell and Angus MacInnes.

The Cape Breton Club, composed of former residents of Cape Breton, is starting on its sixth year as a social and charitable organization and its increasing membership tends to make it one of the most progressive clubs in the city.

DRUG SELLER GETS 3 YEARS

William Helger, 36, giving various South End addresses, was sentenced by Federal Judge Brewster to serve three years in the Federal Prison at Atlanta.

Helger was arrested three weeks ago by Federal narcotic agents on charges of selling narcotics. At that time he was given a two years' suspended sentence at Atlanta and placed on probation for two years.

He was arrested again Wednesday night, charged with possessing and attempting to sell narcotics, and was surrendered to the court by probation officer Richard McSweeney and a suspended sentence was imposed.

PLAN COURSE IN TOLERANCE

The formation of a discussion group at Boston University's school of education, which will follow along the information and tolerance lines of the Calvert Round Table which was held last week at Harvard University, was announced by Dean Arthur H. Wilde.

Tentative plans for the arrangement of the course are being made by the students. Prof. John J. Mahoney, professor of education at the college, and a conference discussion leader at the Calvert gathering, will have direction of the group, Dean Wilde said.

Reports of student delegates to the Calvert meeting were made by Freyda Peck of New London, Ct., Mary Stack of Brookline, Theodosia Capp of Everett and Harry Darling of Watertown.

WARNING — COLDER!

IRELAND WOULD 'BURY' APPEAL SYSTEM

Dublin, Nov. 22—Ernest Blythe, finance minister, and vice-president of the Irish Free State, made a vigorous attack on the system of appeals from the dominions of the British privy council in the Dail.

He said the Irish Free State was anxious to have this "indefensible" system abolished.

"As a matter of fact, effective right of appeal to the privy council is dead. We only want the British government to give it decent burial," he said.

"No representative of the Irish Free State government will ever appear again before the judicial committee of the privy council, if private litigants should bring an appeal before the committee and its decision should reverse that of a court here, we could take whatever steps were necessary to make the committee's decision ineffective that is pending agreement with the British government to abolish the whole idea of appeals to the committee.

Lane and Donoghue Plan Conference

Richard J. Lane, prominent lawyer, named by the Boston school committee as its representative on the newly established commission of school buildings, will soon meet with Dr. Francis D. Donoghue, the representative of Mayor Nichols, to decide on the third member of the commission.

Lane, who will resign his position with the Boston Finance Commission to accept the school committee appointment, was in communication with Dr. Donoghue, and, although no definite date has been set, a conference will be held shortly, it is understood.

LIE DETECTOR MAKES 'SLAYER' CONFESS

Seattle, Nov. 22 (AP)—The Times today quoted County Prosecutor Ewing D. Colvin as having announced that Decasto Earl Mayer had confessed the slaying in 1926 of James E. Bassett of Annapolis, Md.

The purported confession followed the use by the prosecutor of "lie detecting devices," against which Mayer yesterday obtained a temporary restraining order.

Mayer and his mother, Mrs Mary Smith, were arrested in Oakland, Cal., in September, 1928, when found in possession of Bassett's automobile. Strenuous efforts were made to locate Bassett or his body, but these were unsuccessful.

Lacking a corpus delicti, Seattle authorities extradited Mayer and his mother from California and charged them with theft of the automobile. Bassett's wrist watch also was found in Mayer's possession. Mayer said he bought the car and the watch from Bassett.

Because Mayer had a long prison record, his conviction on the theft charge subjected him to a life term as an habitual criminal. Since his conviction, Mayer has been in the county jail here awaiting the outcome of an appeal.

Yesterday Mayer appeared in court with his attorneys, charging that Ewing D. Colvin, county prosecutor, and Sheriff Claude G. Peanick had tortured him with the "truth serum" and the "truth machine," and asked an injunction preventing the officers from further using such instruments. A temporary restraining order was issued, returnable tomorrow.

Colvin admitted having used the "truth serum" and "truth machine" on Mayer. The prosecutor asserted that if he were permitted to interrogate Mayer for another three hours with the aid of these instruments he would "soon have Bassett's body."

The "truth machine" is said to register the heart beats of a person under questioning.

Senators Quit Debate to See Fire

Washington, Nov. 22—Dignified senators became boys for a while when a spectacular fire destroyed a paper box factory at the foot of Capitol Hill, only a few hundred yards from the Capitol building.

Screeching of sirens and a heavy pall of smoke drew senators from the floor to the balcony behind the chamber and senators who were debating the schedule on wool, talked to an empty house while colleagues watched the smoke and flames.

North Adams Golfer Wins at Pinehurst

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 22 (INS)—Pinehurst crowned a new golf champion today. James T. Hunter, North Adams, Mass., won the 34th annual Carolina tournament of the Pinehurst Country Club by defeating Winthrop Williams of New York, 4 and 3.

"First Down"

PLANE ESCAPES BEING SUCKED INTO VOLCANO

St. Thomas (Virgin Islands), Nov. 22 (INS)—A narrow escape from being sucked into the crater of a raging volcano has just been described here by Pilot Brookes of the Pan-American Airways Mail plane on the Trinidad to Porto Rico route.

During the recent sustained activities of the Mont Pelee volcano, Brookes flew over the crater of an extinct volcano on the top of a mountain at St. Eustatius, one of the Dutch West India Islands.

Flying at an altitude of 2200 feet, Brookes prepared to take a few pictures of the volcano and surrounding country when suddenly his plane was caught in a whirling suction above the crater and forced out of control.

The machine was sucked down for 700 feet, twisting and turning in its dizzy drop, and the occupants of the cabin were thrown from one side of the plane to the other.

Brookes opened his throttle wide, however, and straightened out before the machine was dashed to pieces in the crater. He could not explain what caused the suction, but he and his companions were thankful for their escape from death.

Speaks at Wellesley

The distinguished scholar-author-editor, E. Allison Peers of the University of Liverpool, will lecture on "Spanish Romanticism" at Alumnae Hall, Wellesley College tonight.

Beer Steins Hurled as Rival Factions Meet in Munich

Munich, Bavaria, Nov. 22 (AP)—Beer steins were used as projectiles in a clash between members of the Republican organization and Fascisti at a meeting of the Republicans at which the principal speaker was the chief lord mayor of Neurnberg.

When the police ejected the Fascisti for disturbing the meeting, A row started with a storm of flying steins hurled by contending factions.

The extent of the casualties could not be determined, although two of the combatants went to a hospital seriously injured, five needed first aid help and dozens others were carried away by their comrades.

Samuel B. Sheldon, Steel Magnate, Dead

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 22 (AP)—Samuel B. Sheldon, president of the Minnesota Steel Co., a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corp., died unexpectedly at his home early today. Death was due to heart disease.

Mr. Sheldon succeeded the late E. H. Gary as president of the Minnesota Steel Co. Previously he had been vice-president and general manager for ten years.

Nab Brigand Turks at Home of Woman

Stambul, Turkey, Nov. 22 (AP)—Police captured three Turkish brigands last night during an attack on the home of Mrs. Evelyn Scott, an English woman who teaches in Roberts College, situated in the Bosporous hills.

The brigands were captured after a lively shooting match in which college watchman was wounded.

BIG 5 PARLEY MAY SIT IN ST. JAMES

London, Nov. 22 (AP)—Active preparations have started for the Big Five naval disarmament conference to be held in London in January.

The return of Ambassador Dawes to England last week signalized a new phase of preliminary negotiations, while definite announcement to Parliament by Premier MacDonald that the sessions will be held here instead of at one of the winter resort towns on the southern coast of England, started foreign office officials working out multifarious details.

Ranking as it will with the Paris conference and the Washington conference of 1921, the London conference of 1930 is expected to go down in history as the third great gathering of the powers after the World War. The Hague, Locarno, Geneva, Genoa and half a dozen other place names of conferences held during the last decade are looked upon as lesser milestones on the long road to world peace and disarmament.

Official announcement of the exact location of sessions remains to be made, but of the two probable places the foreign office in Downing st. or historic old St. James' Palace, the latter the more likely, will be chosen. The great audience chamber there where royal levees are held is the only room of its kind in London suitable for the plenary sessions.

The American delegation will have headquarters in a hotel only a block from St. James' Palace.

URGES STUDY OF U. S. TEXTILE INDUSTRY

Gainesville, Ga., Nov. 21 (AP)—Recommendation that Congress authorize President Hoover to appoint "a national industrial commission to make a thorough and scientific study of the textile industry of the country, North and South," was made to the Georgia Baptist convention today by the convention's social service commission.

The commission declared the movement of textile mills to the South "brings us face to face with new problems" and urged that the facts of the proposed survey "thus impartially ascertained may be made known and the remedies needed, if any, provided for."

The report said of the textile situation:

"The coming of these industries to the South brings us face to face with new problems. The cotton farmer has almost altogether used negro tenant labor, who have farmed on shares. The cash wage was negligible. Settlement was had at the end of the year. In the mountains and in the foothills lived many white people who saw very little money in the course of the year. To these the cotton mills proved peculiarly attractive. It meant ready money in wages. And so they went to work in the textile mills in great numbers for low pay.

"Everybody is rejoiced to see these evidences of expanding business in the southeast. However, to thoughtful people there is no satisfaction in the self-announced statement that these mills are coming because the South offers 'low wages and docilen labor.' Indeed, this is humiliating rather than pleasing."

The Weather

For Boston and vicinity—Fair and continued cool tonight; Saturday increasing cloudiness and warmer, possibly followed by light rain; gentle shifting winds becoming easterly and increasing Saturday. The minimum temperature tonight will be near 30.

For Southern New England—Increasing cloudiness followed by snow in the interior and snow or rain on the coast; Saturday not much change in temperature; moderate shifting winds becoming northeast or east and increasing by Saturday.

For Northern New England—Generally fair and slightly colder tonight; Saturday cloudy, probably followed by snow; gentle to moderate shifting winds becoming east or southeast.

For Eastern New York—Increasing cloudiness probably followed by snow Saturday and in extreme south portion tonight; not much change in temperature; moderate north shifting to northeast or southeast winds increasing by Saturday.

Heiress to Millions

Miss Elizabeth Livermore, daughter of Harris Livermore, who, with her two sisters, has received the fortune of the financier, killed in an airplane crash in New Mexico. Cecil F. Stewart of New York and the State Street Trust filed bonds of $1,000,000 each in Suffolk Probate Court when they were approved as executors.

G. O. P. IS SPLIT THREE WAYS

Washington, Nov. 22 (INS)—The Hoover honeymoon" session of the 71st Congress, summoned for farm relief and tariff revision, neared its death today with half its program incomplete.

Congress faced a week's vacation before meeting in regular session Dec. 2.

This session began with everybody friends, under clear skies, and ended in wholesale quarreling, under stormy conditions. The Senate lynched the battleground and the doctors and the adjournment found the Republican party there split into three factions, a newly formed "young guard" vieing with the "old guard" and "insurgents" for the congressional spotlight.

Frelinghuysen to Run for Senate

Raritan, N. J., Nov. 22 (INS)—Former United States Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen today announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the Senate, following the announcement by Governor Morgan F. Larson that David Baird, Jr., would be appointed to fill the unexpired term of Senator Walter E. Edge, whose appointment as ambassador to France was confirmed by the Senate yesterday.

EX-PROMOTER GETS 10 YEARS

Philadelphia, Nov. 22 (AP)—William Moore Patch, promoter and former publisher of a theatrical magazine known as Patches, was sentenced to 10 to 20 years in the Eastern Penitentiary.

Patch pleaded guilty two months ago to nine counts of forgery and fraud. He was accused of defrauding Thomas McKeon, his former partner, of between $300,000 and $1,000,000.

The defendant, who was brought into court on a stretcher, was permitted by the court to sign his own bail of $25,000, so that he may remain in a hospital until a committee of physicians chosen by the district attorney certifies that he is able to begin his sentence. He is suffering from stomach ailment.

Maine Man Dies of Auto Injuries

Woonsocket, R. I., Nov. 22 (AP)—Archie Boyd, 24, of Sanford, Me., died today of injuries received last night in a collision of his automobile with one driven by Joseph W. Fioravanti at South Bellingham, Mass.

Fioravanti, of Woonsocket, and two occupants of Boyd's car, George Reilly, 25, and Helen Keegan, both of Providence, were less seriously injured.

SPAIN SEEKING SIXTH PLACE IN NAVY POWERS

Madrid (AP)—Spain is planning to recover some of her prestige of past centuries on the seas by a naval construction policy, which officials say, will rank her sixth among the great powers.

The vessels some begin two years ago, are to be built in shipyards at Cartagena, Cadiz and Ferrol and all will be under construction by June, 1932 to be completed within three years.

At present the Spanish navy is made up of 63 ships of all classes, mostly smaller craft. The largest are the Alfonso XIII and the Jaime I, each of 15,700 metric tons.

Among the ships planned are eight destroyers of 1,800 tons, 12 submarines of 1000 tons and various auxiliary craft.

Ice Men Hold Ball

All sections of Greater Boston were represented at the 63d anniversary reception and ball held under the auspices of the Boston Ice Co. Employes' Relief Association in Paul Revere Hall.

Weds 'Copper Man,' Finds He Is a Cop, Deserts Him

Chicago, Nov. 22 (AP)—When Mrs. Lovina Williamson made her mistake was in believing that "copper" meant what Webster says it does.

Before Mrs. Williamson became Mrs. Williamson she inquired of Virgil R. Williamson how he made his money. It was fair inquiry enough, for he had asked her hand in marriage, he replied "copper."

And so they were married, January 6, 1926.

Yesterday Williamson asked Judge Lynch for a divorce. He said his wife left him three years ago.

Mrs. Williamson's lawyer explained that she had left her husband because she found out that "copper" did not refer to the stock market. When her husband said "copper," she learned, he meant policeman.

Seek Relatives Here

The Boston police have been requested by the officials of the Pondville State Hospital at Walpole, to locate the relatives of William Stone, 72, who died at that institution about a week ago. Stone formerly lived on Carver st., and was at one time superintendent of the Morgan Memorial.

IOWA BURIES GOOD WITH HONORS

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Nov. 22 (AP)—The community which gave James W. Good to the nation for a life of public service joined today with representatives of the government and the army in laying to rest the Secretary of War.

In contrast with the state funeral accorded Mr. Good at the White House in Washington on Wednesday, relatives and friends here had planned a brief formal service at the First Presbyterian church at 11 a. m. At the last rites at the cemetery military honors were added to the church ritual.

Dr. Harry Morehouse Gage, president of Coe College, of which Mr. Good was a graduate and trustee, and Dr. Robert Little, Presbyterian pastor, had seats in the center of the church. Behind them were reserved places for the official delegation of congressmen and representatives of the military department.

New Strain of Corn Immune to Borer

London, Ont., Nov. 22 (AP)—Development of a strain of corn which resists the ravages of the European corn borer has been announced by A. R. Marston, superintendent of the Michigan corn borer experimental station at Monroe, Mich.

In an address before the Entomological Society of Ontario, Marston said Maize Amargo, a South American strain, had been crossbred with Duncan, Golden Glow and Red Cob ensilage strain, and then inbred to produce a corn which was immune to the corn borer. Five years would be required, he said, before the new strain would be available for general planting.

TEXTILE MEN CLEARED OF FELONY

Marion, S. C., Nov. 22—Granting a defense motion, Judge S. V. Cowpoer freed Alfred Hoffman, organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, and four Marion men of charges of insurrection and rebellion brought against them as the result of textile strike disorders.

The motion was lodged when the State rested its case after presenting numerous witnesses to connect the defendants with the disorders.

Judge Cowpoer held the story of the various disturbances as told by the State, did not warrant the charge, a felony.

Hoffman, Wes Fowler, Del Lewis and Lawrence Hogan, defendants, still have charges of rioting and resisting an officer against them. Judge Cowpoer ordered a special venire of 100 men called from Burke, an adjoining county, from which a jury will be selected for their trial. The trial will begin today.

J. Hugh Hall, the fifth defendant in the insurrection trial, pleaded nolo contendre to the rioting charges and to forcible trespass and was released by Judge Cowpoer. In releasing him, Judge Cowpoer said he understood State's evidence against Hall was very slight and that in addition he had been in jail two months awaiting trial on the insurrection and rebellion charges.

Edge Confirmed as Envoy to Paris

Washington, Nov. 22—Quickly confirmed by his colleagues as ambassador to France, Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey will sail early next month to assume the post vacated by the death of Myron T Herrick of Ohio.

President Hoover determined upon Senator Edge for this high diplomatic office several weeks ago.

Elderly Sisters Die 6 Hours Apart

Keene, N. H., Nov. 22—Mrs. Myra Adams Stevens, 70, and Miss Mary Isabell Perkins, 72, sisters, died in the same house less than six hours apart. Miss Perkins was a victim of a heart attack, and Mrs. Stevens died after an illness of 12 weeks.

FIFTEEN YEARS OF AGONY RELIEVED FOR THIS LADY

Mrs. Corthell Tells How Bon-Tone Brought Amazing Relief from Severe Gas Pains.

"I suffered 15 years of agony, and I feel under obligation to tell others the results obtained by me after taking Bon-Tone for only a short time," was the recent statement of Mrs. Belle V. Corthell, of Hotel Statler, Boston, who is a member of the Eastern Star, to the Bon-Tone man at Epstein's Drug Store, Scollay Square, Boston.

Mrs. Belle V. Corthell

"It seemed that everything I liked to eat didn't like me, as my stomach was not equal to digesting it. About an hour or two after eating, I had severe pains just above my stomach, where gas formed, giving me a choking sensation and making it difficult for me to breathe. I dreaded to lie down to rest, fearing that I would smother. At times spots appeared before my eyes and when I walked any distance I was effected with dizzy spells, and just had to sit down or fall down. My bowels were inactive, and I had a feeling of pains nearly all the time.

"I saw Bon-Tone advertised in the paper and decided to give it a trial. I did so, and the results have been amazing. Constipation has been relieved; I no longer have dizzy spells; and the spots before my eyes have disappeared. I can eat heartily and enjoy my food without any bad results; and that nauseous feeling has passed away. I now sleep soundly, breathe normally, and awaken completely rested. I feel 100% better, and am delighted to tell about the wonders that Bon-Tone worked for me."

Call on Mr. Ryan, the Bon-Tone man, who is meeting the public daily at Epstein Drug Co., Inc., Scollay Square, Boston. Have him tell you why this medicine has become the sensation of the drug trade and a household word all through New England. Bon-Tone is also for sale in Cambridge at Cole Drug Store, 636 Mass. Ave., Central Square, and in South Boston at John J. Austin's Drug Store, 436 Broadway, Portico Square.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

AT last there comes a war play stripped bare of tawdry heroics, impending trench raids and ghastly horrors—and still a play of beef, brawn and sinew. And exactly that is the new Robert Emmet Sherwood opus, "Waterloo Bridge," which last night thrilled a mid week audience at the Tremont and sent it home with pulse still running high. Never let it be said again that drama contrived "behind the lines" is destitute of virility and power.

• • •

MR. SHERWOOD, whose fashion in scribbling for the spoken stage made "The Road to Rome" a notable contribution to the playgore's delight, forsakes the flippancy of his earlier work and steps right down to business on the sometimes forbidden subject of personal morals and its relation to the winning of the war. Out of the simple story of a lonesome boy in the Canadian Air Service and his attraction to a lady of the streets, he wrought a drama that needed neither machine gun nor bursting shell to keep its spectators awake and on its toes. There was no demand for artificial stimulation.

NO time was lost in getting the narrative under way. On Waterloo bridge, the boy with five months of hospital care behind him met a girl out for no good purpose. An innocent lad from Glens Falls, with a home record of Y. M. C. A. work faithfully and efficiently done, it seemed a likely conquest. But the girl, it came out, also was an American. The business at hand want far astray; it resolved into a reunion of lonely souls. Glenn Hunter and June Walker found themselves in roles that might have been originally designed, cut and fitted to their talents.

THOROUGH workmanship was the gift of both author and players. It was war drama in new style; the hum of the German planes in an air raid over London gave the only suggestion of actual hostilities. Yet the play tugged at your heart and finally enveloped it. The casualties were not bloody—they were just two groping children wandering in humanity's No Man's Land.

THE heavy duty of the performance fell upon Mr. Hunter and Miss Walker. At author's discretion Mr. Hunter was given the greater load and he went after it like a brave soldier. There was no lack of fidelity in Miss Walker's donations. Her morals might have been shady, but within she was supreme. Other outstanding contributions were those of Cora Witherspoon, the sentimentalharlot, and Miss Edney, smugrooming housekeeper with an eye to the shilling and not to the virtue of her lodgers, provided the requisite comedy.

AN evening with "Waterloo Bridge" will convince the most stubborn mind that all the searing drama of the late conflict was not where bullets and grenades were thickest. It's the play of the year.

Evidence Against Her

CONWAY TEARLE AND PAULINE FREDERICK

CIRCUMSTANTIAL "EVIDENCE" is again the cause of a marital tragedy furnishing melodrama aplenty on the Metropolitan screen. Miss Frederick and William Courtenay, former Bostonians, head a distinguished cast of stage and screen stars.

MIDNITE SHOW NOW AT HOWARD

AT the Old Howard tonight the management will put on a real celebration on the eve of the Harvard - Yale game. The burlesque attraction will be the famous "Frivolities," a Mutual award featuring the dancing star, Adeline, a girl of much grace and charm, who has been a sensation all the week. Her act is much different from the ordinary dancers. She has been one of the outstanding hits of the Mutual circuit all the season.

Adeline

There are other stars, including Frank Harcourt, and Waite Hoyt the Yankee baseball star. Tonight at the midnight show at 11:30 there will be many new and enjoyable features. Many of the visitors who intend to take in the big harvard and Yale game are expected to observe the night before at the Howard.

TRAINER, ONCE A STAR

IN the new musical comedy, "Woof Woof," which Dema rest and Lohmuller are presenting at the Majestic next week, Maude Odell is merely an animal trainer. It is a good part and important but still it is a character and just an animal trainer. But there was a time when Miss Odell was a star, or nearstar, and in great demand for vital roles in the greatest successes of the times. "Why it was never any trouble for me to get in the show business or was it any trouble to keep busy in it," says Miss Odell. "And I was always surprised when I hear people talk about the difficulty of getting on the stage and keeping on it."

Maude Odell

Miss Odell recognizes the changes in her appearance and physical makeup. When she was young Miss Odell got her first opportunity for a role because he was endowed with a resemblance to Georgia Cayvan, the favorite of the town in New York, the greatest star of the day. In the estimation of Daniel Frohman, then a sort of czar in show business.

"Gypsy Love"

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has acquired sound picture rights to the operetta "Gypsy Love." The score of this piece is the work of Franz Lehar, renowned for "The Merry Widow," while the book was written by Dr. A. M. Willner and Robert Bodan[illegible]

FILMING LIFE OF MAD KING IN BAVARIA

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1929, Universal Service, Inc.)

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 22—Carl Laemmle, Sr., has a sentimental and a romantic strain in him. Any one worth while should have that side to his nature. Over the luncheon table at Universal City Mr. Laemmle told me of a German picture based on the life of King Ludwig of Bavaria which he is making in the Bavarian mountains in Germany. It is a silent picture and is being produced solely for German release.

Louella O. Parsons

When Mr. Laemmle was a boy in Bavaria he used to look at the castle of King Ludwig. 2nd, called "the mad monarch" and hear of the romances of the king who in spite of a streak of insanity, was dashing and had a way with the ladies. In 1886 King Ludwig committed suicide and in an effort to save him, his court physician, Dr. Gudden was drowned.

The boy Laemmle came to America and settled in Oshkosh. When his first child was born a Dr. Gudden was called He was the nephew of the court physician and his wife the daughter of the court physician, Wilhelm Deteris who Mr. Laemmle says is one of the finest actors and directors in both acting in and directing this German picture.

GOSSIP ALONG NEW YORK'S RIALTO

New York, Nov. 22.

BY way of putting some real fervor into the Thanksgiving Day proclamation—if that's the way you look at it—the local entertainment caterers will bring us ten new productions next week. Don't tell me there are only nine, because you haven't been talking to Joe Shea and I have. Joe added his "Patriarch" to the list announcing loudly and without fear of contradiction its first performance at the Forty-ninth Street Theater on Monday night of next week.

"Patriarch" is the drama by Boyd Smith which is having a preliminary test right now at the Westchester Theater in Mt. Vernon. It has Cecelia Loftus and William Courtleigh in the leading roles, and Joe says they are just dandy.

Harry Leon Wilson opus, at the Ford built "Sons O' Guns" Local Broadway musical show, at the Imperial "Salt Water," with Frank Craven at the Golden; "Lucky Girl" at the Elbow.

Wednesday: The Humbug," Max Marcin's new one, at the Ambassador; "The Silver Swan" held over from this week, at the Martin Beck and "Fifty Million Frenchmen" at The Lyric.

HUB MEN SEEK TRANSPORT LICENSES

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

As usual, something comes along to bust up a perfectly good luncheon, and the newspaper boys must wait another six days before Skyways' luncheon date is kept at Rocky Marston's Mills flying camp.

When the plans were announced we were all set for a feed of turkey. Then along came the vanguard of Old Man Winter's army and sprinkled a generous portion of snow all over everything, including the turkey.

According to Johnny Haughey, the party is on again next Wednesday. Haughey said that Volney Hurd of the Monitor, Dan Rochford, Transcript; Arthur Stratton, Herald; Joe Toye, Traveler; Joe Green, Globe; an unannounced reporter from the Post, and the writer will make up the party to be flown down in Olcott Payson's Stearman and Skyways' Bellanca.

Well, we hope next Wednesday rolls around in a hurry. Nothing like two days of turkey in a row, hey?

With both bottom wings completely recovered, and the whole ship all checked up, Skyways' Wasser-engined Challenger was test-hopped by Crocker Snow and pronounced perfect after a half-hour's cavorting around the sky.

As soon as the snow stopped, Skyways brought out two Moths and the Challenger, and Crocker Snow was the first pilot to fly off the snow-covered Boston airport this fall. What could be more fitting that the snow flown over by Snow?

Curtiss-Wright accepted the challenge of Skyways, and rolled a couple of Fledglings, and several students got in their half-hour flying periods.

When we arrived at the airport in the morning, the snow was coming down so fast that it didn't seem possible that an airplane would leave the ground all day. But with the noon hour approaching, the storm stopped, and the boys hopped to it.

Adolph M. Backstrom, chief of student instruction for Curtiss-Wright, took a Fledgling up to 200 feet and played around it, made diving under one, over another and through the center. Ralph Wickford, chief pilot for the outfit, went Backstrom one better by going above the cloud layer and flying in perfect sunshine with miles and miles of clouds stretching out in every direction.

Federal Inspector Jack Moran reported for his semi-monthly visit, and was immediately swamped with the request for flying time in all kinds of planes. Jack set the ball's pace of Joe Roberts and Sam Pringle and Frank Grant, and flew his own ship, down for written exam for transport license, and the last we saw of the boys they were tearing their hair and trying to answer every one of those questions correctly.

There's only one thing harder than a written exam for a transport license, and that's to fly it without wings. We heard Bob boys will file the last of their exams today.

With the public address system installed in the Curtiss-Wright hangar, motor W H Whitcomb of Brighton Rich Enterprises can talk over to the field by remote control. The mechanics are expected to announce over the system during meal hours scheduled for this afternoon and then George Barry [illegible] Piano [illegible] the various disturbances from the ship.

Traffic manager for Curtiss-Bob Poole, has found a [illegible] for Joe D. H. Moth [illegible] concentration in had Bob Gardiner, the sign-painter de luxe, paint "The Spirit of Canphor" on both sides of the motor cowling. The painting was done under the strictest secrecy, and when the job was finished all the boys were invited to inspect the new name.

What Bob's idea was in choosing such a name is known only to himself, and he refuses to divulge the secret. However, there she stands.

After due consideration, the proposed air meet for Newburyport, scheduled for this coming week-end, was postponed indefinitely because of the lateness of the season, and the approach of Thanksgiving. Both Jimmy Dickens and Earl Crabb, who comprise the Merrimac Airways, are positive that as sure as next spring rolls around, and they have their airport entirely developed, they will throw the biggest meet ever seen in that section.

SHAWMUT BANK ELECTS NEW OFFICER

Henry J. Nichols has been elected as a vice president of the National Shawmut Bank and will take over his new duties prior to Jan. 1, 1930, according to announcement today.

Nichols brings to the National Shawmut Bank a wide experience in financial affairs. For eight years, he was secretary and assistant to the president of the First National Bank of Council Bluffs, Iowa, under the late Charles H. Hannan, who was a well known figure in the New England business world.

Later Nichols came to Boston with Hannan. At that time Hannan was financial manager of the various companies in New England in which the individual Swifts were the principal owners.

After Hannan's death in 1907, Nichols became financial director of these same companies, and served as treasurer and director in almost all of the New England companies which are largely owned by members of the Swift family. He has continued in that capacity until the present time.

For nearly twenty years Nichols has been a resident of Newton, and at present lives at 31 West Burnham road, West Newton. During this time he has been a prominent figure in the civic affairs of the city.

He was head of organizing committees in connection with drives to secure funds for the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A. and other charitable organizations during the war.

His most recent public activity in this respect was the organizing and handling of committees totaling some six hundred in connection with the raising of funds necessary for building and equipping of the new portion of the Newton Hospital.

Nichols is a member of the Algonquin Club, Exchange Club, Brae burn Country Club and the Albemarle Golf Club. He is president and director of the last.

Arrest 11 in False Alarm Epidemic

After weeks of investigation by Police Chief Timothy J. Connors and his inspectors, the Danvers police have succeeded in rounding up 11 alleged false alarm ringers, who have been issued summonses to appear in the Salem District Court next Tuesday morning to answer charges of sounding false alarms.

Says Work, Not Rum Made Him Tipsy

Attleboro, Nov. 22—Bernard R. McClendon of Concord st., Rexbury, claimed he had worked continuously from 2 p. m. on November 4, to the time of his arrest about 11:30 p. m., November 5, driving a five-ton truck, and that some of his unsteadiness was the result of this long ordeal, and denied he had anything to drink during a hearing before Judge Ralph C. Estes in district court here.

The judge said he will report the circumstances to Registrar George R. Parker, recommending that McClendon lose his license and that the firm for which he worked have its registration taken away.

ENDS LIFE WITH GUN IN HOTEL

Apparently a suicide, a man registered as William Marsters of Boston was found dead in bed at the Hotel York Thirty-sixth st and Seventh ave., New York City.

A bullet had pierced the man's right temple. He was fully dressed, with the exception of his coat. Beside him was a .22-cal. pea target rifle with a detachable stock, as well as a number of rifle shells.

Marsters, about 35, had checked into the hotel Wednesday after noon, paying a day's room rent in advance. He had two suitcases.

When he did not ask to engage the room for another day, Daniel Hickey, the manager, became curious. He broke into Marsters' room and found the body.

Champion Police Dog Will Sleuth No More

Deeks, champion Doberman tracker, known from coast to coast as the dog detective who trailed murderers, thieves and kidnapers in two state, Vermont and New Hampshire, is dead at Plainville, where he had been under treatment. The dog's owners are Mr and Mrs Newton J Peabody. He will be buried in Bedford.

Deeks's full name was Albert von der Radlitzburg and he was born in Germany May 25, 1920. Mr Peabody purchased him when he was a tiny pup.

The dog won fame four years ago when he tracked Earl Woodward to a barn in a lonesome E. Brookfield, Vt. after Woodward, now in State prison in New Hampshire, had taken 11-year-old Lurtis Chatterton from her home at Granville and fled to the mountains where posses, troops and dogs pursued them until Deeks found them in the barn.

He trailed Kirby, the Maine murderer; Del Fellows, who shot a police chief at Ashland, N H and on several occasions led officers to thieves and their loot.

Two years ago he was taken to Hot Springs, Ark., for treatment. He had been champion dog in shows in every State and won laurels as the most intelligent Doberman on the benches.

Professional Skipper to Sail Shamrock

New York, Nov. 22—Sir Thomas Lipton, perennial challenger for the America's cup, with his long line of Shamrocks, will send Shamrock V to the starting line off Newport next September in command of a professional skipper, Capt. L. Hurd, master of the Sir Mortimer Singer's 24-meter sloop Astra.

The announcement was made here by William A. W. Stewart and George E. Cormack, New York Yacht Club delegates to the recent meeting of the International Yacht Racing Union in London.

FAMILIES FLEE HOMES IN FIRE

Several persons were driven from their homes by a fire that caused $500 damages in a four-story brick dwelling on Strathmore rd Brighton.

The fire started in the basement in painters' materials. District Chief Thomas H Andreoli said the cause was spontaneous combustion.

The second floor is occupied by Dr and Mrs H S White. Mrs White was in the house, but made her way in safety to the street.

Safety Island Not So Safe: Two Go to Hospital

Cambridge's "safety islands" added the names of two pedestrians to the list of injured when Mrs. Helen White, 27, of Oakland ave., and Mrs. Ethel Laye, 30 of Oakland ave., both of Arlington, tripped over the island on Massachusetts ave., between Central sq. and Pearl st.

Mrs. Laye was rendered unconscious and picked up by Patrolman Joseph O'Connor, who was off duty. He took both women to the hospital, where Mrs. White was treated for abrasions of the knees and Mrs. Laye for injuries to the back of the head.

LEG BROKEN, HE CLINGS TO AUTO

Because of the ice formed on his windshield he told police, George H. Chandler of School st., Lynn, did not know that he had struck a man with his automobile as he was driving on Common st., Lynn.

It was not until he heard the screams of the injured man that Chandler saw him hanging on the front fender of the car.

The man hurt was Max Wiseman of Boston st., Lynn. He received a broken leg and other injuries and is at Lynn Hospital.

THANKSGIVING DINNER FRILLS EXPLAINED

Final Rehearsals for Big Dinner Held at Sessions of Martha Lee School of Practical Cookery

Another capacity audience attended the Tuesday evening and Wednesday afternoon classes this week of the Martha Lee School of Practical Cookery to learn of further frills for the Thanksgiving dinner. The foundation menu was demonstrated the previous week. This lesson covered four vegetables in holiday dress, and the all-important art of pie making. A recipe for mince meat, dark fruit cake, a real English fruit cake, and an honest-to-goodness old-fashioned plum pudding were also included, as well as a lighter dessert, combined of peaches, cream and almond brittle.

On the vegetable list, savory squash proved that this prosaic vegetable can be prepared in a guise fit to "set before the queen" - providing it is mixed judiciously with bread crumbs, dried bacon and other mysterious seasonings. The sweet potato puff was a decided improvement over plain boiled and the deep fried cauliflower, surrounded by an intriguing pinkish sauce bore no relationship to the common garden variety. Celery stuffed with a new roquefort cream spread, which has just made its appearance on the market, was especially attractive, cut in inch pieces arranged on paper doilies with toasted crackers.

Put the palm, we think, went to the pumpkin-pineapple pie, though which we have never sampled before.

Here's the combination in case you want to add it to your Thanksgiving specialties

PUMPKIN-PINEAPPLE PIE

1 cup sugar
½ tsp salt
1 cup drained crushed pineapple
1 tsp cinnamon
2 eggs
½ tsp nutmeg
1 cup strained pumpkin
1 cup scalded milk

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Add pumpkin and pineapple. Beat eggs well. Add milk. Mix well. Fill pastry lined plate and bake in hot oven until [illegible] then reduce heat to moderate and finish baking, which will require about 30 minutes in all. Serve peaches with cream and nut brittle is another recipe that I must find room for here.

PEACHES WITH CREAM AND NUT BRITTLE

1 can sliced peaches
¼ cup sugar
Few grains salt
½ cup cream
½ tsp vanilla

Drain the peaches, cook syrup 10 minutes, add fruit and cook 3 to 5 minutes, or until tender. Cool and pour into serving dish. Sprinkle with one-half the nut brittle. Beat the cream until stiff, add slowly ¼ c. sugar, ¾ tsp. vanilla, few grains salt and half remaining brittle. Pile cream on the peaches, sprinkle with remaining brittle and serve as cold as possible.

Have Bird Ready Day Before Roasting

Grandmother knew the life history and antecedents of her Thanksgiving bird, but since our poultry of today comes to us by long and devious routes, it is necessary for the housewife-buyer to recognize the points of good quality.

The very finest turkeys are dry picked. The young ones have smooth, thin skins, well peppered with pin feathers. The feet are soft and yellow, the claws are supple and the breast bone is very pliable. Well-fed, well-bred, young turkeys are plump, but not exceptionally fat.

An over-abundance of fat is usually an indication of old age, or is also a growth of hair instead of pin feathers. Birds with short wings and legs are preferable, because they usually have thicker-meated bodies. Plump legs wide breast and general smoothness are other points worth noticing.

Don't leave the stuffing and trussing of the noble bird to be done Thanksgiving morning. Have your bird delivered first thing Wednesday morning and prepare him leisurely for roasting next day.

CLEAN AND SINGE

First clean the turkey thoroughly, inside and out, after singeing carefully by holding over a gas flame. Then cut off the neck, close to the body. Loosen the tendons one inch below the leg joint and, placing the end of a skewer under the tendons, pull out one at a time, then break off the feet.

Remove the pin feathers, using a pair of large tweezers or a strawberry huller. Remove the oil bag from under the tail and then using a small poultry brush scrub the bird thoroughly both inside and out. Dry carefully and rub the inside well with salt and pepper.

Put him in the refrigerator to become thoroughly chilled and then stuff with a spoon until the body is plump, but not too full. Some allowance must be made for the swelling of the stuffing, especially if it is made with crackers. Also fill the space from which the crop was removed, inserting the stuffing through the slit in the neck.

Thread a large darning needle with strong white thread or fine twine and sew up the slit in the neck, as well as the one in the body, so that the stuffing will not fall out.

HOW TO TRUSS HIM

Now truss the bird in this way: Draw the legs close to the body and secure them by a skewer. Push it through the middle joint of the leg and the body of the bird. Then cross the drumsticks and tie with a string about two feet long. Tie the drumsticks down by passing the strings under the tail and knotting securely.

Next fasten the wings close to the body with skewers (the wing tips should be removed). Now lower the skin of the neck back onto the body to close the neck opening. Next turn the bird over on its breast.

Cross the string attached to the tail, drawing each end around the lower skewer (the one passed through the legs). Now cross the string again and draw it around each end of the upper skewers (the ones holding the wings in place). Hold the string tight, knot it and cut off the ends.

After this last knot, King Turkey can be tucked away in the refrigerator until Thanksgiving dawns

It Won't Be Long Now—Only a Few Days, Mr. Turkey

The big day for grownups as well as kiddies is near at hand. Thanksgiving takes first place in America's turkey days and mothers all over the nation are already planning for the big dinner.

DAINTIES EASILY MADE

SQUASH CUPS

From Miss Mary Burns, 72 High [illegible] Newton Upper Falls, Mass., comes this excellent recipe for squash cups which she says are delicious as for the Thanksgiving dinner:

To two cups of mashed squash add a piece of butter, size of an egg, that has been melted and season to taste with salt and pepper. Add two well beaten eggs and mix thoroughly. Put into individual custard cups, sprinkle with grated cheese and cover with a thin layer of buttered bread crumbs. Bake until browned.

SIMPLE THANKSGIVING PUDDING

4 cups scalded milk
1½ cups rolled crackers
1 cup sugar
4 eggs
½ cup melted butter
½ tsp. nutmeg
1 tsp. salt
1 to 1½ cups raisins

Pour milk over crackers and let stand until cool. Add sugar, eggs slightly beaten, nutmeg, salt and butter. Parboil raisins by pouring on boiling water to cover and letting them stand until soft. Turn into buttered pudding dish and bake slowly two and one-half hours, stirring after first half-hour to prevent raisins from settling. Serve with hard sauce.

Invite Friends For Thanksgiving Tea

There's no getting around the fact that Thanksgiving is primarily a holiday for feasting. A few people may think of it in terms of football and fewer still as a day for reciting the gifts and blessings which have been showered on our nation and its people since the days of our Puritan forefathers, but the great majority of us think of it in terms of turkey and cranberries, pumpkin pie and mince pie.

And isn't it rather a relief in this age of "eat and grow thin" to have left to us this one day when we can return to a genuine and frank enjoyment of an old-fashioned dinner? And why let our plans for the day stop with the dinner? Late afternoon on Thanksgiving Day is a pleasant time to bring together a group of friends for tea.

If the group is small, place the tea table near the fireplace in the living room, and have members of the family pass the sandwiches and cakes. For a larger group use the dining room. Arrange the table for buffet service with the plates, cups and silver ready for use. Use a simple centerpiece and unshaded candles to give the necessary festive touch to the table.

No matter how much turkey the guests have consumed at dinner, tea time usually finds them surprisingly ready for another relay of refreshments. And I've always found that the ones who protested most violently "that they would never be able to eat again," consume the most food at tea time.

However, it's well to keep far afield from even the suggestion of relics from the main meal of the day. Cheese fondue with cold slaw or salad, toasted crackers and coffee proved very popular with my family last year. I'm really very proud of my own special cheese fondue recipe, combining as it does nutrition, tastiness and economy—yes, even with eggs at 90c a dozen. Do try it for yourself.

Cheese Fondue

1 1-3 cups soft stale bread crumbs.
½ lb. American cheese rubbed through grater.
4 eggs.
1 cup hot water.
½ tsp. salt.

Pour the water over the bread crumbs, and add salt, cheese and the well beaten egg yolks. Mix thoroughly and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven until firm. Serve at once.

JELLIED CRANBERRY SAUCE

1 qt. berries; 2½ pts. water; 2½ cups sugar.

Run berries through food chopper using medium fine cutter. Add the water and boil moderately for about 10 minutes. Add the sugar stir in well and boil moderately for 6-10 minutes, or to 216 degrees Fahrenheit.

TURKEY IS NOT ONLY THING

Although traditionally, turkey is considered the Thanksgiving meal, there are other meat fuous equally delicious, much less expensive, and when served with all the Thanksgiving "fixings," equally festive. I have in mind not only nicely tender chicken, ducks and geese, but the ever popular sugar-cured and hickory-smoked ham. Ham is an especially good buy at this time of the year, not only because it is relatively inexpensive, but because it is truly a festive meat.

When baked to a luscious golden brown, and dotted here and there with spicy cloves, what a lovely picture it makes! A garnish of cinnamon apples, and stuffed olives wrapped in bacon strips and broiled, will add a new note of color; while cress, parsley or celery tops will give the necessary appetizing touch of green.

Another meat you should consider quite seriously is mock duck made from the fore quarter portion of lamb. How often we have wished the family pocketbook would permit our indulging in a real old fashioned Thanksgiving, the kind grandmothers festive board offered. It is possible to offer the

Then he should mount the kitchen scales for we should allow 20 minutes of roasting for every pound after he is stuffed.

START WITH HOT OVEN

Dredge the bird entirely with flour, sprinkle him with salt and pepper and arrange three or four strips of fat salt pork across the back. Then lay the bird breast down on a trivet or a rack which sits in the roaster and put on the cover.

Do not add a drop of water. If you do, your turkey loses its only chance of turning that golden, crispy brown, which should be the color of the finished product.

The oven should be very hot the first 20 minutes (450 degrees), then lower the heat to 300 degrees for 10 minutes and after that reduce the oven to 400 degrees for the rest of the roasting. If your roaster has a vent, open it during the last 15 minutes or remove the cover.

The gravy is made in the same pan in which the meat is roasted so as to save every drop of the meat juice and the valuable coloring. The roaster is placed over the heat and when the fat is good and hot, but not smoking, the flour is added, using equal amounts of fat and flour.

The flour is blended in the fat and stirred until it is a rich brown, but not allowed to burn. This is one of the secrets of good gravy making. Then cold water is gradually added, using 2 c. of a cupful to each tablespoon of fat.

Once the water is added, the browning stops, so be sure you have got the right coloring before adding the water. Stir the mixture until smooth, and boil until it is of the right consistency. Season with salt and pepper to taste and add giblets, heart and liver, if liked, or chopped cooked mushrooms.

MANY WAYS TO BEAT TURKEY

same hospitality and with just a little ingenuity the meal may be equally attractive, and yet within the means of the budget.

Your retailer will be glad to prepare the mock duck for you, or if you are skillful with the knife and follow the directions as given by my retailer, I'm sure you, yourself, will have no difficulty in preparing the lamb duck.

PREPARATION OF MOCK DUCK

Wipe meat with damp cloth; remove the bones from the breast and shoulder, the insert the knife to unjoint shoulder blade. Lift meat from the top of the shoulder blade, then scrape meat from the ridge of the blade. Remove the arm bone from the shoulder, then unjoint it from the shank, leaving the shank bone intact. Saw off the joint end from the shank bone; cut then make a cut between the bone and tendon to form the bill and mouth of the duck.

Mold the duck into shape. Sew and continue molding, leaving an opening for the stuffing. Stuff with any favorite dressing, then sew the opening securely and fasten in a piece of carthiax to form the tail. Rub with salt and pepper, dust with flour.

Place in roasting pan and sear 30 minutes in a very hot oven, 500 degrees; then reduce heat and cook slowly at 250 degrees for 25 minutes to the pound. Baste with butter or lard drippings, allowing one-third cup fat to two-thirds cup boiling water. When done, and nicely browned, serve with stuffed baked apples, sweet potatoes, cranberries and other Thanksgiving goodies.

LAUNCH SEVEN INQUIRIES INTO CAPITAL BLAST

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—The cause of an explosion in downtown Washington which brought death to five persons and injuries to many more was the subject today of seven different investigations.

The disaster, which occurred in the 7th st. S and 10-cent store crowded with shoppers, shattered the front of the store, lifted the heavy masonry of the sidewalk outside high in the air and littered the thoroughfare with debris.

The injured numbered more than 60. Five were expected to die. The victims were mostly passers-by as the force of the blast was upward and outward. Many persons in the store escaped through a rear exit.

The dead were Mrs. Elizabeth Davison, Charles Jackson, Miss Catherine Cullinane, Mrs. Anna May Cockerell and her infant daughter, Mary Ann Cockerell.

Extortion Suspect Held for Sanity Test

Following a hearing in the East Cambridge District Court on six charges, George C. Jacobs of 38 Lee st., Cambridge, was ordered committed to the Westboro State Hospital for observation for 30 days by Judge Arthur P. Stone.

He was charged with extortion by threatening to accuse Leonard Sullivan of crime and the same offenses against Anthony Coyne. He was further accused of the larceny of $10 from Mrs. Alice M. Sullivan, mother of Leonard, and $750 from Coyne. The complainants asserted that Jacobs, posing as an officer trumped up false charges and then obtained money.

FLAY M'DONALD FOR NEW PACT WITH RUSSIA

London, Nov. 22 (AP)—A vitriolic attack on Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald on the resumption of diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Soviet Russia was made by Comdr. Oliver Locker-Lampson, Conservative member of Parliament, at today's session of 4000 Conservative delegates.

A resolution introduced by the commander protesting against resumption of diplomatic relations with Russia was adopted with only one dissenting vote.

In introducing his resolution Comdr. Locker-Lampson, who has long been a persistent advocate of the expulsion of Soviet agents from Great Britain, said:

"Crooks, cads and Bolsheviki bounders from Moscow would not enrich our stock. They have much degraded and debauched our standards. Soviet Russia is a moral outlaw. She is a moral leper and the cry, 'Unclean, unclean,' ought to go up as long as she refuses to pay up."

The commander declared MacDonald was a "very vain and very weak man and king of the quacks." He said he was "fed up with MacDonald and his blasting about peace and parity with America. How dared MacDonald talk about peace when he is bringing war into England and the empire? We already have lost Egypt and we will lose India if MacDonald has a free hand and now he has sold the pass of the British citadel to these alien enemies in

While it is obvious that a player not only should but will take out partner's No Trump bid with strong two-suited hands, it is always a debatable question as to whether or not there actually exists a minimum for such take-outs. Theoretically, no such minimum exists, as a two-suited hand however weak should normally be worth more when played with one of the two suits the trump than when played at No Trump.

The arguments pro and con I have still left this mooted question not because of any disagreement in respect to the intrinsic greater worth of a two-suited hand played with one of the two suits as trump, but because of the grave risk entailed of partner rebidding his hand or carrying on the take-out bid upon the assumption that the take-out bidder holds at least some high card strength.

It is for this reason that while I set no definite minimum requirements as to the high card strength necessary for take-outs of No Trump with two-suited hands, I insist that a player should not embark upon such take-out with one of two weak suits unless resolutely determined to show the second suit, should partner rebid the No Trump.

This deal illustrates the take-out of an original No Trump bid with a weak five-card suit and a subsequent take-out with a second weak suit of partner's No Trump re-bid.

Salient Points of Bidding

Auction Bidding: South bids one No Trump and North, holding none of the Spade suit, and two five-card Minors, takes out with the higher ranking Diamond suit fully intending to show the lower ranking Club suit on a subsequent round of bidding if necessary.

South, rebidding No Trumps makes it imperative upon North to show the distinct two-suited nature of his hand by bidding three Clubs. South will not go on with No Trumps, thus warned, but figures there may be game at Diamonds, the suit he can best support. North's Diamonds are obviously weak and if his Clubs are equally weak then the best chance for game lies not at No Trump but at a suit trump.

Contract Bidding: South with 4½ Quick Tricks and all suits stopped, three of which are doubly stopped, bids two No Trumps originally.

Three things are manifest in respect to South's holding; first, that he holds an absolutely sound two No Trump bid; second, that he holds a sound three No Trump bid following North's Diamonds take-out; and third, as an examination of all four hands will show, that he cannot go game at No Trumps, assuming West to open the fourth best of his long suit, the 7 of Spades. North, having embarked upon a take-out with a weak two suiter, must not rest satisfied with South's game contract of three No Trumps, but must show his second suit however weak.

South now seeing strong likelihood of game at Diamonds and some doubt as to game at No Trumps bids the odd which becomes the final declaration.

The Play

East leads initially the 2 of Spades. Dummy plays at 4. West plays North carrying with the 7 of Diamonds. North now plays two rounds of Clubs winning with the A and K and in Dummy. Next leads the King of Clubs. West plays the 8, North the 5 and East refuses to ruff, leading the 3. Declarer now leads the 9 of Clubs from Dummy. West plays the 4, North the 6. East winning with the Ace and returning the Club 10 to be trumped by West.

The balance of the tricks are practically his own, as West must now shift to Spades or lead up to Dummy's Ace-Queen of Hearts. It will thus be seen that North lost nothing by permitting West to Trump one of his good Clubs with the 9 of Diamonds as it left an extra trump trick in both hands.

The Watch Tower

In making the annual investment in the Thanksgiving turkey, it certainly "pays to be particular." This year those who are anxious to secure a high-quality Massachusetts bird have the opportunity to buy a stamped and tagged turkey that meets the requirements of the newly established State Grade — Massachusetts Native Fancy.

A majority of the leading turkey growers of this State have asked permission to identify their high quality turkeys with the tag bearing this New England Quality Farm Products label and the accompanying circular stamp on the back—Massachusetts Department of Agriculture — Native Fancy Grade. The other New England States are also identifying their fancy quality turkeys with the New England label. And at present prices are low, although the birds themselves today were few and far between, but will be more plentiful by tomorrow, we are told. Native young turkeys today were 55c to 60c a pound.

And now about the essential vegetables for the big dinner. Most of them you'll find reasonably priced, particularly onions, squash, cabbage, celery, sweet potatoes and hothouse lettuce. Cranberries are generally 17c to 20c a pound. Sweet potato prices remain about the same—which is twice as high as last year—but last year's crop was a record one and this year's is comparatively small. Tomatoes are higher, also.

Decorative, as well as utilitarian, suggestions for the fruit dish are McIntosh apples, kumquats, persimmons, tangerines and a few grapes. Florida orange supplies are more generous and grapefruit are more plentiful. Fancy Comice pears sell for 10c to 12c each.

Every housewife who prides herself on her luscious Thanksgiving cookery knows what an important part butter plays in it and, praise be, butter is still very reasonable at 47c to 54c for excellent tub butter, and 52c to 55c for the print, packed in quarter-pound sections. Nearby eggs in the city stores are 75c to 91c and Massachusetts special eggs, sold usually direct from the producer on farms outside of Boston, are from 85c to 90c a dozen.

If your Thanksgiving dinner is to be of the good old-fashioned variety, you'll be interested in celery at 15c to 25c for native and Southern, and 25c to 39c for Boston market; Spanish or Silverskin onions at 7c to 10c, with red onions 6c to 10c, and natives 3c to 5c a pound. Parsnips at 5c to 8c a pound, blue hubbard or turban squash, 4c to 5c; yellow turnips, 3c to 5c, with white, 4c to 5c; Baldwin apples, 4 to 6 pounds for 25c, and McIntosh, 3 pounds for 25c; walnuts, 35c to 75c, and pecans, 49c to 59c. Italian chestnuts are 18c to 20c, with French endive, 35c to 40c; kumquats, 20c to 30c a quart, and persimmons, 8c to 10c each.

Fresh killed duck is 35c to 40c and capon, 55c to 65c; native chickens, 40c to 45c, and native fowl 40c.

So eat calories to the winds, my children, and eat, drink and be merry.

NEW ICE BEAUTY DUE

Martha Lee fairly radiates delight these days. At first we thought it was because she'd been sampling some of her own pre-Thanksgiving cookery, but it now appears that its because she has advance information of a new De Luxe model of a favorite electric refrigerator that's soon to be installed in the Martha Lee School of Practical Cookery.

It's the same reliable make that has been using duty 24 hours a day 365 days a year for the past four years right in this busy culinary corner and its still going strong and good for scores of years more of service.

But, because they're anxious to have this interesting school equipped with the very latest model in the electric refrigerator world, the generous Detroit manufacturers of this refrigerator, which must be nameless in these columns but will soon be on exhibition at the model school, are installing the new De Luxe model for Martha.

The beautifully proportioned cabinet which comes in all the popular color combinations which is at a low convenient height to give the maximum degree of accessibility and convenience, and the rubber ice trays, which have proved so popular, will be retained in the new model. There will be a deep compartment for jellies and ice creams, and an innovation in the form of a cold storage compartment which gives ample space for toting additional ice cubes or an extra supply of frozen desserts.

Imagine an electric refrigerator with an electric light located in its interior so that every corner of the food compartment is lighted! And a Super Automatic Ice-O-Matic Tube, which automatically controls the temperature for special quick freezing.

When you slip a tray of water into the sleeve with these tubes, the whole mechanism goes into operation and concentrates its effort on the one job of freezing that tray of dessert of water without affecting the temperature of the other compartments. When this one tray is frozen at the new high speed, the power automatically brings the machine down to normal running—something in automatic performance that has never before been accomplished.

No wonder Martha Lee has her nose glued to the window pane, waiting the arrival of this new beauty!

PUMPKIN MERINGUE PIE.

Into one cup and a half of strained cooked pumpkin stir one cup of milk, half a cup thick cream, two-thirds cup of brown sugar, 2 tablespoons of molasses, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon of ground ginger, cinnamon and nutmeg to taste, and 3 whole and 1 egg yolk beaten lightly together.

Have ready a deep pie plate lined with pastry and finished with fluted border. Brush over the inside with beaten white of egg and let dry stiff for a few minutes. Then turn in the pumpkin custard mixture and set in a hot oven for 10 minutes. Reduce heat at once and bake for 20 minutes longer. Take from the oven and cover with thick meringue made from the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs and 2 tablespoonfuls of sugar and set in a very slow oven to brown.

CANDIED SWEET POTATOES

Six sweet potatoes.
Shortening.
One cupful brown sugar.
One-quarter cupful water.

Pare the potatoes and boil until about half done. Drain and cut in lengthwise slices and lay in a shallow greased pan. Spread with shortening and pour over syrup made of brown sugar and water. Bake in a moderate oven, basting frequently with the syrup until potatoes are transparent. It may be necessary to add more syrup during the baking. An hour or more is usually required to candy the potatoes well.

APPLE SALAD

3 med. size tart apples diced
½ cupful grated carrots
1 cup sliced celery
Sliced English walnuts

Calls Navy by Radio to Quell Ship Mutiny

Malta, Nov. 22 (INS)—Four British destroyers were steaming to an embattled wireless operator on the British steamer Baron Elcho in the Mediterranean set today. Locked in his cabin and threatened with death by a mutinous crew, the operator got in touch with the British wireless station here, informing naval officers of his plight.

The operator said the mutineers had imprisoned the officers of the vessel after drugging them. The wireless operator, escaping the struggling at the mess table, was set upon by the crew, but fled to his room.

Wales Tired, Sits, Watches Dancers

Glasgow, Scotland, Nov. 22 (AP)—Lassies of this and surrounding bailiwicks were keenly disappointed at a dance aboard the steamer Transvivania, in dock here, when the Prince of Wales sat and watched instead of dancing.

The prince looked very tired after a busy day in Edinburg. He sat with the Duchess of Montrose and despitem any anxious glances from the fair dancers did not take the floor.

New U.S. Dirigibles to Carry Five Planes

Providence, Nov. 22—Two new dirigibles being built by the United States will have compartments of five airplanes each and will have provision for take-off and landing of the planes while the dirigibles are in mid-air, Commander Charles E. Rosendahl naval chief, stated. He added that the United States is far ahead of other countries in the use of dirigibles. The new ship, now under construction, the former skipper of the Los Angeles said, will have a cruising radius of 10,000 miles at a speed of 56 miles an hour, and will have a fuel capacity almost twice that of the Graf Zeppelin.

Commander Rosendahl, who is now head of the lighter-than-air division of the United States navy, was the principal guest and chief speaker at the annual banquet of the Providence Engineering Society, held at the Biltmore Hotel.

TRAGEDY LOOMS OVER WEDDING

A Thanksgiving wedding in Malden was threatened with tragedy today as a result of the mysterious disappearance of the bride-to-be in Baltimore.

Since promising to meet her fiance Tuesday in front of a downtown department store in that city on completion of purchases for her trousseau, Miss Millicent W. Dodge, 20, has not been seen or heard from.

After conducting a private search, Francis J. Gerdes, of Cincinnati, the fiance, sought aid of Capt. Joseph McGovern of the missing persons' bureau of the Baltimore police.

According to Gerdes, who has been visiting at the Dodge home for several weeks, invitations have been mailed for the wedding on Thanksgiving Day at the home of an uncle at Malden.

Seeks Aid of Kiwanis

Concord, N. H., Nov. 22—Dr Carleton R. Metcalf, president of the Kiwanis Club, acting with the approval of Lieut-Governor Conrad Snow of this district, has written the Kiwanis Clubs in the state suggesting their co-operation with Rev. Whitman S. Bassett, chaplain of the state prison in a program of aid for men in prison and on parole and for their families.

Better Bread!

Not Bleached

Home bakers can expect better bread from Ceresota flour because it is not bleached. Bleached flour can be made from wheat of various grades and brought to a uniform whiteness by the bleaching process. Ceresota flour requires the finest wheat obtainable—therefore it bakes better and more healthful bread—and more of it. Try it.

HOOD MUTUAL ASSOCIATION AT BANQUET

More than 1000 members of the Mutual Benefit Association of H. P. Hood & Sons, Inc., were present at its 22d annual meeting and banquet in Ford Hall.

Singing was enjoyed under the leadership of Jimmy Downey, and the speakers were introduced by George K. Babbitt, president of the association.

At the head table were Dr. Charles H. Hood, president of the company; Gilbert Hood, Jr., secretary; H. H. Hood, vice-president, H. P. Hood, 2d, treasurer; C. W. Barker, sales manager; W. S. Brazel, Charlestown manager; E. W. Park, ice cream manager; Archibald Osborne, assistant sales manager; John A. Foley, treasurer of the benefit association, and Frank E. Julian, recording secretary; Lieut-Gov. Youngman and Rev. John Nicol Mark, pastor of the Arlington Unitarian Church.

The lieutenant-governor conveyed the greetings of the state, and Rev. Mr. Mark spoke on the real meaning of success.

Dr. Hood paid a tribute to the association, and said that out of the 1829 members 1154 hold stock in the Hood company.

"During the recent stock market slump," he said, "I can saw many worried people, but I don't believe that any one of these 1154 Hood stock owners showed signs of worry. Don't be afraid of savings banks and possibly of Hood's stock."

Dr. Hood eulogized Association Treasurer Foley and presented him with a service pin in token of his 30 years with the Hood interests.

Game Wardens Lose False Arrest Suit

Newburyport, Nov. 22—The superior court jury in the case of Daniel J. Reardon, water commissioner of this city, vs Wallace B. Ordway and Carroll C. Ordway of West Newbury, brothers, and deputy game wardens, returned a verdict for the plaintiff and assessed damages at $1 on false arrest, false imprisonment and malicious prosecution.

Counsel for the plaintiff filed a motion to have the verdict set aside on the ground that the amount of damages given are not adequate.

Bangor Court Judge Nominated for Mayor

Bangor, Me., Nov. 22—Judge Benjamin W. Pickard was nominated for mayor of Bangor at the Republican caucus, defeating Ex-Mayor Guy A. Hersey by 311 votes in a poll of 1295 to 984. Mayor John Wilson was not a candidate for renomination.

Edward R. Hickson was nominated for mayor at the Democratic city caucus without opposition.

Hearst Dry-Law Book Discussed by Foe and Friend of Prohibition

E. CLEMENS HORST, grain and fruit grower of California, who is now in New York to debate with Dr. Clarence True Wilson on Prohibition next Sunday afternoon at the Hotel Astor, has submitted his views of the best-seller book, "TEMPERAN or PROHIBITIONS" by Fred Pierce J. Tietsort, sales of which are now sweeping the book trade from coast to coast. Likewise, Dr. Wilson, secretary of the Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and an outstanding dry leader and reformer, reviewed the book for the Hearst newspapers. Below are printed the different criticisms by both.

By E. CLEMENS HORST

FRANCIS J. TIETSORT'S "TEMPERANCE or PROHIBITION? throws much needed light upon America's most controversial and least understood problem, the restoration of temperance and the reduction of crime and delinquency.

The work suggests a variety of ways by which Federal prohibition can immediately be repealed or modified, as may be desired, without awaiting any repeal or modification of the Eighteenth Amendment, and it shows how such changes in Federal prohibition can be made without any risk of adverse decisions on such changes by the United States Supreme Court.

NEEDED CHANGES

The author also shows that upon the adoption of such changes our country will resume substantially the same position as during America's regulatory period of 1917, 1918 and 1919, which resulted in great success, at least in comparison with any period of years either before or after those three regulatory years.

Mr. Tietsort shows how easy it is for any one to make hard liquor and the impossibility of preventing by law, without overwhelming public support, the manufacture, use and abuse of such liquors.

That the necessary public support is unobtainable by force needs no argument.

VALUABLE BOOK.

The opinions of clergymen, judges, lawyers, doctors, scientists, industrialists and women as to their respective points of view, quoted by the author, are most valuable to every student of the subject and to the public at large.

The observations as to the relative workings in foreign countries of prohibition and regulation by various methods, where the public experiment has been tried and also the experiences of foreign countries where regulation has been adopted without first going through any prohibitory period, are all of great value in considering how America's drink problem should be handled.

FACTS FOR DRINKERS.

The book's comments on economics, lost revenues, national wealth, savings banks' deposits, the attitude of large employers and labor organizations and its comments upon the principles of liberty and the will of the people furnish good food for serious thought and will reverse many drinking men on the conclusions they had reached from the 10 years of unrestricted dry propaganda which has been at variance with the truth.

Aside from being instructive the work makes most interesting both to those who favor and to those who oppose continuance of federal prohibition as now attempted.

By DR. CLARENCE TRUE WILSON.

IF you want to see the best onslaught upon prohibition that has ever been put into print in which all the material has been utilized that came in as the result of Hearst's prize offer, you can get it in a volume entitled "TEMPERANCE, or PROHIBITION?" For a consided statement, it takes ALL prizes.

One or two drys had the confidence in the fairness of the management to send in their statements of their reasons for favoring prohibition.

This book takes them up by name and personally vilifies them, belittles their personalities and convictions, and holds them up as horrible examples.

AS TO "WHO'S WHO."

For instance, one of them it quotes as being "A.B., B.D., LL.D., and says "as he set forth in his biographical sketch so as to make the readers believe that he actually sent such a document to them, when what they really did do was to look it up in "Who's Who?" and take the statements that had been gathered up as though the author had been sending such a personal boost to the Hearst Committee.

This is a fair example of the sense of fairness which the editor has had throughout the document.

It is a volume compiled from all the documents sent in for the Hearst Prize, but it rances over all our current literature, makes every man who writes for the wet side a scholar, a historian and a philosopher, and every man who has ever spoken for the drays a shallow-brained pretender without character, standing or influence.

WISE AND UNWISE.

It is one of the most interesting studies to take the index and go through the book and see how you can become one of the greatest leaders of America by simply going wet, and how you can be marked down as a fool in this Hearst publication by simply going dry.

Just how a thoughtful American could be convinced of anything by a book so one-sided, as unfair and in many instances of personal representation, as untrue as this is, is what this book reviewer is at a loss to know.

The fairness of the Durant Contest in contrast with this is apparent to any observer.

DURANT CONTEST.

It was noticeable that Durant got several dripping wet articles and the committee played them up at their full value and with out condemnation, and when it came to publish its final book it printed these anti-prohibition arguments in full and in as prominent places as it had.

The difference in the fairness of presentation by the two could not be more apparent than to look over the Hearst book and see the contrast.

Held as Tipsy

Seek Wind Machine

Nassau, Bahamas, Nov. 22—The administration here wants a wind measuring machine that will make a true record of hurricane velocity. In the recent hurricane the instruments were blown away when they registered 164 miles an hour and the wind had not reached its peak.

FAMOUS CHEF ON BILL

Ladies! Lend me your ears! For I'm about to make that long-awaited announcement of the first Chef

K. Camille Den Dooven

Day this year in the Martha Lee School of Practical Cookery.

The date will be December 6—the time 2 p. m.—the place the Martha Lee Kitchen at 5 Winthrop sq., and the chef—none other than K. Camille Den Dooven, recognized as New England's foremost culinary authority.

Already Mr Den Dooven's name is a household word in New England homes. You, of course, know that Den Dooven was formerly chef to Albert, King of the Belgians. A native of Belgium, he served his apprenticeship for three years without pay and five years more at an infinitesimal salary. Later he secured further experience in Paris, Hungary, Budapest, back to Belgium and later to the Ritz-Carlton in London, under the tutelage of M. Escoffier, dean of chefs.

AUTHOR OF BOOKS

Den Dooven was obliged to leave the royal family of Belgium to keep an engagement as chef of the Hotel Vanderbilt, in New York, and later the New Ocean House at Swampscott was able to secure his services.

From there he undertook laboratory work for the United Fruit Company and the writing of their now famous book of banana recipes. At present he is doing research work in the laboratory of the H. A. Johnson Co., the well-known house of baker's supplies, at 221 State st.

Den Dooven's three recent books are creating a real furore in the culinary world. These are "The Hotel and Restaurant Dessert Book," "The Master Baker and His Work," and for the housewife "The Modern Cook Book." Den Dooven has the usual knack of modestly hiding his knowledge of foods and their proper preparation, and graciously helps the every-day home maker up the ladder of superior cookery with instructions easily understood by even the novice housewife.

WRITE TODAY FOR TICKETS

This announcement that Den Dooven will give a lesson on the new and interesting dishes which he discovered on his last summer's coast to coast tour, has all the importance of a royal proclamation.

Tickets of admission will be necessary owing to our limited seating capacity, so we suggest your writing today to Martha Lee giving your registered membership number in the Martha Lee Women's Club. If you haven't already a membership card, you may send in your application for one at the same time you apply for a ticet to the demonstration lecture of this famous chef.

Attempt to Kill Murder Witness

Monticello, Ill., Nov. 22—Death threats and an attempt to poison a state witness held under guard in jail here during the trial of four men for murder, were reported to State's Atty. Robert Shonkweiler.

A jury was completed to try the four for the slaying of Frank Hilligoss, night watchman, during a bank holdup at Hansfield, Ill., in 1925. The defendents are Vincent Moran and George Fuller of Decatur, Albert Phillips of Champaign, Andoscar Schoby, a convict in the Chester penitentiary.

More Named in Jap Railroad Fraud

Tokio, Nov. 22—Investigation into the railway scandal which in October resulted in indictment of Heiichiri Ogawa, formerly Minister of Railways, and other high officials, it was revealed has involved also members of the preceding Minseito Ministry.

The charges relate to receiving bribes from promoters. Sango Satake vice minister of railroads in the Cabinet of Raijiro Wakatsuki has now been indicted and accusations have been leveled at other leaders of the Minseito party.

Non-Fraternity Men Lead Green

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 22—Scholastic averages released at Dartmouth College show that the non-fraternity men have higher grades in aggregate than the Greek letter men although several fraternity averages as a whole have extremely high grades.

The average of the fraternities is 2.375, as compared to the non-fraternity men at 2.546.

FAIRER SYSTEM OF TAXATION ADVOCATED

Providence, Nov. 22—Commissioners Henry F. Long of Massachusetts and William H. Blodgett of Connecticut sounded the keynote of the 17th annual conference of the New England State Tax Officials' Association here when they stressed the need of a fairer distribution of taxation.

Both asserted it was the duty of the conference to keep abreast of the times and bring about an equitable distribution of taxation, to lighten the burden of taxation and not to neglect the taxpayer by continual increases of taxes.

"We seek not to burden but relieve the taxpayers by equalization," Commissioner Long said. "All should enjoy equally the privileges of government, and all should contribute proportionately to the enjoyment of these privileges."

Long emphasized that when tax commissioners get together they do so not to plan how to get more money out of the harassed taxpayer, as the average man is inclined to believe, but to plan how to relieve his tax burden.

He stressed the inadvisability of earmarking tax money for particular purposes and stated that the situation in Massachusetts was steadily growing better from the standpoint of the taxpayer, though there was still a need for better roads and more schools.

More than 100 tax commissioners, local assessors, teachers and students of tax legislation and administration and tax attorneys from all New England States and New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey are gathered for the two days' conference.

Theodore N. Waddell, director of the Massachusetts Division of Accountants, spoke on "Practical Checks Upon Municipal Extravagance." Harold S. Lyon of the Division of Corporation took as his subject "The Problem Presented the Tax Official by the Subsidiary Corporation."

Former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Henry Herrick Bond of Boston was the principal speaker at the conference dinner at the Biltmore Hotel. He spoke on "The Vital Income Tax Problem—Administration."

DEFENDS MASS. FROM HADLEY RATE PLAN

New York, Nov. 22—Commissioner Louis C. Goldberg of the Department of Public Utilities of Massachusetts at the second session of the legislative investigating committee here took issue with the opinion forwarded by Pres. Emeritus Arthur T. Hadley of Yale, in which it was said that the rates of all utilities should be so set as to allow a maximum net profit.

Dr. Hadley had declared that the fixing of rates on a basis of "prudent investment" actually made would curb industry and discourage the investment of capital.

Goldberg said that the shortest answer to Dr. Hadley's contention was that the predicted outcome had not occurred in Massachusetts.

Instead, he said, the stockholders have taken offerings readily, and the department has had to authorize only the sale of an occasional block of a few shares left over in the division among stockholders.

To leave the fixing of rates, he said, entirely to the utilities, as Dr. Hadley recommended, would be to ignore human nature and would result in the refusal of investors to accept present profits in the hope of greater future dividends. Greed and gluttony would be the inevitable result.

Missing

Miss Mayrna LaSalle, Los Angeles model, and George M. Sunday, 37, son of "Billy" Sunday, are charged with indiscretion in a complaint filed by Sunday's wife. Both have been missing for several weeks and are sought by Los Angeles police. Bail of $10,000 each has been fixed on the missing pair.

LIFE TERM IN INSURANCE SLAYING

Ocilla, Ga., Nov. 22—Harry K Sligh, convicted of the murder of Harry Loving, Huntington, W. Va. youth, was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge R. Eve. The defense immediately filed an appeal for a new trial.

The jury returned the verdict after deliberating nearly 29 hours. The verdict recommended life imprisonment.

Aubrey and James Hoover, brothers, who were jointly indicted with Sligh, were released on their own recognizance on condition that they would return to Ocilla in the event of a new Sligh trial.

The three were indicted after an investigation of the disappearance of Loving soon after he left his Huntington, W. Va., home with the Hoover brothers on a "hitch-hiking" trip to Florida.

The State contended Sligh killed Loving and burned his body in his home in an attempt to collect a $90,000 insurance policy. The body found in the ruins of the home was buried in Seneca, S. C., as that of Sligh.

Vote for Liquidation

New Bedford, Nov. 22—Directors of the Acushnet Mill Corporation have voted to recommend to stockholders that immediate steps be taken to liquidate the company.

Woman Burns Self With Turkeys Mate Wouldn't Spare

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 22—After pleading in vain with her husband not to kill their 17 Thanksgiving turkeys, Mrs. Margaret Madoo herself slaughtered the birds. She locked herself in the turkey house, poured kerosene about the floor and set fire to it.

She and the turkeys were immolated.

Announce Third Marriage at Yale

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 22—The third romance of the current college year at Yale was revealed when Mr and Mrs. Robert E. Bostich of Milford announced the marriage of their daughter, Margaret Field ing Bostich, to Howard Carl Frantz of Reading, Penn., a senior in Sheffield Scientific School.

A Yale ruling prohibits the marriage of students, and provides for automatic dropping of the offender. Whether this will be enforced in this case is uncertain as no action was taken in a previous case.

SEEK SUNDAY'S SON AND MODEL

Los Angeles, Nov. 22—George M. Sunday, 37, son of Billy Sunday, the evangelist, and Mrs. Maurynn La Salle, a cloak model, were charged with indiscretion in a complaint issued here by Deputy District Attorney George Stahlman.

The complaint was signed by young Sunday's wife, Mrs. Harriet Sunday.

Bail was set at $10,000 for each defendant, but both have been missing for several weeks.

Would "Farm Out" City-Bred Youths

Editor Boston American:

Former Gov. Eugene N. Foss told of his upbringing among the hills of Vermont before a meeting of ministers in Chipman Hall recently, pronouncing that State "a good one to be born in."

"My prohibition ideas took root in that home life where everything was simple living with high thinking. I have never forgotten the training," he said

I quote this because there is more or less of a helter-skelter life in the modern city home. Some of our best men today were born on farms.

They endured hardships. But they were trained by them. I wish that every city-bred boy and girl could be apprenticed out to farm life between critical ages.

If we want to make them more stable in their manner of living, we want to get them back to the farm life. Our schools cannot do this. Governor Foss got his start on prohibition up on the farm. It was impressed upon him.

What I am driving at is this: There are more educational opportunities on farms for the moral training of youth than they will find in city life.

Judge Thinks More of Parents Than Crime

Editor Boston American:

A judge that I know, should cooperate more in his decisions with Capt. George A. Parker, registrar of motor vehicles. Auto speeders, auto thieves and drivers of autos under the influence of liquor seem to gain his compassion, when they need severe punishment.

It should not make any difference whether the parents of these offenders are respectable citizens or not. When their sons constantly break laws, they should be judged by what they have done, not by the disgrace, it may bring upon their relatives.

If the disgrace is to be considered more than the character of the offense then I say such judges are a hindrance to the work of Capt. Parker.

Agrees Mill Owners Run Some Churches

Editor Boston American:

Occasionally truth flares up on matters which few venture to talk frankly upon.

Rector B. Spofford of the Episcopal Church League for Industrial Democracy broke the silence when he declared, that mill owners run many churches. Is he right?

Of course, mill owners in several sections of this state will declare as they do in the South. "This is not true."

I am consious that there are some mill owners to whom this will not apply, but there are others who have their hands upon the churches and ministers and hold them in check. Often they make life miserable for them, driving them out of town as they did sometime ago in this state when a clergyman advocated the eight-hour day instead of the twelve-hour day.

This mill owner actually forced the minister and his family out into the world, because he pressed the eight-hour day.

Rector Spofford, you're right and if the shackles were off other clergymen they would rise up and shout; "Bravo, for your frankness."

ONE WHO KNOWS.

Says This Country Ripe for Snobbery

Editor Boston American:

Prof. Rogers of "Teeh" cannot give up his talk of being a snob. Some of his personal friends have twitted him about it and called for the soft pedal.

There are red-blooded Americans who laugh at European snobbishness. No one believes in that phrase of the Declaration of Independence that "all men are created free and equal."

Several families of high standing right here in Boston who claim descent from one of the signers would add to that phrase above, "and may be trusted not to remain so."

Snobbery is ripe in this country. Look at titles that we have to face: "supreme high potentate," "grand masters," "Exalted rulers," "Wizards," "Magisters," "archons," "caliphs." The greatest snobbery institution in the United States is at Washington, D. C., where you can buy degrees to follow your name at $15 per without any college education.

Clergymen Should Get Real Knowledge

Editor Boston American:

The Boston minister who urged in his address at the 20th Century Club, that preachers without any charge should aspire for political offices, is on the right track.

If you want to know what politicians are up against in these days, get a political office. If ministers would serve in these positions, they would in many cases, be versed in what politics involve and what politicians have to face.

Clergymen who are holding political positions and rubbing shoulders with politicians, getting an experience in this type of work, will have a better view of their difficulties and will be better equipped to weigh them than to preach against politics of today without any experience of this kind.

Boston. ONE OF THEM.

Lawyers Should Assist President

Editor Boston American:

I would like to call your attention to this: The American Bar Association, through its executive committee, has refused to collaborate with an organization of lawyers in an effort to prevent the enforcement of the Jones Law!

This is done on the ground that it is unbecoming for a lawyer to advocate non-enforcement of any law. Why then don't they follow this advice by actively cooperating with President Hoover's Commission for Law Enforcement.

I would like an answer to this.

Wants Men in Smith College

Editor Boston American:

Something was said in your news columns recently about coeducation in the modern colleges, with special praise being awarded to Boston University

Prof. S. Ralph Harlow of Smith College, in speaking lately before the Massachusetts College of Agriculture, said:

"If I had fifty per cent of the men in the classes at Smith College there would be more thinking done by the students. "Women put some punch into idealism. Men are too practical. Our colleges without coeducation are undemocratic.

"Every word of that, I endorse." Amherst. INSTRUCTOR.

Denatured Alcohol Case Is Puzzler

Lowell, Nov. 22—The question of whether possession of specially denatured alcohol by a person not holding a federal permit constitutes a crime was argued before U. S Commissioner Richard B. Walsh, who reserved his decision.

So far as is known the question has not come up before, and neither H. B. Swearington of Boston, counsel for the government, nor Atty. W. J. White of this city, counsel for two defendants involved, could produce any cases or decisions to guide the commissioner.

The hearing was the result of the arrest of two Lawrence men here Sept. 9 after 50 gallons of alcohol were found in their automobile. The men are Guiseppe Chiarenzo and Salvatore Battiano, who twice were discharged on complaints of illegal transportation of liquor, once in the State and once in federal court.

New York Moves to End Plane Crashes

New York, Nov. 22—Police Commissioner Whalen announced plans designed to reduce the likelihood of future airplane accidents like that in which a plane struck a mid-town building, killing Charles Reid, a private pilot.

He will confer shortly with representatives of the department of commerce to try to increase the minimum altitude at which a plane may fly over the city, from 2000 feet to 7000 or 10,000. This, he said, would enable a ship with motor trouble to glide to a landing beyond the congested district.

Seek to Enjoin Securities Sale

New York, Nov. 22—The Providence-Washington Insurance Co filed in Supreme Court action seeking to restrain F. B. Keech & Co., brokers, from disposing of $38,690 worth of securities which the insurance concern claims it purchased through Mandeville, Brooks and Chaffee, Providence, brokerage firm which recently failed.

The insurance company said the Keech firm acted for the Providence brokers in the purchase of the stock and that the Keech firm now claims a lien on the ground of indebtedness against the firm.

Sent to Reformatory for Killing Husband

Houlton, Me., Nov. 22—Mrs. Elizabeth Nelson an Indian pleaded guilty in supreme court to a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of her husband last September, and was sentenced to the Women's Reformatory at Skowhegan.

The Aroostook County Grand Jury originally returned an indictment for murder against Mrs. Nelson, the state charging at the time that her husband was stabbed to death in a drunken row in their Haynesville shack. The charge was later changed to manslaughter, to which she pleaded guilty.

Film producers declare that school teachers will be eliminated, and six hours' instruction will be accomplished in three hours, when full advantage is taken of talking pictures.

It is probably true—already the children learn more from Clara Bow in five minutes than a school teacher will ever know.

In one way, the movies will do away with illiteracy—as well as literacy.

"COLONEL" MAPLE LEARS SCHEME TO GET HIS MONEY

... Clara Bow in "Points of Sin," departing ... Middle ... society in 1900

I ACKNOWLEDGE that I became nervous in the closed carriage with Mrs Bigmount. I was anxious to learn what had become of Clara Middle Society's girl who the Colonel thought was trying to wring a proposal of marriage from him; and I asked Mrs Bigmount if she had broken a leg, which seemed to quite flout the "old flame." She looked at me like "six bits." Then she began by saying "Colonel (bear in mind, reader, that the title, "Colonel," attached itself to me anatomy after I came into possession of my aunt's money), you know that Clara Middle came from Missouri and was not used to the 'ins and outs' of society, therefore, Colonel, she could not hold her own among the giddy society of the capital of the United States, consequently she is missing."

Reader, imagine a society that is so giddy that innocent womanhood is forced to retire! I was but "under the color," so I turned to Mrs Bigmount and . . .

Honesty Wins Hub Boy Rewards First Day on Job

Air Romance, Better Than "Chickie"

What Has Happened

MARY PATRICIA DAWN, beautiful, young brunette, meets the lad of her dreams in the person of Guy Elliott, aviator. Guy is developing a perfect airplane in the plant of old William Bryce. Happy days follow with Pat and Guy in love. Then comes Barbara Bryce, young widow of Bryce's son, with her seductive lure. Later Guy receives a visit from Barbara and her young son, upon whom old Bryce rumored a fortune. Tom Burns, a workman, rages about the unfairness of wealth. His invalid son is dying for want of necessities. When Bryce refuses a loan, Burns swears revenge. He robs the office safe and is captured after a gun fight. Preparations are being made for Pat to enter college. Hearing much gossip about the youth of today, Mrs. Dawn prays that Pat will remain the sweet girl she is. Pat has a gay time with a rich young student, Lee Templeton. Then Pat's father catches pneumonia and is dying.

CHAPTER 15

It rained all afternoon—a soft May shower. Then the sun came flaring out, flinging a gay, audacious farewell.

Now leaves gleamed in the moonlight and drops fell from the branches.

Pat felt them in her hair. She stood quietly, her hand in Guy's. And her heart full to bursting.

"Don't feel so, Pat, dear."

"It's past the time, Guy. He should be better. It's eight days now."

"But he holds on. He's determined to live. That counts."

"Oh, he'll live," said Pat, her face white, a mere flicker of white in the dark.

There was a kind of whiteness in the quiet of her voice, a wild terror that made him now put his arm about her—

"I've not thought for a moment that he won't be better, Guy. I wouldn't dare. It couldn't be."

No! The day would not dawn when Richard would pass. Others may die, but not this one of ours. Death may walk near and beckon. We will not see!

These days would pass and with them the terror, the dark nightmare unreality. They would all be laughing again in the sunny garden.

Pat went back to the house and slowly up the stairs. No matter how often she approached her father's room, she had always to fight this tugging reluctance. Her heart denied that Richard lay in there struggling.

Here, near the threshold, the grating rasp of her father's breath became audible. She didn't grow used to this.

And she didn't grow used to the look in Richard's eyes. Blue, dear eyes that were always agleam with humor, sandy lashes curling about them youngly. Hardest of all to bear was their pitiful anxiety now as he called for Laura, for the doctor. He clung to them.

For was Richard's friend. Twenty years they'd been friends. She came now and fought for her father's life. Every night he was here, and every morning. He—these men with him.

When Pat reached the room, the doctor was sitting at the bed. Her father lay on his back, his face flushed and bearded. The sandy growth made him look hopefully gaunt. His eyes were open and fixed, the pupil of the right greatly dilated. They gave him a frightened air. He was incoherent and seemed fighting off some creature to whom he pleaded.

"I won't go! He thinks I'm going. I'm not!"

Moments of fitful sleep. Then his lips moving feverishly.

Oh, if he could but sleep — if he could have that deep rest they awaited. And the fever would leave. Like a miracle the pain would be done. He would smile up at them—the old Richard again. Any moment now this awaited crisis should come, should bring the heavenly relief.

Pat sat there in the shadow and watched the doctor. He had his fingers clasped about her father's wrists, and he looked before him with an almost grim intensity.

Finally he rose. He whispered something to her mother and stepped noiselessly from the room.

Pat stole after him.

"Is he better?"

"He's holding his own. Just that."

"Isn't that enough? You said it was wonderful the way he fought the way he bore the pain."

"Yes. It is wonderful."

"Well?"

The doctor spoke as though he hated the admission.

"The strain is bitter on his heart."

"You don't think," she pleaded, clinging to him—"you don't think—"

"Pat—I hope. There's danger—the very gravest danger."

"You felt his pulse, didn't you? I did, too. It's not faint."

"His pulse is very, very high."

Pat stood in the path listening to the wheels of the machine crunching over the pebbles. Then she crept along the hedge to the garage. She went and sat in her little car. She put her head down against the cushion and tried not to cry. But she remembered the

YOUTH FINDS PURSE WITH $300 CASH

Western Union Messenger to Receive Added Honors for Returning Money

While delivering a message on his first day of work as a messenger for the Postal Telegraph Company, Frank Lee, 16, of 43 Paris st., East Boston, picked up the wallet of John J. O'Connell, containing $300, railroad tickets to New York and other valuables, which he returned to the owner.

As a result of his honesty young Lee was given a reward of $25 by Mr. O'Connell, and is to be presented a wrist watch by Harold W. Gould, manager of the branch office of the Postal Telegraph Company at 49 Federal st., out of which he worked. In addition, he will be pictured in the magazine of the company.

Presentation of the watch will take place at a meeting to which all the local messengers of the company will be invited.

Another result of the boy's honesty is the visit of Mr. O'Connell to his mother in New York. The tickets in the wallet were for that purpose. The money in the wallet was all that O'Connell had. He had drawn his savings for the purpose of visiting his mother in the metropolis.

Here is the story told by young Lee:

"As I had just delivered a message at W. L. F. Stationery store in Frances st. and was going out of the revolving door to the street when I noticed an object being pushed by the door which I thought was a cigarette case. I stooped down and picked it up. A woman who saw me said: 'Give it to me and I'll take it to the manager.'

"I stood 'No.' I'd like to turn it in myself.' By this time I observed that the article was a man's wallet. I took it to the manager of the store. He opened it and found the name and address of the owner and said he would notify him. He took my name and address.

"An hour later the owner came to the messenger office where I am employed and gave me $25."

NEW ENGLAND IN BIGGEST BOOM

Dean Lord of B. U. Sees Boston Becoming Center of World Industry

"The frenzy of speculation has passed and the hot air inflation of stocks has subsided, leaving the country bewildered but definitely facing a decade of great, constructive progress."

Such was the claim made by Everett W. Lord, dean of Boston University's college of business administration, who spoke at the University Club before members of Beta Gamma Sigma, national scholastic fraternity.

Dean Lord recently returned from Washington, where he had a conference with President Hoover lauded the officers who surround the President and termed this the "first truly scientific business administration" for many years.

"As for New England," he declared, "This section of the country faces the most prosperous era. We have acquired a great number of new industries—which have effected losses which were but natural. By that I mean, that occasionally an industry passes for purely natural reasons.

"New England is once again asserting its virility. We're getting back where we belong. The opportunities here today are greater than they have ever been.

"I freely predict that Boston is becoming and will become as the natural and commercial center of world wide importance. We are rapidly shaking off evidences of stagnation which were manifest during the past generation. New England will rise to new and greater heights than ever before. We have the blood, the strength, the power and the ability to reach the summit.

"I believe that many persons have learned a lesson from the present crisis. They realize now that the frenzy of speculation has passed and the hot air inflation of stocks has subsided, leaving the country is bewildered but is very definitely facing a decade of great constructive progress.

"New England is ascending anew because it is employing the old-fashioned methods which have stood the test of time and is supplementing these with new principles."

IDEAL WEATHER FOR GRID FANS

Ideal football weather is in store for Greater Boston tomorrow it was announced today at the Weather Bureau.

The temperature will be about 35 degrees and the light rain which is expected will not come until evening.

The official forecast for Boston and vicinity is fair and continued cool tonight; increasing cloudiness and warmer on Saturday, possibly followed by light rain. The minimum temperature tonight will be near 30.

Snow is expected in the interior of Southern New England tonight with snow or rain on the coast. Present indications are that it will snow in Northern New England tomorrow.

Temperatures are slightly higher today in Northern New England. The minimum temperature for Boston was 30 degrees, the lowest recorded here this season.

The lowest temperature in New England today was recorded at Greenville, Me., where the mercury registered eight degrees above zero.

Found Coat in Arctic, MacMillan Reveals

Commander Donald B. MacMillan, famous arctic explorer in an address to the students of Boston University's college of liberal arts said that he will make his 13th trip north in the interest of botanical and entomological studies in June.

The noted blazer of Arctic trails traced the history of Arctic exploration for the students. On one of his trips, he said, he found a perfect vein of coal, 25 to 30 feet thick, which, under the microscope, showed remains of great sequoias, like those that grow today in California.

Winchester Tower Appeal Is Denied

The Winchester Board of Appeal announced its finding against an appeal of Harry G. Friend and other citizens from the permit, issued Aug 27, for erection of a steel water tower by the Water and Sewer Board in Symmes Park.

The board announces that it fails to find any warrant in law to justify revocation of the permit.

To Hold Freshman Essay Contest

A competitive essay contest for the freshmen at Boston College has been announced by Fr. McDermott, S. J., freshmen dean of the college.

The essay work is part of the course being given the freshmen and must concern B. C. directly or indirectly, but at the same time be of human interest. Prizes of $15, $10 and $5 will be awarded.

3 Bold Adventurers Are Gone Again

POLICE HUNT 3 RUNAWAYS

Colletta George, 10, her brother, Simon, 7, and James Burns 11, all of Savage ct., East Boston, champion rovers of the Noodle Island district, were being sought by the police again today.

The children, whose previous Odysseys ended last summer when they were found curled up with dog, Leo, under a Lynn veranda, have been missing since Wednesday morning.

They started for school, and as far as their parents were concerned, had every intention of going there.

They failed to reach their destination, however, and also failed to return home, with the result the police were notified. Another blow was the discovery by Mrs Beatrice George, mother of Colletta and Simon, that $20 was missing, leaving her only with 9 cents.

Colletta wore a dark chinchilla coat with black shoes and stockings, and her brother a red and green sweater and gray pants. Neither wore a hat. James Burns had on a sheepskin coat.

Sign-Seeking Tufts Boys All Signed Up

As a fraternity initiation stunt 10 Tufts College students early today began hiking to Portsmouth, N. H., collecting en route as many signs of all descriptions as they could appropriate.

They reached Saugus, on the Newburyport turnpike, possessing an unbounded enthusiasm for their task and approximately 55 signs. A few read, "Plimpton St." "Eggs for Sale," "Chow Puppies," "Russet Apples," "House and Lot, inquire Within," "Danger" and "Detour."

In Saugus a resident, awakened by the advancing army hoped to window in time to see "No Trees

BLAMES AGENT IN RING THEFT

A magazine solicitor was blamed for the disappearance of a $300 single diamond engagement ring by Mrs. Charles D. Kanaly of Shepard st., Cambridge, in her report to Cambridge police.

She told police that someone knocked at the door of her apartment while she was busy in a back room attending to her baby who is sick. When she did not reply to the knock, she said, the person opened the door and announced that he was selling subscriptions to a household magazine. She told him that she was busy and could not see him.

TIME TO PLAY NEEDED BY WORKERS

"Working people should be given some time off to play while on the job. This leisure time will bring big returns to business."

This paradoxical advice was given to the New England Council today by William Butterworth, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

"When I say working people I mean all of us," he continued. "People are refreshed after a rest or a change, and will do better work."

Another suggestion this national chamber head made was to preserve public parks.

"If time long be encroached," he continued, "that parks enhance the monotony of any land, thus yielding true taxes to the municipality and boosting the sales value of the property in the vicinity."

PEOPLE WANT SUNSHINE.

Mr. Butterworth said this was true "because people are willing to pay for sunlight, beauty or surroundings. They like an opportunity to enjoy wholesome exercise, a scene of growth and a contract with things of nature."

"If every New England industry would institute effective forms of co-operative market analysis, many future failures would be averted for certain," he would be lessened, and present profits would be permanently maintained and increased," declared Col. Frederick H. Payne, president of the Greenfield Tap & Die Company, at the opening this morning of the industrial Group Conference.

Col. Payne told the conference that the basis of participation in conducting both an analysis could be had only in co-operative effort, and he offered the services of the council's industrial committee to any New England industry now organized or ready to organize on a New England basis, which desires to co-operate trade promotion activities.

BIG RECREATION INDUSTRY.

"Reports received from every section of New England indicate that the recreational industry has had during 1929 the best season ever known," declared Col. William A. Barron, in opening the recreational group meeting.

Col. Barron pointed out the fact that New England's cash income from the sale of recreation is estimated to be $1,000,000,000 annually, and emphasized the fact that the industry is important to New England as a means of increasing cash income, permanent taxable wealth, and increasing the sale of New England's agricultural and industrial products.

Establishment of business men's institutes" to study methods of closer co-operation in New England industries today was urged by A. Lincoln Filene of Boston.

Such institutes, he might mean the elimination of economic waste and a constructive basis for all business through fore which producers, distributors and the public would derive the maximum benefit," said the speaker.

In Mr. Filene's opinion, this institute should consist of equal numbers of manufacturers and retailers. Meetings should be at regular intervals.

BIG RECREATION BUSINESS

Maine Made as an example of the possibilities of advantage of organized recreational development, Former Governor Ralph O. Brewster of that State spoke on "Merchandising Recreation" to the recreational development group meeting.

Outdoor sports [illegible] number [illegible] ago, he said. "These [illegible] brought more than half a million people and [illegible] nearly $20,000,000 to the State of Maine. A million [illegible] Quarter Million came to Maine this year and distributed [illegible] of money to guests.

The best market for New England chambers of commerce to cultivate in order to build up the industrial strength of the community is the home market," Henry D. Sharpe, president of Brown & Sharpe Manufacturing Company, of Providence, and chairman of the Rhode Island Division of the New England Council, today told the community development meeting.

The speaker advanced several recommendations for New England communities seeking industrial development.

"New England has distinct assets which are advantageous to industry. Each community in New England has assets peculiar to itself.

SEE CLUE TO REINSTEIN SLAYERS IN CAPE COD VICE EXPOSE

U. S. AGENTS CHECK DATA IN PROBE

Mrs. Pinkham's Agents May Be Grilled Despite Promise of Immunity

Expose of startling vice conditions along Cape Cod has uncovered evidence which may solve the slaying of Samuel Reinstein, chief of a tri-state "white slave ring" at the Hotel Huntington several months ago.

This was revealed today when it became known the federal agents investigating the Reinstein murder are closely checking data furnished by Mrs. Wenona Osborne Pinkham of the Massachusetts Civic League to substantiate her charges that vice is rampant along the Cape.

It is the belief of federal officials that the advanced vice conditions along the Cape may yet be linked with the extensive loop over which the slain Reinstein is said to have ruled.

The existence of this loop and the startling methods employed to maintain it were brought to light during the investigation following Reinstein's slaying.

MAY CALL PROBER

It was found that an organized traffic in women was supplying disorderly houses in a chain system extending from Pennsylvania through New York State and into Massachusetts.

Should further evidence of interest to them be uncovered along Cape Cod, Mrs. Pinkham's investigator, to whom she has promised immunity from court appearance, will probably be summoned to tell what they know, it was tacitly admitted today.

U. S. Atty. Frederick H. Tuttle said that primarily the conditions which Mrs. Pinkham alleged have nothing to do with the federal law enforcement agencies, except as developments may show vice conditions in some way related with inter-state transportation of contraband or women.

Dist. Atty. Winfield Wilbur of Plymouth County then assigned State Detectives Albert L. Brouillard of Whitman to the case, and instructed him to interview Mrs. Pinkham and proceed until he had run down every scintilla of evidence she possessed, or that he could dig out elsewhere.

BRISTOL PROBE OPENS

Dist. Atty. William C. Crossley of Bristol County, at Fall River, also started an investigation into conditions Mrs. Pinkham alleged.

Both Wilbar and Crossley although pressing their investigations, expressed regret that Mrs. Pinkham should have promised immunity to private investigators in such a case.

"I feel that no one should malign towns and communities without being willing to stand by their charges to the point of being willing to co-operate with police officials in bringing criminals to justice," District Attorney Wilbar said.

FIREWORKS AND "GAS" TRUCKS RAPPED

Fire Chiefs Would Allow Only the Licensed to Handle Fireworks

Proposal that the statutes be changed to make illegal the setting off of fireworks by the general public on the 4th of July, 17th of June and similar holidays, was made by the Massachusetts Fire Chiefs' Club to the special commission on fire prevention at a conference in the State House.

The fire chiefs would confine the setting off of fireworks to licensed individuals or organizations as a means of bringing a reduction in loss of life and property from fires.

The chiefs called attention to the fact that legislation of a similar character already is in effect in other states, notably Michigan, and has brought about a pronounced decrease in the number of holiday fatalities.

If it develops that such legislation cannot be enacted in Massachusetts, the chiefs believe regulations governing the use of fireworks should be tightened.

It was brought out that while firecrackers are smaller than they were formerly, they are much more powerful. Chief S. R. Allen of the Brookline fire department, president of the fire chiefs' organization, said that conditions under which fireworks are sold in Massachusetts constitute a public disgrace.

The commission was also asked to recommend legislation for the regulation of vehicles transporting gasoline and oil through public streets. The manner in which gasoline and oil are now carried, the chiefs said, constitutes a real menace to public safety. Tank cars, they believed, should not be permitted in congested areas.

Chiefs of some of the smaller communities told of the obstacles placed in their way in the administration of the fire laws by local officials and politicians.

Pleads for Return of Pup

Marguerite Sweeten, 14, of South Boston, afflicted with infantile paralysis, is sad because her closest pal, her dog, Gyp, has disappeared. She has appealed to Boston Evening American readers to aid her in locating the missing pup, pictured here.

The Boston Young Men's Hebrew Association will open its annual public concerts and forum meetings next Sunday evening at headquarters, Seaver st. and Humboldt ave., Roxbury.

The first speaker of the series will be Rabbi Harry Levi of Temple Israel, who will speak on "What Shall We Do With Our Bible?" Samuel N. Finkel will preside.

The right gargle

Here is the treatment doctors advise when you have a sore throat: dissolve two tablets of Bayer Aspirin in quarter of a glass of water, and gargle. That always gets action! The relief is immediate. It takes out the soreness, and reduces the infection. There's nothing like it for a gargle, or nothing like these tablets for breaking up a cold, headaches from any cause; read the many uses for Bayer Aspirin in proven directions that are found in every package. Quick, and harmless relief if you're suffering from neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism, etc. Get the genuine. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer manufacture of monoaceticacidester of salicylicacid, but all you have to remember is the name Bayer.

Girl Cripple Saddened by Loss of Pet Dog

Deprived since infancy of a child's right to run and play Marguerite Sweeten, 14, of 19 Ellery st., South Boston, an infantile paralysis victim, asks readers of the Boston Evening American to aid her in the search for her closest pal, "Gyp."

Gyp is only a dog. He has no pedigree. Perhaps he can't scrap with some of the huskier "mutts" around his neighborhood, but he was Marguerite's best buddy.

He disappeared a week ago last Tuesday. A long time for a little girl to be without her faithful companion, especially when an iron brace and two crutches prevent her from romping around with the other kids.

She goes to school every day at the wonderful institution on St. Botolph st., Back Bay, where there are other youngsters who can't race around. Marguerite smiles with them too, until "Gyp" comes into her mind, then she's sad.

He's a tiny brindle pup with long, pointed ears. His four paws are white and he sports a white "waistcoat" on his chest. On his collar is the name "Sweeten." If you see him, please take him back to her.

$10,000 TO DAD IN BOY'S DEATH

A jury in the Middlesex superior civil court at East Cambridge awarded a verdict of $10,000 to Ralph E. Peak, Sr., against Thomas H. Cannon of the Woburn Express Co. for the death of the plaintiff's son, Ralph E. Peak, Jr., on June 8, 1927.

It was claimed that a truck of the defendant killed the boy. The verdict is the maximum sum permitted by law in a case where there is no conscious suffering.

3 HURT IN CRASH OF OPPOSITES

Injured in a collision between a $25 sedan and a $15,000 limousine on Main st., Edward Gronroos, 40, Bowker st., driver of the sedan, at the Norwood Hospital, with his name on the danger list.

It was necessary for Dr. John F. Martin to take a total of 17 stitches in wounds in his head, chin and face.

Adolf Hellman of Bowker st., riding with Gronroos, is at the same hospital with 16 stitches in his scalp and over his right eye.

Only minor injuries were sustained by the chauffeur of the limousine, William Chapman of Westbury, N. Y., who was driving the car over the road from New York.

Says Emotions Rule in Politics

"In political controversies man lets his emotions rule him," Dr. Wayland F. Vaughan, professor of psychology at the Boston University college of liberal arts, declared in an address to students at the B. U. school of medicine.

Dr. Vaughan based his talk on data gathered from about 700 letters sent into a Boston newspaper in a forum conducted to obtain the views of the people in regard to the presidential candidates in 1928.

Stock Slump Hit Diamond Market

Cape Town, Union of South Africa, Nov. 22—Ever since the securities market in the United States took its slump the demand for big diamonds, which were being cut here, has fallen off.

In fact, experts here say that the falling off of stock prices in New York has been felt keenly by the diamond cutters in Cape Town and it is expected that the government may be asked to help organize assistance.

"It is wonderful, so wonderful," Mrs. Page said today. "I can now do my housework without outside aid. My arm is nearly as strong as it ever was."

Three-year-old Effie May Sargent, who had been unable to walk normally almost since birth, showed further improvement today after having again been taken to the grave of Fr. Power.

The little girl who, previous to the first two visits to the grave a few days ago, had been forced to walk on her toes, is now able to romp about, placing her feet squarely on the ground. The sight of the child playing with her dog astounded not only her parents, but residents of the neighborhood in which the Sargent family live.

Her parents are becoming convinced that a complete cure of the child's deformity will be effected.

Tests Show Amesbury Boy's Partial Cure

Amesbury, Nov. 22—His deafness in one ear nearly restored after a visit with his parents to the grave of Rev. Patrick J. Power in Holy Cross cemetery, Malden, 10-year-old Clayton Golden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Golden of 2 Leonard ct., is to be taken there again in the hope that a complete cure will be effected. He is now regarded as 90 per cent cured.

The lad, who is a pupil in the third grade of St. Joseph's school, had been deaf in one ear the past five years. In his first visit to the priest's grave last Tuesday and while offering up prayers, young Golden told his parents he felt a cold chill come over him, and when he arose he was amazed at the discovery he could hear.

A test of his hearing was made by observers at the grave after he had arisen from prayers by covering his good ear with a hand and speaking into the afflicted ear. So last hearing through the ear in which he had so long been deaf, replied to numerous questions put to him.

Victim Refuses First Aid

Lawrence, Nov. 22—Miss Bertha Karim, 18, of 33 Bruce st., refused first aid treatment last night after she had been struck and injured by an auto truck operated by Joseph Grillo of 552 Hampshire st.

Old Boston in Pictures—No. 114

The Boston Athenaeum building as it appeared in 1849 (the date of its completion) flanked by structures of colonial design. The building, which a few years back was rebuilt and made fireproof, now houses upwards of 200,000 volumes, many of which cannot be duplicated. Among the books is included the library of George Washington, purchased at a cost of $4000 in 1848. The Athenaeum society grew out of the old Anthology Club and was incorporated in 1807.

BOY BATTLES FOR LIFE

Lowell, Nov. 22—Suffering from a fractured skull and in a semi-conscious condition, Frederick Qualey, an 18-year-old youth of this city is fighting for life at St. John's Hospital. Qualey, with Raymond F. Higgins, 19, also of this city, was in an auto which crashed into a pole in Suffolk st. early yesterday morning.

Higgins was placed under arrest for drunkenness by police attracted to the scene by the crash and his case has been continued to Nov. 27, bonds of $10000 having been set.

Amesbury Teachers in Play Tonight

Amesbury, Nov. 22—The three-act comedy, "The Family Upstairs," will be presented in high school hall tonight under the auspices of the Amesbury Teachers' Association. The advance sale of tickets is large.

The cast is composed of Ellen Riley, president of the association; Mary Moran, Gertrude Burns, Marjorie Williams, Mary Mullen, Arthur Davis, Hyman Kaufman and Bertram Holland.

First Denatured 'Alky' Case Tried in Lowell

Lowell, Nov. 22—U. S. Commissioner Richard B. Walsh of this city has under advisement the first case ever argued here involving the possession of specially denatured alcohol by persons not holding federal permits.

The defendants in the action are Guiseppe Chiarenzo of 67 Union st., Lawrence, and Salvatore Battiano of 9 Portland st., Lawrence, who were arrested in this city on Sept. 9, when 50 gallons of denatured alcohol were found in their car. It is claimed the alcohol had been unlawfully diverted for bootlegging purposes.

H. B. Swearingen appeared for the government and Atty. William J. White for the defendants. It was admitted that the defendants were not authorized permits. The commissioner will give his decision on Nov. 26.

'JAKE' SMITH IS FINED

Newburyport, Nov. 22—Pleading guilty to driving without a license, Howard E. (Jake) Smith, 48, of Smithtown, N. H., former Newburyport High School athlete and Dartmouth track man, was fined $10 by Judge Nathaniel N. Jones in the district court. Smith was arrested by Inspector Roy B. Chase.

All in One Grave

New York, Nov. 22—As he begged in his farewell note the bodies of Dr. A. A. Augustine, 40, prosperous dentist, and the wife and 10-year-old daughter he killed in a jealous rage because Mrs. Augustine had asked legal separation are to be buried in one grave.

CHEST DRIVE IS OPENED

Lowell, Nov. 22—The Lowell Community Chest drive for funds for the 14 charitable and social welfare organizations affiliated in the association, has passed the half-way mark, and the campaign committee now believe that the total amount of $157,700 will be collected or pledged by the end of the week.

Up to the present time, $82,544.38 has been pledged, and the committee reports to be filed late today probably will increase this total to a considerable extent. Reports of the campaign workers are being made every afternoon at luncheons in the Memorial Auditorium.

Newburyport Bans Post Season Game

Newburyport, Nov. 22—Storing a post-season game for Newburyport High were demedied by school officials last night and they said that under no circumstances would there be another game after the Peabody battle on Thanksgiving Day.

Local officials were told that Amesbury desired a post season tilt, but this would not be given any consideration.

It is felt in this city that Newburyport can get along well without Amesbury High on the schedule and this was shown this year.

Haverhill Danger Corner to Stay

Haverhill, Nov. 22—The City Council may not take any action this year on the petition of numerous citizens to eliminate a dangerous corner at Arlington and Mill sts. Alderman George L. Martin, highway commissioner, having reported that it would cost at least $4000 for this work.

GOODWIN FLAYS INSURANCE AT METHUEN

Board of Trade Is Told Rates Are Too High, Zoning System Unfair

Methuen, Nov. 22—Frank A. Goodwin, former state registrar of motor vehicles who did more than any other one man to bring into force the compulsory automobile insurance law, flayed the system in his characteristic manner before a meeting of the Methuen Board of Trade held here last evening.

The flaws in the present plan of regulating insurance rates and the handling of the system, Goodwin declared, can be divided into classes and placed each under one of four general divisions.

In the first place, Goodwin declared, the present rates are too high. Second, the zoning law governing automobile rates is not proper and causes automobile owners living in congested areas to pay a much higher rate than own ers in outlying or sparsely populated sections.

Third, the system has resulted in too many crooked claims made against policy owners and fourth, it has caused a congestion in the civil courts which is problematic.

Goodwin's bill, which asks the establishment of a state fund for automobile insurance was introduced before the legislature by Representative Carl Woekel of this town.

2d Offense Gets Autoist One Month

Lowell, Nov. 22—Fletcher L. Mahoney of Billerica was sentenced to serve one month in the House of Correction at Lawrence when he appeared in district court to answer a complaint charging a second offense of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

A fine of $50 was imposed for operating after his license had been revoked and an additional $5 fine was imposed for drunkenness. It was claimed by Billerica police that Mahoney's machine was in a collision last Sunday.

7000 TO VIEW NEWBURYPORT, SALEM CLASH

Visitors' Record Makes Them Favorites; Two Local Stars Are Out

Newburyport, Nov. 22—Newburyport is ready to play host tomorrow to the largest crowd that will have ever paid to witness a single event of any kind in the city tomorrow when the high school elevens of this city and Salem clash for the 24th time in 33 years.

Salem high is the favorite to win before the crowd that will approach the 7000 mark.

Today the 2000 capacity collapsible stands, hired from the Salem park department, were erected and the seating capacity of the South End stadium was thereby increased to 5600. Standing room will be available for about 1800 fans and counting the teams, bands, ushers, police and others the estimated attendance will be about 7000.

The Newburyport team today wound up a week of strenuous work with a light drill and the entire squad is in good shape. Two star linesmen, Tom Flaherty a tackle and Oscar Gilman a guard, who were injured in previous games, will not be able to play as has been definitely announced.

The Newburyport eleven, with seven victories and two defeats charged up for the year's work is quite confident of a lead battling Salem although this is not expected by hundreds of fans in view of the apparent strength of the opposition that has won nine games without a defeat this fall and that has rolled up 221 points to the opposition's 33.

The Newburyport team will start as follows: Whalen and Raynolds; ends; Browne and Lyons, tackles; Capt. Blakely and Donahue guards; McCurdy, center; Pollard, quarterback; Canepa and Caddoo, halfbacks and Godfrey, fullback.

Tomorrow's game will start at 2 o'clock.

Miss Pond Buried

Newburyport, Nov. 22—Funeral services for Miss Alice M. Pond of 34 Market st., who died at the age of 55, were held this afternoon from the home of her brother.

1000 in Mill Taxes Abatement Plea

Billerica, Nov. 22—A petition bearing the signatures of more than 1000 residents of this town was presented to the board of assessors last night asking that an adjustment be made on the taxes of the Talbot mills in North Billerica so that this concern would not go through with its announced plan to discontinue its plant here and move elsewhere.

President Edward McMillan and a committee from the Garden City Improvement Association presented the petition and stated that another one now in circulation already has more than 500 signatures.

Following receipt of the petition, the assessors went into a private conference, but did not come to any agreement.

Reports current in the town today are that one member of the board now is in favor of making an abatement in the mill taxes, whereas formerly the board was unanimously opposed.

Elks Memorial Service on Dec. 1

Lowell, Nov. 22—Lowell Lodge of Elks will hold its annual memorial service on Sunday evening, Dec. 1. A Chesley York of Medford Lodge, an assistant U. S. district attorney, has been secured as speaker for the services. The memorial service will be open to the general public.

AT THE DIAL

By THE RADIO EDITOR

A BRIEF and very matter-of-fact program announcement received in today's mail contains the germ of romance. The Columbia System announces the resumption of weekly broadcasts by the Curtis Institute of Music at Philadelphia, commencing tonight at 10:30. The program comprises three ambitious numbers. The first is Beethoven's "Egmont" overture, played by the Institute Orchestra. The second number comprises Movements 2 and 3 from Mendelssohn's E minor violin concerto. The third is from Tschaikowsky's Nutcracker suite, played by the orchestra. The violin soloist of the evening is indicated as Miss Carmela Ippolito "artist-student of Efrem Zimbalist." This announcement should arouse considerable interest in Greater Boston, and it should provide food for deep thought for countless ambitious young musicians.

YOUNG MISS IPPOLITO, a Boston girl, who tonight plays for a coast to coast audience, appears to have somewhat remarkable personality. Competent critics have passed upon her artistic ability, and only a few years in her teens, attained the proud goal of soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Her presence at the Curtis Institute is due to several factors. One is the small feat of winning a scholarship in open competition with 1000 of the best young violinists in the United States. Another factor is her own insistence in the face of Efrem Zimbalist's assurance that she needs no teaching.

PRAYER, fasting and meditation are a part of this remarkable girl's training routine. She has three days before her scholarship contest. She practiced seven hours a day in the garret of her home, high up in the skirts of Boston. Between hours of practice, she meditated upon those things which give life's true values. Wealth. Not glory. Not money. Not success. But beauty, perfection, self-mastery, and mastery of her instrument.

A GIRL who has ideas and ideals of this sort is made of the stuff which provided the world with real artists in Rodin, in Michelangelo, in St. Cecilia. Spirits who are burning in the light of perfection, yet immovable in their standards.

GLAZOUNOW'S "Slavonic Dance" will be heard in the Cities Service concert to be heard over WEEI and the NBC Coast-to-Coast System at 8 o'clock.

The Cavaliers, a male quartet, will be heard in the following interesting program which is under the direction of Rosario Bourdon: Ben Vivant, Zamecnik; Love Everlasting, Frimi, Gems from "Babette," Herbert, Let the Rest of the World Go By, Cavaliers; Slavonic Dance, Glazounow; The Chatterbox, MacKenzie; Piccolo Pete, Baxter; Traumerei, Schumann, violin solo, Sascha Fidelman. Dance of the Hours, from "Gioconda" Ponchielli; Mazie's in the Cold, Cold Ground, Foster, Cavaliers; The Sylphs, Lincke; Bells of St. Mary's, Adams, orchestra and Cavaliers.

A TRIADRAMA, entitled "Peer Gynt Reaches for a Suite" will be heard in the Triaders program, broadcast through WEZ and the NBC System at 9 o'clock. Joe Rines, director of the orchestra, sings "Collegiate Sam" and Chester Gaylord, whispering serenader, offers "Waiting at the End of the Road" and "I Sing All My Love Songs for You."

THE AMOURETTES of the Marquise de Montespan and Louis XIV of France will be dramatized in the Famous Loves program at 8:45. The sketch, accompanied by French music of the 17th century, will be heard through associated stations of the NBC System, including WJZ, WBZ and WBZA.

MARY AND BOB are in the foothills of the Alleghenies during the True Story Hour which goes on the air at 9 o'clock over the coast-to-coast stations of the Columbia System, attending an old fashioned wedding celebration. The radio audience will listen to a drama about one of the world's great unsung heroines—a cripple who battles for happiness against physical handicap and an unkind father.

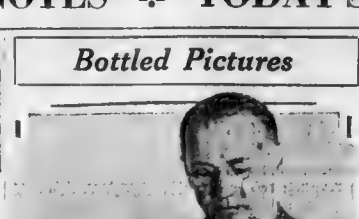
PHILCO'S Theater memories conclude Victor Herbert's "Mlle. Modiste" with the second scene of Act II, heard through WEZ and the NBC coast-to-coast system at 7:30.

BALLADS, negro spirituals and musical comedy rub elbows in the program which the Armstrong Quakers will broadcast through WEZ and the NBC Coast-to-Coast System at 10 o'clock.

Lois Bennett, soprano; Mary Hopple, contralto; a male quartet and an orchestra directed by Victor Arden present the program:

Here Am I from "Sweet Adeline"; I Can Do Wonders with You, from "Heads Up," ensemble; Sandman (Brahms), soprano solo, Lois Bennett; Memories (Van Alstyne), soprano and contralto duet, Lois Bennett and Mary Hopple; Somewhere a Voice Is Calling, trumpet solo; Would God I Were the Tender Apple Blossom (Irish traditional); Little David, Go Play Your Harp (quartet); Egyptian dance; Parade of the Wooden Soldiers (orchestra).

Bottled Pictures



This bottle-like object is a cathode ray tube which forms the receiver of the new type of television invented by Dr. Vladimir Zworykin; Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. research engineer, who is holding it. The broadcast pictures appear on the round end of the tube and from there are projected on a mirror in view of the spectators.

Weekly H. S. Hour Popular on WLOE

Featuring high school bands, orchestras, glee clubs and individual artists, and with one professional guest entertainer, and a guest speaker on the program, the Junior Record high school broadcast each Saturday evening from 6:30 to 7:30 p. m. from Station WLOE, is the latest hit of local radio entertainments.

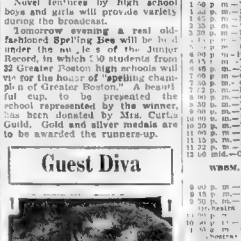
A series of winter radio programs by high school students with professionals from Boston theaters started two weeks ago, has attracted the thousands of listeners throughout Metropolitan Boston.

Plans for microphone appearances during the Junior Record High School Hour by prominent men and women of New England and talent from local vaudeville houses, have been completed.

Novel features by high school boys and girls will provide variety during the broadcast.

Tomorrow evening a real old-fashioned Spelling Bee will be held under the auspices of the Junior Record, in which 30 students from 32 Greater Boston high schools will vie for the honor of "spelling champion of Greater Boston." A beautiful cup, to be presented to the school represented by the winner, has been donated by Mrs. Curtis Guild. Gold and silver medals are to be awarded the runners-up.

Guest Diva



MME. LOUISE HOMER

During the Atwater Kent Radio Hour Sunday evening Mme. Louise Homer, American contralto of the Metropolitan Opera and concert stage, will be a star attraction. Mme. Homer, one of America's greatest operatic and concert stars, makes at least one appearance yearly in the Atwater Kent Hour. Her program Sunday night will include an unusual variety of numbers.

Twice a Night Now for Amos 'n' Andy

Amos n' Andy, whose change in program time resulted in a threatened boycott throughout the West of the toothpaste-they sponsor, will be heard twice nightly in the future.

The new arrangement becomes effective next Monday. The program will be heard from 7 to 7:15 o'clock (Eastern Standard Time), each night except Sunday through a network of eastern stations associated with the NBC System including WBZ, from 10:30 to 10:45 o'clock (Central Standard Time), fans tuned to 20 stations throughout the West may hear the program repeated.

SEX APPEAL, "LUNATIC FRINGE" SCORED AS HARMFUL TO WOMEN

Courtesan Arts Are Out, Mrs. Alice Ames Winter Says

The "lunatic fringe of womanhood is but a passing fancy. It is but short-lived. Women's ability to bamboozle men into getting what they want is no longer the yard stick for measuring her success.

Mrs. Alice Ames Winter, past president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, claims that sex has been relegated beyond recall as woman's chief weapon of success.

"We have stopped measuring success in women by their ability to bamboozle men and to get what they want out of them by mere play of sex to the detriment of souls of both sexes, "she says. "Those are the arts of the courtesan, whether they are exercised by a wife or by a woman of the streets."

In commenting on Thanksgiving, the day when we offer reverent appreciation for our life's goods, Mrs. Winter extolled the big part women have today in the contribution of opportunity and responsibility. She extolled "sex" as the "best thing in our social life when it goes with fair play on both sides, when the mind and soul and body each contribute to its glory."

Neither sex is happiest when it puts something "over" on the other, she continued. For she holds that "permanent friendship marching side by side with love makes the successful sex relation, and friendship involves respect, character, honesty as well as high emotion."

Mrs. Winter is an outstanding figure in the national life of clubhood She piloted the General Federation very successfully, laying the cornerstone for future marvelous administrations and feminine progress.

"It is not by chance that the expressions 'friend wife' and 'friend husband' have come into our common parlance of late years. That kind of marriage came once in a long time in the Old World, but now it is part of the common fate of many thousands of men and women—friends, mates.

HAMBLIN HATTER

"What Roosevelt called the 'lunatic fringe' is common enough in such a tumultuous time of rapid change as ours. We see the lunatic fringe of women and girls in scanty attire and playing the everlasting old sex game of mindless and short-lived allure; but the lunatic fringe is only the part of womanhood that lifts and falls in the wind along the edges. It is not the garment in which womanhood wraps itself. My faith in women is not the result of mere dreams.

"I have an idea that there are more happy marriages than ever before. In old days women were hailed into marriage by force. The great glory of the church has been that she has striven to make us realize that all the fundamentals of life are sacraments. When we build marriages whose binding power is love, we fulfill that ideal. As, in this age of unexampled upheaval and change we are creating that standard we pay the price that the lunatic fringe exacts, but we are on our way to the finer forms.

"It is valuable to note that in the marriages of college women, the proportion of divorces is very small. This indicates that the trained woman is a help and not a menace to the permanent home. The rottenness of the lunatic fringe marriage shows up as never before. Self-control is the price we must pay for liberty. The hope of the future is that more and more people are willing to pay it. It is worth the price.

LADIES' UNITY CLUB

Mrs. Frank Rogers was chairman of a successful luncheon and bridge at Mrs Gracia Richardson's Food Shop, Boylston st., today, and a large contribution was again made to the general fund, which subsidizes the maintenance of the Home for Aged Couples in Roxbury the chief philanthropy of this organization.

WOMEN'S CITY CLUB

"The Romance of Chippendale and Sheraton," a motion picture based upon the lives of the two great cabinet makers, will be given tonight at 8 p. m. under the City Club's auspices. Many authentic Chippendale and Sheraton pieces will be shown in such historic settings as Harew House, the ancestral home of Princess Mary's husband. An explanatory talk by H. W. Engholm, director, will accompany the film.

ST. JOSEPH'S GUILD

The regular monthly meeting of the Guild of St. Joseph's Home for Aged Women takes place at the home, Center st, Dorchester, Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m. Final details for the annual Christmas bazaar to be held at the home will be planned, and this year the project gives promise of tremendous financial success. As usual, the proceeds will go toward supplying the Christmas dinner and celebration for the inmates, and also to filling 75 Yuletide baskets, which are distributed to needy elderly people of deserving character throughout the city. These people are the special cares of the guild each year at Christmas time.

The Swedish native costume was aptly portrayed by a doll, dressed by Miss Birgit Helimer, and exhibited at the Swedish bazaar in Horticultural Hall. Miss Hellmer is holding the doll. (Staff photo.)

The Rev. Fr. Edward McDonough of St. John's parish, Quincy, will speak to the guild members at the Sunday meeting. Mrs. C. Lee Christian has arranged an attractive musical program, under the direction of John Mahon, organist at St. John's, Quincy, with a quartet from the choir

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB OF MASS.

Tomorrow at 10 45 a. m. Miss Janet Richard gives the second of her lectures of the season to members. She speaks on "Public Questions: Home and Foreign." The activities department has charge of the program.

At 2.30 tomorrow afternoon, William M. Emery, editor, author and lecturer, will give an illustrated lecture on "Longfellow's Wayside Inn" in the assembly hall of the clubhouse, Beacon st.

BROOKLINE WOMAN'S CLUB

The education department, Mrs Frederick S. Fogg, chairman, has charge of the program at the meeting next Monday at 2:30 p. m., in Whitney Hall. Miss Mary McSkimmon, principal of Pierce School, former president of the National Education Association and Mass. Federation of Teachers and member of many educational committees, will talk on "Education for Character."

Mrs. Richmond Gordon is hostess for the social hour and Mrs H. Clayton Beamon, Jr., and Mrs. George B. Chapman are to preside at the tea table. The musical program will be offered by John S. B. Archer, tenor soloist of the Harvard Instrumental Club.

BARNSTABLE WOMAN'S CLUB

At 3 p. m. members will meet in the club room for a business session. Half hour later the program will continue, under the direction of the public health committee, Mrs. T. P. Lewis, chairman who will introduce as the speaker of the day Dr. Gaylord W. Anderson, of the department of public health. "The Protective Value of Vaccines and Serums" is his subject. Mrs. T. W. Swift, music chairman, will present Mary Faulkenham of New York City in two groups of songs. Mrs. J. Henry Clagg is to be hostess.

Dr. Anna C. Palmer of the State health department and a member of the Mass. State Board of Health will discuss "Public Health" for the club members at the meeting next Monday at 2:30 p. m., in Chicatabuot Hall. Mrs. Paul A. Eaton, president, will preside.

PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S CLUB

Announcement is made of the Literature and Library Extension department meeting to take place in the Georgian Room, Hotel Statler, next Tuesday, from 3 to 5 p. m. Mrs. Oscar C. Lenk, chairman, says it is the first meeting and will be featured by a lecture on "Literature and Culture of India," given by Sunder Joeni.

Miss May Taylor, lyric soprano, and Miss Lucile Monaghan, pianist, will offer the musical program.

Edward A. Weeks, Jr., director of the Atlantic Monthly Press, and chairman of the Massachusetts Commission for Revision of the "Book Law," is also scheduled to speak briefly. Mrs. Lenk will be assisted by Mrs Nelson W. Howard, Mrs. A. Julien Rowan, Mrs. William B. Mitchell, Mrs. Jeanette Bell Ellis, Mrs. Wallace Star King, Mrs. Nicholas Richardson, Mrs. H. B. Campbell, Mrs. E. B. Kinsman, Mrs. G. W. Benway and Mrs. E. H. Woodward. Members may invite friends.

READING WOMAN'S CLUB

On Thanksgiving Eve, the club will sponsor a dance in Security Hall for the benefit of the scholarship fund. Mrs Percy N Boeseler of the executive committee, has charge of the affair.

Organized in 1901 affiliates with the State Federation in 1903 and with the general federation in 1906 the Reading Woman's Club now has a membership of 425 with a waiting list of more than a hundred women. Mrs Stanley R. Stembridge heads this fine organization, whose roster of activities includes every form of social, civic, philanthropic and educational pursuit.

Boston College 2 to 1 Favorite to Defeat Terriers

HUB RIVALS BATTLE FOR CITY TITLE

THE annual warfare between Boston College and Boston University for the city title, which will be staged at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon, gives promise of turning out to be one of the best grid battles ever waged between these Hub colleges.

Boston College is a 2-1 favorite. But Boston College and Boston University are apt to take the field evenly matched.

B C is ordinarily four touchdowns superior to B U. If they were running for the Terriers they'd probably make a big killing. But the Maroon and Gold objective game with Holy Cross is listed one week from tomorrow and B C will be forced to take every precaution.

It will be the finale for the Terriers. Although badly smacked about this season B. U. will become hysterical if it should whip B. C. Seasonal success would be complete with a win tomorrow. It's their objective clash and they're primed for it.

B. U. HAS PROSPECTS

Boston University has every facility for becoming a real football institution. They've the grounds the coaches and equipment. And with 14000 students, it is one of America's largest universities. But there is no enthusiasm. Coaches Reggie Brown and Ed Robinson have done wonders with what they have.

Phil Hootstein, former English high school star, has been doing some tall running for B U. Good Schofield men have worried B. C this year. Gillespie of Villanova, McElligott of Marquette and Murphy of Fordham have all managed to work their stuff on the Eagles. Hootstein, dark and flashy, may give B C more bother if he gets any help from his mates.

The Terriers have another good pack in Francis Walke, who was running mate of Cheesy Antos of [illegible] at Salem high. But Walke [illegible] ankle, aggravated tooth may not [illegible] the Eagles. He's a strong defensive back and a fine tackler. B U offense, too, will lose a good deal of its punch if this ball-carrier is out.

B. U. LINE OUTWEIGHED

Boston University's line will be outweighed by the Boston College frontier. And it is not near as experienced as the Eagle forward wall. But the B U line, under tutelage of Hilary Mahaney, former Holy Cross wingman, is a scrappy outfit and may make up in [illegible] for its lack of beef.

[illegible] something to win and [illegible] knows it. It is not too mighty. Boston College wants to wallop B U. The Eagle cohorts and [illegible] would like nothing better [illegible] and every man on the [illegible] will be holding back prospects unnecessarily in an effort to be at the peak for Holy Cross.

Coach McKenney is going to start his very best eleven and play them the full route if he has to. A defeated by B. U would demoralize his team for the Crusader clash. And he'll even inject the injured captain Creedon if he sees that the tide of battle is not favoring his charges.

Both rivals are doing a bit of worrying about the weather. Coach Joe McKenney had to practice indoors after the snowstorm and feels that unless winter makes a quick departure his team may suffer.

Boston College's weight would favor them but their passing and running games would be useless on a sloggy field.

Komar Objects to Lou Magnolia

Joe (Bull) Komar informed Billy Avery that he would not go through with his scheduled match with George Calza, the Italian champion, at Mechanics Building next Wednesday night. Lou Magnolia, the famous boxing and ma[illegible] official, is selected as the third man in the ring.

Avery guaranteed Komar that another official would be secured.

Komar, according to Avery, is confident he can defeat Calza. The powerful Lithuanian has been angling for a bout with the Italian for the past three years. Two summers ago they were matched in Philadelphia, but Calza sustained an injury to his right leg and the bout was called off. Avery experienced considerable difficulty in bringing the pair together.

What promises to be another sensational tussle on the all-star program is the Carl Pojello-Glen Wade tiff.

"FAREWELL TO ARMS"

William G. Caldwell, varsity center for Princeton, with his bride, the former Miss Mary Folk, leaving on the S. S. Fort Victoria for a honeymoon in Bermuda. They were wed secretly October 12. When the referee's whistle ended the Princeton football season after the Yale-Princeton game it also ended the college career of William G. Caldwell. The Tiger center will not remain to finish his college course in June, but will enter the business world immediately upon his return. (International Newsreel photo.)

TUFTS OFF FOR AGGIES GAME

The Tufts eleven departs on their second trip to Amherst this afternoon in order to play their 25th game with the Massachusetts Agricultural College. Coach A. Thur G. Sampson has announced that the entire first string squad will make the trip in buses.

At present the total number of men is 28, the Jayvee team which has rated with the first stringers all season having turned in their suits after the freshman-sophomore struggle last Wednesday.

The Tufts-M A C. struggle is particularly interesting this year since it embodies a play off after the two teams have come to a deadlock in 24 contests. Each team has emerged a victor on 11 occasions, the other two being ties. The Medford college, however, has a considerable margin on points scored.

In addition to the above interest the probability of one of the best contests in the history of the colleges seems to be promised by the apparent equal calibre of the contenders. For the past three years the Jumbo teams, led by "Fish" Ellis have proved far superior to their rivals, but this year has every promise of a turn in affairs.

Grange and Gang to Play in Memphis

Memphis, Tenn., Nov 22 (INS)—"Red" Grange, the "Galloping Ghost" of collegiate gridirons only a few years back, will be seen in action here for the first time Saturday, when the Chicago Bears find opposition in Clarence Saunders' undefeated Tigers.

Grange will bring a galaxy of former college football stars here to meet a team composed largely of former southern collegiate warriors, including Larry Bettencourt, all-American, and Ricky Moore, "Dixie Flyer," of Loyola fame.

Bruins Permit Owen to See Game

George Owen hasn't missed a Harvard-Yale football game for years and he has played in three of them. Despite the fact that the Bruins are playing in Montreal tomorrow night, and that the squad leaves tonight, George will not miss this 1929 game either.

Permission was granted him last night by President C. F. Adams and Manager Art Ross to stay in Boston and see the game.

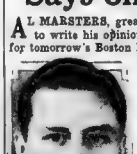
Yale Blacklists Ticket Sellers

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 22—H. F. Woodcock, general manager of the Yale Athletic Association, announced that discipline has been applied by the association to two Yale juniors who disregarded the warning on personal use of Yale-Harvard football game tickets. The names of the students were not revealed.

Mr Woodcock said that a student whnas tickets were found in the hands of a spectator and another who sold his for $20 had been blacklisted.

Read What Marsters Says on H-Y Game

AL MARSTERS, great back of the Dartmouth eleven, is to write his opinions of the Harvard and Yale teams, for tomorrow's Boston Evening American. A spine injury has put Al out of football permanently, but he played against both Harvard and Yale this year, and he has an exact knowledge of the ability of the Crimson and Blue squads.



AL MARSTERS

Marsters has recovered from his injury sufficiently to attend classes. He will travel to Philadelphia with the Green squad one week from Saturday, when Dartmouth goes to play the Navy eleven.

Al Marsters, while playing football, was a genius at sizing up players of the other teams and their modes of attack. Consequently his opinion of the relative merits of the Harvard and Yale teams carries weight.

YALE TEAM SHOULD WIN ON RECORD

By RALPH GILROY

Former Princeton Star and All-America Halfback

ALONG about 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon when the referee's whistle blows and with 60,000 spectators jamming every available bit of Stadium space, two of the finest football teams in the East will go into action.

One of these elevens, Yale, will be striving to round out a successful if not brilliant football campaign. The other, Harvard, will be striving to bring joy to all her supporters by the one method which counts most in the Crimson scheme of things, a victory over Yale.

A summary of Yale football season to date shows five victories to the credit of the big Blue eleven. Vermont, Army, Dartmouth and Princeton have gone down before the driving power of the Yale running attack.

An early season reverse to Georgia is the only black mark on the Yale ledger, and a tie down between the Dartmouth and Princeton games when the brilliant Albie Booth was withdrawn from the Eli lineup, gave Yale only a 13 to 13 tie with Maryland.

THE Crimson record this season is not so outstanding as is that of Yale. Four victories have been chalked up by Horween's team, two of these being against Bates and New Hampshire, lighter early season opponents, and the other two wins being against the lesser of the Crimson's major opponents Florida and Holy Cross.

Harvard's record against her major mid-season opposition has not been so good with two losses to Dartmouth and Michigan and one tie, that with the Army eleven.

IF football contests were played on past records or on paper, Harvard could hand over the laurels to Yale without even a struggle. But past football history has demonstrated, and particularly is this true of a Harvard-Yale contest, that when these rivals get together, they battle on virtually even terms.

The Yale team is being installed the favorite for tomorrow's battle at 10 to 8, but from now till game time the odds will probably close up to 10 to 8, which seems about the proper odds to favor the Blue in looking over the past performances of the two rivals.

TITLE BOUT AT ARENA MONDAY

The middleweight championship of New England will be decided next Monday night in the Arena when Joe Zelinsky and Willie Oster, the thumping twins, meet in a scheduled 10-round battle to settle their rivalry.

Col. Bob McKirdy of the Arena A. C. announced he has signed Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska Wildcat, to meet the winner, so that Boston is to have another great series of middleweight battles.

The preliminary card includes Charlie Parker, popular South End lightweight, who will meet Henry Janco of Lawrence in the eight-round semifinal bout. Janco beat Young Nadeau at the Arena three weeks ago in a red-hot scrap, and will probably be a slight favorite to beat the hard-hitting Parker.

Tom McNeeley of Cambridge and Harry Allen of Brockton, former amateur heavyweight champions, will clash in the featured six-rounder, and hundreds of followers of amateur boxing will be on hand to watch their rivalry being settled.

In the other six rounders Frankie Messina of the South End will be paired with Goodie Swartz of Cambridge and Dick Powell of Roxbury with Tom Quigley of Cambridge, while in the opening four rounders, Tommy Rawson of East Boston will meet Young Brown of Bristol, R. I., and Bob Sarno of East Boston will face Irish Jimmy Hoag of Syracuse.

William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, stated today that no action has as yet been taken with regard to naming the head football coach at Harvard for 1930.

"I have not yet spoken to Coach Horween as to the question of his possible continuation as head football coach, nor has Mr. Horween said anything to me about it. "No action will be taken at this time, nor will anything be done in this matter until after the football season is over."

It is believed, however, that Horween will be asked to remain for at least another year.

Senators Defeat Blackhawks, 6 to 5

Chicago, Nov. 22—Fighting a great uphill battle after a weak start in the first period, the Ottawa Senators kept their national professional hockey slats clear with a 6-5 overtime victory over the Chicago Blackhawks.

BOOTH TO START AGAINST HARVARD IN STADIUM CLASSIC TOMORROW

THE Bulldog is in town.

Immediately upon arrival, the Yale squad hustled out to the snow splashed concrete enclosure across the Charles and held their only practice session before entering the classic battle of the year.

The entire facilities of the Locker Building and Soldiers' Field were turned over to the New Haven invaders. The Harvard squad, which is now considered in the peak of condition were not seen except for a fifteen minute final drill in which they practiced a few kick offs.

Yale looked every inch the 10 to favorite that the dopesters figured they would be. The big blue squad seemed in high spirits as they romped over the Stadium turf.

Immediately after practice Mal Stevens saw his cohorts hustled into waiting busses and the team returned to their quarters at the Hotel Lenox in Boston. Here they will remain until the time comes for it [illegible] to hold their [illegible] tomorrow.

HORWEEN NAMES TEAM

Harvard, the host, rests today, ready to make the supreme effort of season tomorrow. Coach Arnold Horween is satisfied that his crimson personnel changes are in every respect fit to put up their best battle tomorrow.

Although Paul Barnett of the Yale Athletic Association announced that all of the members of the squad with the exception of Lesser, guard, were in good physical condition Head Coach Mal Stevens declined to make any statement relative to Albie Booth's condition. Booth himself, dismissed questions as to his condition with the remark, "See Stevens."

Barnett said that Booth would be started against Harvard, but a

Christner Choice Over Maloney in Big Bout Tonight

RIVALS EACH TO TRY FOR KAYO WIN

By JACK CONWAY

KAYO CHRISTNER, king of the Akron tire pits, and Jim Maloney of South Boston will punch it out in a 10 round bout at the Boston Garden tonight.

Jack Conway

Christner, by virtue of his recent victory over Ernie Schaaf and his great showing against Jack Sharkey, will go to the post a favorite. There are many close followers of the fistic game who are of the opinion that Christner's crushing right hand punch will wreck the hopes of Maloney.

This contingent of fans points out that Christner is a much better puncher than Johnny Risko who recently stopped Maloney in Cleveland.

The chief argument which has been hurled back at the Christner rooters is Maloney's record of 15 straight victories in Boston & Providence rings, Shamus has not done so well. He lost on a foul to Jack Gagnon in New York and was outclassed by Risko in Cleveland.

It is another story, however, when Jim is battling before the home town folks. He has a better mental attitude when he is doing his stuff in Hub rings.

TEX Maloney who has won 16 bouts in a row here is a steady, cool boxer and a dangerous puncher. Jim may not be the greatest heavyweight that ever lived, but there are few fellows beating him. He has had plenty of ring experience, is a good boxer for a big fellow, while he punches hard with each hand.

If Maloney can protect his chin against his opponent's thrusts, he is a poison for most of the heavyweights.

BABE RUTH, who, like Christner, once attended St. Mary's Industrial School in Baltimore, is expected to be at the ringside.

Paul Gallico, sports editor of the Daily News of New York, is also in town for the match. Paul loves his heavyweight mills.

THE entire preliminary card promises plenty of action. In the 10-round semifinal, Hub fans will get their first peek at Emmett Rocco of Elwood City, Pa., who meets Marty Gallagher of Washington. Rocco recently beat Johnny Risko in Cleveland and this will be his first appearance in a Hub ring.

In addition there will be two six round bouts as well as three four rounders on the card, and five heavyweight bouts will be included.

QUITS JOB AT B. C.

Frank Reynolds, graduate manager at Boston College, who admits his resignation has been turned in. Reynolds has been in charge of athletics at the Heights for the past ten years.

Track Men on Grid

There are three track stars in the Colgate squad and all are backfield men. They are Stollwreck, Hart and Duignid.

The Cubs had three hitters in the first six in the National League this year—Hornsby, Stephenson and Cuyler.

BRUINS PLAY AT MONTREAL TOMORROW

The National Hockey League has its famous rivalries, but none has been more keen in the last 10 years than that between the Bruins and the Montreal Maroons.

Their game at Montreal tomorrow night will be furiously fought is something that is taken for granted.

In more ways that one the Montreal game will be looked upon with interest by the entire hockey world. The new rules have made several changes in hockey play, and whether or not they have succeeded in stopping teams which like to body check will be proved after the Maroons-Bruins two-game series is ended.

The Maroons were doing little body checking when they swamped the fast skating Canadians on Tuesday night.

The Maroons a year ago never fulfilled their early season promise, but this year's squad is away to a nice start. It is made up almost entirely of the same members who played a year ago.

REYNOLDS QUIT JOB AT B. C.

Frances A. Reynolds, graduate manager of athletics at Boston College for the past 10 years has resigned that position to enter business.

Mr. Reynolds today confirmed the report that he intended to give up a position as faculty manager of athletics at Boston College.

"I have had my troubles with the faculty and we could not seem to agree, so I sent my resignation to Rev. Fr. James Dolan S. J., president of Boston College," said Mr. Reynolds. He added, No doubt I will hear from Fr. Dolan before long in regard to the resignation."

Mr. Reynolds is a graduate of Boston College, class of 1916. While an undergraduate at Boston College he was first baseman on the baseball teams of 1913 and 1914 and was manager of the football team of 1915. During the war he served as instructor in army aviation.

With Frank Reynolds, Mal Frank Cavanaugh, football coach, and Jack Ryder, track coach, came to Boston College.

Babe Will Cheer for Christner, Old Teammate

"Babe" Ruth, baseball's home-run king, and K. O. Christner, the hardest punching heavyweight in the ring today, who were battery mates in their younger days at St. Mary's Industrial School, Baltimore, will meet again tonight at the Boston Garden. Christner was Ruth's first basketop when he broke into baseball, and the Bambino is expected to occupy a ringside seat when Christner clashes with Jimmy Maloney.

Ruth, who is in the Hub for the Harvard-Yale game, admits that he has never seen Christner in the ring, and for this reason he is anxious to be on hand for tonight's bout. Ruth and Maloney always have been staunch friends.

Sonnenberg Tosses McGill; Keeps Title

GUS SONNENBERG defeated Pat McGill in straight falls at the Boston Arena.

The first fall was in 1 hour 49 minutes 31 seconds when McGill, trying to finish an aeroplane whirl, fell backward under Sonnenberg and the latter obtained a fall by the means of a top body hold when McGill was partially stunned by the back of his head banging the mat.

Up to this unusual ending, McGill had the better of the match, apparently, and in that time Gus did not land one of his effective flying tackles or butts.

The second fall, however, was made in 7 minutes 14 seconds on a series of flying tackles or butts to the stomach, the last of which was followed by a top body hold pinning Pat's shoulders to the mat.

Shortly before the first fall, McGill threw Sonnenberg through the ropes and out of the ring. The latter showed some heavy lacerations and a couple of cuts on the back of his shoulders when he came back into the ring about 2 seconds or more.

The 45-minute semifinal between Joe Malcewicz and Joe Di Vito was a draw. It was announced that Di Vito meets Strangler Lewis at the Opera House next Thursday night.

Henri Digiane took a fall from Harry Mammus in 36 minutes 15 seconds with a body lift and [illegible]

Ed George threw Ivan Ludtke in 30 seconds with what was announced as a body lift and slam. Mike Nazarian and Freddie Meyers went 15 minutes to a draw and so did John Grandowich and [illegible] Wagner.

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

UNDEFEATED TEAMS SEEK STATE TITLE

WALTHAM is ready for the coming of the B. C. high eleven tomorrow when the teams battle to keep their perfect records intact.

There was some doubt, the first of this week, whether or not Bill Pendergast, star halfback of Waltham, would be able to play against the Eagles this Saturday, because of a terrific blow in the head, received by the Watch City back last Saturday in the game with Newton.

Pendergast has been out practicing all week with his mates, and judging from the pep he shows, is in top form for this tough game with the Maroon and Gold clan.

Pendergast is one of the finest backs in the State, and his presence in the Waltham backfield, in good condition, makes the task of the B. C. high eleven about twice as hard as it would be if the Waltham star could not play.

This flashy back can do anything well. He not only runs with the ball, but also throws and catches passes, and interferes for his mates. As an interferer he has few equals, and B. C. high boys are going to have a tough time getting at the ball carrier if Pendergast is interfering for the boy with the pig-skin.

Razz Miele, quarterback of Waltham, is a good field general, and Krol, halfback, is a fit running mate for Pendergast.

Stan Krol has not received much attention this year because the flashy work of Pendergast gets most of the cheers of the fans, but Krol is one of the best of the fine crop of high school backs of 1929.

Bill Gerrie, kicker and fullback of Waltham, is the fourth in order of the Watch City backfield. He is a powerful back and does a splendid job backing up the line for Coach Lahey.

All the regular backs, and all but two members of the Waltham line, graduate next June. So the boys naturally want to wind this season with a state title. They will fight hard to win tomorrow.

B. C. High's fine first string line-up is intact for the game. The Maroon and Gold eleven played Brookline last Saturday and won as it pleased by a 30 to 0 count. The game was little more than a good workout for the Boston high school team.

Captain Maurice Kelley and Buzz Harvey, tackles of B. C. High, rank with the best school tackles in the state. The rest of the line is good. The line is distinguished by its alert play and courage rather than by the weight or experience of the boys.

Cronin, Stapleton, Soffriti and Ott, backfield of Art McManus' team, start against Waltham tomorrow afternoon.

A win for B. C. high may mean an out-of-the-State trip for a post-schedule game. That gives the Eagleta a bit of added incentive in this game.

This B. C. high-Waltham war should be one of the best of the school football season.

JOE CRONIN

BUZZ HARVEY

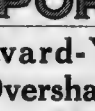
Cronin, fullback of B. C. high, is one of the stars of the Maroon and Gold eleven which plays Waltham high at the Watch City Stadium tomorrow afternoon. Harvey, tackle of B. C. high, is fast and capable. Neither B. C. high nor Waltham has been defeated this season. The winner of the game may be State grid champion of the year.

Harvard-Yale Game Overshadows All

By BILL GRIMES

OUTSTANDING among the college contests scheduled for this week-end are Yale-Harvard, California-Stanford, Notre Dame-Northwestern, Purdue-Indiana and Fordham-Bucknell.

Naturally, the Harvard-Yale game in the Stadium will be of the greatest interest to the alumni of these institutions through the world, as well as the followers of the game in the East. Regardless of the success or failure of Harvard and Yale during their seasons, the annual Crimson-Blue conflict is one of the greatest classic offered in football.



Bill Grimes

Out at Palo Alto, the University of California, which, although it has a scoreless tie by St. Mary's College, has not met with a defeat this season, will play Pop Warner's Stanford outfit.

California is rated with the strongest teams in the land, but even so, and despite the setback Stanford bumped into last Saturday when Santa Clara slipped over a most unexpected victory, the Golden Bears realize that they are in for one of the toughest battles of the season.

PURDUE PLAYS INDIANA

Considerable interest is centered around the Purdue-Indiana game, which will be staged at Bloomington. Purdue is one of the six undefeated, untied teams in the country.

They have won four Conference games, which insures them of their first Big Ten title, but Jimmie Phelan is set upon tipping over Indiana, which team eliminated Northwestern for the Conference fight last week.

After the Boilermakers' victory over the Wildcats from Evanston, which, by the way, was their first Big Ten win of the season, Purdue cannot afford to take any liberties with the Bloomington outfit. Just the slightest display of overconfidence might bring about the downfall of Purdue.

Dick Hanley will wind up his season at Northwestern this week playing the great Notre Dame eleven. Having lost two conference games, Minnesota and Indiana, Northwestern seeks a victory over Notre Dame as an out for their poor showing.

Bob Wildsmith have one of the strongest teams Hanley ever coached, but slumped badly in the final quarters against the Gophers and Boilermakers. On the other hand, Notre Dame has swept all opponents in sight, in spite of the fact that they have played every game away from home and traveled to Atlanta, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, and made two appearances in Chicago.

FORDHAM IN FINAL

Fordham has met some tough opponents this season and although twice tied they have not suffered a defeat. However, in Bucknell, the Pavanaugh eleven is facing one of the strongest teams in the East. In an early season game, Bucknell was defeated by Washington and Jefferson, but since then, the team has come fast and the Fordham Rams must be at the very peak of their game to order to keep their slate clean.

Fordham is in fine condition and primed for tomorrow's battle which may be the final one played under Maj. Frank W. Cavanaugh. Besides the Purdue-Indiana game, there are three other Big Ten games listed for tomorrow which picked up a new lease of life after out-lucking Harvard, tackles Iowa in a game which will mark the final appearance of the Cornbuskers in Western Conference competition.

Ohio State and Illinois will tangle up at Columbus and Minnesota will entertain Wisconsin at Minneapolis.

Boston University and Boston College will engage in their annual battle tomorrow at Fenway Park, while Tufts will journey to Amherst to wind up its season with Massachusetts Aggies.

HARD GAME FOR BROWN

Coach Tuss McLaughry of Brown has an assignment on his hands in the University of New Hampshire. Brown is aiming for Cotgate, another great eleven, but McLaughry cannot afford to take any chances with the Bearcats. Coach Bill Cowell has developed a wonderful small college team at Durham and Brown must use its first string players in order to stave off another defeat.

The service teams, Army and Navy, are playing the Wesleyans, Ohio and West Virginia, respectively, while two old-time rivals, New York U and Rutgers are due for an encounter in the New York area.

There will be two elevens from the Northwest in action in the Middle West today, for the University of Washington is in the Windy City to play the University of Chicago and Oregon State and the University of Detroit are to battle in Flivvertown.

Most of the Southern teams will be idle tomorrow but the University of South Carolina and Florida will settle their difficulties at Columbia, S. C.

NOTABLES TO SEE TIGERS PLAY REDS

RHODE ISLAND REDS, the "Flying Frenchmen" of the Canadian - American League, undefeated this season in three league games, will descend upon Boston tomorrow to oppose the champion Boston Tigers in the first Can.-Am. League game in Boston Garden.

The Reds, led by Art Chapman, the "Gliding Ghost" of hockey, and "Gizzy" Hart, former Canadian left wing, have pulverized every defense they have met with a stream of clever forward passes, and faster than at any time in their history, expect, however, to use the Providence entry as a stepping stone to their customary position at the top of the league.

The Boston team can gain a tie with the Reds by victory tomorrow, while the Hubs can draw to a full games ahead of the pack by beating the Tigers.

Before action starts Judge James E. Dooley, president of the league will present to the Boston team the Fontaine Cup, which it won in play-off competition with these same Hubs last season.

Other invited guests are Governor Allen, Mayor Nichols, Mayor-elect Curley, members of the Harvard and Yale football teams and members of the Harvard hockey team.

Miss Maribel Vinson, national figure skating champion, will give an exhibition and music will be furnished by the 30-piece Stetson Radio Band which played at home games of Boston Bruins last season.

Hargrave Comes to Yankees in Deal

St. Paul, Nov. 22—Eugene (Bubbles) Hargrave, manager of the St. Paul American Association baseball club, will go to the New York Yankees next season as a catcher in exchange for Pitcher Wilcey Moore, Outfielder Ben Paschal and Catcher Cedric Durst, Grabowski, it was announced by P. J. Conway, president of the St. Paul club.

Hargrave came to the Saints a year ago from the Cincinnati club of the National league. He led the association in hitting most of the season, but was forced second well settle their difficulties at Co- this a final averages with a mark of .360.

YALE ARRIVES FOR BIG GAME

hip injury will probably keep Loeser out of the game.

There was no evidence of a limp in Booth's walk, but he appeared to favor his left leg, the source of his trouble, when he climbed into the car.

Horween named his official starting lineup today, and the Harvard eleven will have full strength to meet Yale's attack.

This New Haven outfit has many pounds on Harvard. The Yale line with the exception of the two ends, Hitchcock and Barres, just misses the 200 pound mark on the dressing room scales and Pipo Greene tips the bar at 205.

Harvard's line averages about 195. On dry turf they can move around fast enough to make Yale dizzy, but on the other hand a wet field tomorrow will spell their doom.

The field itself, incidentally, has been carefully protected from the ill effects of the season's first snowstorm. The entire playing area was carefully covered with tarpaulins, and not enough moisture to wet a whistle sneaked through the canvass.

Fighting B. U. Team Will Face Eagles

A STRONG spirit of optimism prevails in Boston University's football camp concerning Saturday's game with Boston College at Fenway Park.

Every member of the Terrier squad from Head Coach Reggie Brown down to the lowliest substitute are looking forward to the clash with the Eagles and firmly believe that B. U. will take the measure of B. C.

To the casual observer, this display of confidence on the part of the Terriers is entirely without reason. This conclusion seems only logical when comparing the records of these two elevens for this season.

West Point, New Hampshire, Springfield, Tufts, and Holy Cross have all pinned defeats on B. U. while Vermont, Worcester Tech, and Geneva have bowed to the Terriers.

Fordham and Marquette are the only teams to conquer B. C. and Villanova earned a tie. The Eagles on the other hand have defeated Catholic University, University of Maine, and Duke.

A 20-6 setback at the hands of Marquette was the biggest score against B. C. while Holy Cross routed B. U. 44-12 only two weeks ago.

B. U. MUCH IMPROVED

On paper the Terriers haven't a chance in the world of clipping the Eagles' wings but Saturday's game will be won or lost on the gridiron field and since the Holy Cross game, B. U. has improved 50 per cent.

The B. U. coaching staff of Brown, Robinson, and Mahaney have done wonders in the last four weeks and have instilled the fight and pep into the team which was lacking earlier in the season.

The showing of the team was a revelation to the faithful Terrier fans who had witnessed some of the previous defeats of the team.

B. U. downed Geneva 13-0 but the scores done not begin to tell the story of the superiority of the local team over the visitors from Beaver Falls, Pa., or of the complete reversal of form over the Holy Cross rout of the week previous.

READY FOR B. C. PLAYS

The Terriers were powerful against Geneva but still not good enough to entirely satisfy the coaches. More improvement has been noted in the eleven as a result of the practice sessions this week and B. U. should show to its best advantage of the season tomorrow.

A defense for Boston College plays has been stressed most of all in recent drills but in the final practice today, the Terrier coaches will give a last polishing to the offense.

YALE SHOULD WIN ON RECORD

to the physical and mental conditions of the two squads.

In a hard fought contest that lasted through 60 minutes of play there must be present in the players a vast store of physical energy to be drawn out. When a team starts tired and starts to crack, it is a very easy matter for the opposition to make large gains and easy touchdowns.

Admittedly, Yale has the bigger and harder charging eleven. With the same dash and drive which Yale put on against Princeton in that second half, Harvard would be in for something like a whitewash afternoon, even granting that the Crimson is a stronger team than Princeton, and has the greater replacement strength.

THIS point was clearly demonstrated in last Saturday's clash at the Bowl when Princeton, after playing Yale even for half the game, grew tired in the second half and allowed the New Havenites to slip through for easy gains.

BUT the question is how much did that Princeton battle last Saturday take out of the Blue eleven? Just a year ago tomorrow a mediocre Crimson eleven rolled all over a flat-footed Yale eleven in the Bowl and came out with a 17 to 0 victory. True, Harvard beat Yale that day, but the actual beating was administered the previous Saturday at the Palmer Stadium, and Yale left her football energy on the Princeton field at the end of that struggle.

The first 20 minutes of last Saturday's game at the Bowl between Princeton and Yale was no jink ters pay, but how much or how little it took out of the Yale players will be demonstrated tomorrow afternoon.

Whereas it is my thought that Yale will not have as much dash and fire as she had against Princeton, it should develop that, after a somewhat less strenuous struggle against Holy Cross in which the Crimson regulars played but half the game, the Harvard team should be in the pink and raring to go.

GOOD GOLF

BY CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

The change changes slightly when using the irons. The grip with the wood is just firm enough to give you a sense of complete command over the club. When you swing an iron your grip should be a bit firmer. It does not become vise-like, yet it should be firm enough to enable you to keep your grip of the shaft while the club-head goes through the ball and the turf. Also the wrists stiffen up somewhat, there being less wrist action with the irons than with the wood clubs. In fact, I always teach as good practice to take the irons back with the thought of using no wrist breaking at all in the back swing. Up near the top the back swing will, of course, draw up the slack in your wrists, but there should be less of this with the irons than with the woods. Partly because the back swing is shorter—partly because you want to be a little firmer.

Howard Ehmke to Stay With Macks

Philadelphia, Nov. 22—Howard Ehmke, veteran Athletic pitcher and hero of the 1929 World Series game with the Cubs, who had indicated that he might retire from baseball, announced that he had reconsidered and would again be with the world champions next year.

Ehmke made his announcement after a talk with Manager Connie Mack. He plans to devote considerable time to the coaching of young pitchers, but will be prominently identified with baseball.

THE NEW HAVEN R.R.

NOTABLES TO SEE TIGERS PLAY REDS

RHODE ISLAND REDS, the "Flying Frenchmen" of the Canadian - American League, undefeated this season in three league games, will descend upon Boston tomorrow to oppose the champion Boston Tigers in the first Can.-Am. League game in Boston Garden.

The Reds, led by Art Chapman, the "Gliding Ghost" of hockey, and "Gizzy" Hart, former Canadian left wing, have pulverized every defense they have met with a stream of clever forward passes, and faster than at any time in their history, expect, however, to use the Providence entry as a stepping stone to their customary position at the top of the league.

The Boston team can gain a tie with the Reds by victory tomorrow, while the Hubs can draw to a full games ahead of the pack by beating the Tigers.

Before action starts Judge James E. Dooley, president of the league will present to the Boston team the Fontaine Cup, which it won in play-off competition with these same Hubs last season.

Other invited guests are Governor Allen, Mayor Nichols, Mayor-elect Curley, members of the Harvard and Yale football teams and members of the Harvard hockey team.

Miss Maribel Vinson, national figure skating champion, will give an exhibition and music will be furnished by the 30-piece Stetson Radio Band which played at home games of Boston Bruins last season.

Hargrave Comes to Yankees in Deal

St. Paul, Nov. 22—Eugene (Bubbles) Hargrave, manager of the St. Paul American Association baseball club, will go to the New York Yankees next season as a catcher in exchange for Pitcher Wilcey Moore, Outfielder Ben Paschal and Catcher Cedric Durst, Grabowski, it was announced by P. J. Conway, president of the St. Paul club.

Hargrave came to the Saints a year ago from the Cincinnati club of the National league. He led the association in hitting most of the season, but was forced second well settle their difficulties at Co- this a final averages with a mark of .360.

hip injury will probably keep Loeser out of the game.

There was no evidence of a limp in Booth's walk, but he appeared to favor his left leg, the source of his trouble, when he climbed into the car.

Horween named his official starting lineup today, and the Harvard eleven will have full strength to meet Yale's attack.

This New Haven outfit has many pounds on Harvard. The Yale line with the exception of the two ends, Hitchcock and Barres, just misses the 200 pound mark on the dressing room scales and Pipo Greene tips the bar at 205.

Harvard's line averages about 195. On dry turf they can move around fast enough to make Yale dizzy, but on the other hand a wet field tomorrow will spell their doom.

The field itself, incidentally, has been carefully protected from the ill effects of the season's first snowstorm. The entire playing area was carefully covered with tarpaulins, and not enough moisture to wet a whistle sneaked through the canvass.

Howard Ehmke to Stay With Macks

Philadelphia, Nov. 22—Howard Ehmke, veteran Athletic pitcher and hero of the 1929 World Series game with the Cubs, who had indicated that he might retire from baseball, announced that he had reconsidered and would again be with the world champions next year.

Ehmke made his announcement after a talk with Manager Connie Mack. He plans to devote considerable time to the coaching of young pitchers, but will be prominently identified with baseball.

The domestic help problem is solved by using a short-rate, economical and the best are advertised daily in the For Sale columns.

MANY CHANGES IN H. C. LINEUP

Worcester, Nov. 22—With the loss of Ed Gannon, guard, and Henry Baker, halfback, and the possibility that Barney Finn, pilot, will not play against Springfield tomorrow, the Holy Cross varsity eleven will show many changes.

It developed that Ed Gannon ruptured a leg blood vessel in the Harvard game last week and will be unable to play tomorrow, though it is expected he will be ready for the game with Boston College a week later.

Henry Baker, Southboro boy who hurt his knee, is not available for the next game.

Tom Carnicelli, fullback candidate, who pulled a tendon two weeks ago, is still having difficulty with his leg, which accounted for his not being used against the Crimson and was not with the squad and may not see service against Springfield.

Gets 6 Years in "Surgery" Case

Greenfield, Nov. 22—Frank Gorleskie, a Weil st. cobbler, on trial on a charge of performing an illegal operation which resulted in the death of Mrs. Laura Bartlett of Turners Falls, was sentenced to serve not less than six years and not more than eight years in State prison.

Sentence was pronounced by Justice Henry T. Lummus of the superior court, following the return of a sealed verdict of guilty by the jury

Wallet and $450 Lifted on Trolley

Pickpockets relieved him of his wallet, which contained $450 and a valuable stock certificate, George L. Stratton of Lancaster st., Cambridge, reported to police at the Brattle sq. police station, Cambridge.

He said the wallet was taken while he was traveling by street car and bus from Arlington to Brighton, where he was to do an errand.

REVEAL LIFE OF EX-HUB AGENT

H. H. Gunder, former Shipping Board official in Boston, had his life history bared before federal investigators in New York in the latter's probe of his activities with the defunct Bankers' Capital Corp., of which he is chairman of the board

It is alleged patrons of this and subsidiary companies lost millions of dollars in the crash of the firm

A sketch of Gunder's life was prepared at the request of Rollo S. Bassett, executive of the Superior Credit Corp. of Worcester, Mass., a subsidiary of Gunder's concern.

Gunder, federal officials said the sketch revealed, was born in Des Moines in 1882. He studied in various schools and was admitted to the bar in South Bend, Ind., in 1908.

It was estimated that Gunder's wealth totalled $1,000,000. He was a member of the law firm of Kyle & Gunder of South Bend

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

HERNIAS should never be neglected. Usually an operation is necessary sooner or later, but it is best to consult a physician regarding such "ruptures" even if they seem to cause no trouble at the time. They are most painful and need attention.

This Day in Our History

JACK LONDON, famous American novelist, died at Glen Ellen, California, on November 22, 1916. His novels reflect his adventurous life. "The Son of the Wolf" and "The Call of the Wild" are his most popular novels, the latter was of his first books.

WHAT CONSTITUTES THE MODERN GENTLEMAN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

"THERE'S a gentleman for you!" exclaimed a boy I know at a recent football game. He referred to a player who had just made a touchdown. While the team practiced the other day he knocked another player over accidentally. Soon went up to him and said he hoped he wasn't hurt. Everyone likes him—perhaps that's why he's captain of the team.

Beatrice Fairfax

Referring to the word "gentleman," here's another comment I overheard recently. A group of neighbors were talking.

"It's safe to depend on Joe's doing what's right," said one of the group, referring to the manager of a local garage. "I guess he's what you might call a gentleman!"

"Yes!" "That's so!" was the quick, admiring assent.

Today, as always, there is popularity in living up to the name of gentleman!

Yet the popularity does not matter. He who is a gentleman, is content with the thought that he is doing what he can to help. A gentleman may be rich or poor. He may be in school, business, trade or the professions. He may be either an office boy or President of these United States, or he may be both office boy and President in the course of his career.

It is my honest opinion, as the result of considerable observation and experience, that there are countless numbers of gentlemen, and for this fact every woman should be grateful. I take as my definition of gentleman, "A man who observes the Golden Rule." With this definition in mind, I earnestly counsel every girl who reads these lines to make sure the man she marries is a gentleman.

I am going to describe a man I know—not a great leader but one of the rank and file. See whether my description does not fit many people in your own town.

This neighbor of mine works hard from morning 'til night. He gets very little for himself out of all his hard labor save the consciousness of work well done and the satisfaction of taking care of his family. Sometimes he looks almost shabby, but his wife and children are well and attractively dressed, his children are receiving a good education, his home has comforts and conveniences.

He comes home tired but cheerful, ready to joke a bit with the family, romp with the dog, who waits for his coming, bright eyed, tail wagging. This average husband, unless he is too tired, is usually willing to go out with his wife in the evening, but is still more willing to stay home and wash the car or putter over his lawn and garden.

Now he enjoys a quiet evening spent in his favorite easy chair, which is drawn up to the open fire crackling in the grate, smoking his pipe and reading the paper by cheerful, soft light. Yet if young folks come in, he yields his place cheerfully so they can dance to radio jazz.

At all times, in all moods, Daughter knows she can count on Dad's understanding sympathy. In fact, he spoils family life by his wife whom he loves as well as the day he married her, although he may not express it often. And you may be sure he will care for her still more tenderly when her hair is white and her shoulders are bowed with the years. This average man is a gentleman.

Now for the younger gentleman! He may be the boy who has asked you to go to the theater tonight. He has been saving for weeks to, as say, in order to buy seats for the play you want to see, then take you to a charming restaurant for supper.

He is trying to save a little each week, so it is only now and then he can afford such a treat! I hope you will appreciate his effort and see him as he truly is—not just a hum-drum sort of boy you've known a long time, or as mere means to a good time—but a boy of character and kindness! If he's honest, that alone should encourage him—he's not worth-while!

You may hear idle talk in praise of this or that gentleman. He does not sing his praises. She is usually separated or divorced from him. And his whose ability to hold his wife's affection and run a family is measured in terms of violent language and blows is not in demand nowadays, as a family man, outside the covers of cheap novels.

Choose for your life companion dear girls, a man with tact and a lot of gentleness and tenderness—one who lives up to the title of gentleman. There are many such men.

Marry a man of whom it will all your life be said, "He is so considerate of his wife!"

What sweeter tribute could there be?

Guy Consoles Pat in the Moonlight

"Don't feel so, Pat, dear." "It's past the time, Guy," she replied. "Father should be better." Later the doctor told her that her beloved parent was dying.

Miss Pat

"See that she stays in bed. She's so to rest."

"He needs her," said Pat quietly. "All that can be done for your father, Pat, has been done."

"What!" . . .

He took her arm and said firmly, pleadingly, "Pat—one of you has GOT to stand up to it. Your mother cannot. Sh- has hoped too much."

"What do you mean? He's not. He won't—"

"His hour is giving out."

"No," said Pat wildly. "No, it isn't!"

He leaned against the wall. He said, suffering.

"Pat, what do you suppose your father would expect of you? What would he do for you?"

In that quiet room, Pat watched while the moments slipped in a stilent hour. She was afraid when ever her mother was absent. Laura had a power She was holding Richard to her; she would not let him die.

The nurse came and touched Pat's shoulder: "He wants to talk to you. No, not your mother. To you. Spare him every effort."

Except for a weak, fitful casting about of his hand, Richard seemed sunk in oblivion. After a long while, he said between gasps; said in a tone infinitely terrible to Pat: "I'm not going to make it. Pat, help her—your mother. Understand? Say it for me?"

She kissed him. With a wild, trembling tenderness she closed her eyes against his gaunt cheek.

"Help mother, Oh—of course. But we're holding you. Darling we're winning for you. You WILL make it."

"Don't cry."

"Why, I'm not," she answered, laughing and wiping tears from her father's face.

He seemed so passive, so remote, so closed off in piteous aloneness Pat wondered if he listened when she promised to be brave—oh very strong and brave; wondered if he caught that frightened break in her voice.

He looked full into Pat's eyes: His said with a strange quiet, "I count on YOU."

She answered awed and feeling that her heart had died: "Count on me!"

The doctor returned. He motioned Pat into the hall.

"Go and call your mother."

"So soon?"

"Yes. Get Dickie too."

"Oh," said Pat, clutching the doctor's sleeve, "isn't he better? He hasn't coughed the whole hour."

"He's too exhausted to cough. Call your mother."

Pat stood clinging to Judson Bly's sleeve. Finally, and fighting to bring out the words. "My father isn't dying?"

"He is dying."

Do You Work or Build

By LUCY LOWELL

IT is not the kind of work we do that counts so much in the long run; it is the spirit in which we do our work by which we are bound to rise gloriously to achievement or fail to failure.

Lucy Lowell

Any work which adds to the comfort or well-being or happiness of humanity is worthy of being, however humble.

Yet we—all of us—feel at times that our task, whatever it is, is beneath us; impatience and hurt pride cry out that we are fitted for some thing better, that only the unfairness of circumstances keeps us out of our rightful place.

This very same discontent taken in small quantities and carefully controlled is an unchanging influence opening up, as it often does, a vista of progress, urging to the use of capacities which we have been too indolent or too short-sighted to recognize as our own.

But while we are waiting to take the forward step on our way to success, we must never forget that it is of vast importance to this charge to the best of our ability the duties which present themselves; that it is possible to accomplish this with so much good will that the very duties we might otherwise despise may take on a certain shining beauty.

I am reminded of the story of a traveler who came upon a stone quarry. One of the men, upon being asked what he was doing, replied, "Can't you see? I'm breaking stones."

"And what are you doing?" the traveler inquired of a second.

"Working for $2 a day," the man answered briefly.

But the third workman, who seemed to accomplish more than the others with only a part of the effort, heard the question with a smile.

"I am helping," he explained, "to build a beautiful cathedral."

We all are builders, all of us hewing from the rocks of experience the structure of our lives, and while many carelessly are breaking stones, though others with no more opportunity are rearing structures of beauty.

Fads and Fashions

Flying high are the new aviator costumes imported from England. A model that was much admired is of fine, blue woolen cloth edged with white suede and cut on overall lines, with patented hookless fastenings.

Wine is popular as a color shade in velvet. A suit of this color and fabric has a knee-length coat, the skirt being quite simply tailored. The fitted cape collar and two bands that mark the edge of the coat are furred in luxurious blue fox.

Step out in the latest shoe which is of black patent and white antelope, which forms the vamp and heel of the shoe. The heel is ornamented with little bands of the patent leather stitched in white.

Find your waistline and then girdle it with one of the new belts. Paris sends a lovely girdle of lovely ivory and amber beads with matching buckle and tabs of soft suede. Another is of large jade beads coupled with buckle and tabs of matching kid.

About Guiding the Activities of Boys

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

UP in a small town near us, there is a high school principal who is wise and who knows boys.

Constance Cameron

Last year, Tom, a fine-year lad, was in trouble continuously. His pranks and disrespect were the talk of the town. In fact he was daily time for personal contact with blue-coated officers of the law and he came to feel that policemen were a species apart and one to be dreaded and avoided and outwitted by growing boys.

Then, late in the spring, the idea of appointing boys as traffic officers to help their younger mates across lanes of traffic after school, came into being. And of course, the next step was to choose reliable, trustworthy boys to perform this very responsible task.

Now the principal of the school knew well all the misdemeanors of Tom. He knew that his unhappy contact with policemen had ensued because he deserved that contact, BUT Tom was the first boy chosen by him to act as a member of the schoolboy patrol.

Teachers grasped. Mates stared round eyed and thereafter, Tom, to his parents, who had been blind to much, were mildly astonished. But Tom was given his belt, his badge, his authority and his police whistle, to be used—if any as it could during his stop at and he should need a policeman.

And Tom, glowing with pride, and perhaps just a shade of wonder, strode into the center of the street and saw to it that autos and bikes resolved near stopping and going so that the smaller children might cross in safety.

Tom was a part of the law, a keeper of order and regulations and all at once he began to get the point of view of the blue-coated men he had so assiduously bothered and deftly dodged the early part of the winter and spring. Now he was one of them. His job was to protect younger children, and in a business-like way, to regulate traffic. He loved it and he swelled up with pride.

His desire to lead and be seen, and to be envied has been turned into channels for good. He was fast becoming a gangster type of lad, because of his natural leadership which had somehow gone awry. But now he is in a position of responsibility. He has authority and he hasn't abused it. The other children look at him with respect, and grown-ups stop their cars when he feels it is necessary. And it isn't play, either. His is a grave responsibility and, thus, the principal made clear to him.

But the older man has wisdom and understanding. He knew that the boy possessed pride, and if expected to uphold the law would so as readily as he would have broken it under the pressure of careless companions whose idea of courage and prowess was to take a dare, any kind of a dare.

Many a desire to act, to achieve can be turned into legitimate channels if we but trust the youngsters with us. Give the reckless, impetuous boy a chance to get in the spotlight through UPHOLDING a law, or protecting someone younger or weaker, and he will prove worthy of your faith.

Would YOU have chosen Tom for a boy officer? Perhaps not, but one man did and he has been amply repaid for his trust and knowledge of boys.

Listen, World!

All of which brings us back to Eda Barlupi, putting up tomatoes as carefully and cannily though she were distilling some rare cordial. No hasty, slap-dash heating for her. For hours she boils them, with slices of peppers until they are reduced to a thick, scarlet puree. When she is done, she sits down beaming and looks to her glowing jars. She is proud and satisfied she has accomplished something She has not just canned tomatoes She has preserved a concentrate of the richness of deep, black, loam, hot, golden sunshine, white mountain water. She has sealed the savour and perfume and vital essences of the summer within that glass.

A small thing—but perfectly done.

What richness such perfection gives to life — how it embroiders even the commonest hour!

We're apt to overlook that in our American scheme. We want to do things on the grand scale. We scramble madly for quick results, dramatic effects, large, noisy gestures. And we push aside the small opportunities, contemptuously. Yet, for most of us, those small opportunities hold our hope of happiness and pride.

It is given to so few to be a Napoleon, a Rockefeller, a Bernhardt, a Barrymore.

IT IS GIVEN TO ANYONE TO PUT UP TOMATOES PERFECTLY.

And I doubt if Rockefeller ever got a bigger kick out of his first million than Eda Barlupi gets out of her rows of bright red jars.

The Truth

ABOUT ILLUSIVE CHARM!
By ELINOR GLYN

ILLUSIVENESS inspires the imagination because the charm is intangible and stimulates a desire to investigate.

Elinor Glyn

The jaded senses of young men are titillated with blatantly stockingless legs, bare arms and bosss, and the weather - beaten faces they have had thrust before their eyes for the last years or so will find a delightful novelty in the new fashions. They will react in a different manner, which you girls may find an agreeable change.

I am not sympathetic with youth that I think all these sudden differences are delightful.

It was perfectly right that for the exigencies of the time at transition from one stage of the world's civilization to another girls should have undergone all the alterations they have but now it is equally natural that they should return to their intrinsic feminine charm.

Woman's greatest power is in her illusiveness. So, Gracie and Maud, begin at once to curb any aggressiveness of coldness, you may have employed hitherto.

Change the attitude of your mind from one of commanding and demanding to one of genuine self-confidence, which allures, because its magnetism draws spontaneously. You will see such a pleasant reaction among the boy friends, that you will realize it has been worth while.

Feeding 50, More or Less

STILL the letters continue to pile in from chairmen of entertainment committees, clubs and churches, regarding recipes for quantity suppers, luncheons and teas. So here's hoping that today's recipes propounded in servings for 50 will prove helpful.

CHICKEN A LA GOLDEN
½ lb. butter
1 tbsp. celery salt
3 tbsps. salt
1½ gals. broth
6 cups brown rice
6 egg yolks
1 tbsp. lemon juice
1 cup butter
1 cup flour
1 qt. milk
Minced parsley

Cook the brown rice in cold water 1 hr. Cook in hot chicken stock to which have been added the chopped onion, salt and celery salt. When tender add cubed chicken. Melt butter, add flour and milk; cook until thick; add to chicken and rice. Add slightly beaten egg yolk and lemon juice. Garnish with minced parsley before serving.

STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS
25 large green peppers
3 lbs cooked meat
2 qts cooked rice or mashed potatoes
1 qt canned peas
½ lb chopped onions
½ cup chopped parsley
3 tbsp salt
1 tsp pepper
2 tsps kitchen bouquet
1 cup butter
1 cup bread crumbs
¼ cup butter

Cut peppers in half length wise or crosswise, remove seeds and veins; parboil 10 minutes in salted water. Drain. Chop meat, onion and parsley fine. Add rice, peas, seasonings. Mix thoroughly; fill peppers; cover with buttered crumbs. Pour hot water or stock around them. Bake slowly 45 minutes, basting occasionally with stock or water. (To pepper a serving).

Advantages of Travel

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

THE larger the town or the city the more likely are its inhabitants to be provincial.

By "provincial" in this connection, I mean a spirit of narrow mindedness, a feeling that no other place is as desirable to live in as one's own, a sense of smug complacency regarding the advantages, growth and achievement of the home town.

Dr. L. E. Bisch

Mind you, I am not decrying pride in your own place of domicile. Nor do I think that rivalry between towns and cities is bad.

In fact, everyone should be a booster and a rooter for his own home town! If you're not, there is something wrong with the town or with you!

My plea, however, is not to let your enthusiasm for your own town blind you to the virtues of other places. If you cannot see the fine things in others you surely cannot expect to adopt the best for yourself and for your fellow citizens.

If you refuse to recognize merit wherever it is to be found, if you fail to profit by the example of others, not only will you remain a provincial, but you'll soon become what the horse—a hopeless "stick-in-the-mud."

Now the best way, and in some respects the only way, to learn what other folks are doing is to travel and find out for yourself.

You can garner heaps of knowledge through newspapers, periodicals and books. None of these, however, gives the stimulus to be derived from travel.

There are scores—in large cities, thousands—of people who never have set foot outside the city limits!

How many have traveled over their own United States?

How many have been to Europe?

Different localities breed different people, with ideas, ambitions and accomplishments materially different from your own and that! of your neighbors to afford you a liberal education.

And when you do travel, don't cling merely to the beaten path Try the byways where life is not modernized and standardized, but where you find it fresh and characteristic

Many of the young men and women who returned from abroad after the war will tell you how much they broadened in their outlook on life because of the travel features they enjoyed.

And in these days when international relationships are constantly in the public mind and are being debated in the public press each and everyone of us needs actually to live in the country of the other fellow if he is to form the best judgment of such a foreigner's character

Travel need not be long nor expensive to secure at least a satisfactory idea of what the rest of the world is doing. At any rate, it's worth saving for.

There is much you can pick up that will be of advantage to you.

Tickets for Functions

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN.

I would like to ask a boy, not in my class, to go with me to our Junior Hop.

1 Should I pay for both tickets for just my own or should the boy ask pay for both tickets?

2. Is it good manners for a boy to refuse such an invitation?

CO-ED.

SINCE you are one of the hostesses of the dance, you should pay for both tickets.

2. There is no social reason why the boy should accept the invitation unless he wishes to do so.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN.

Is it correct for a young lady to invite a gentleman to spend the evening with her? Or should she wait until he expresses his desire to come? WONDERING.

IT is quite correct for the young lady to invite the gentleman to come to see her in her home. This is an interpretation of the fine old expression, "extending the hospitality of your home." And it is just as correct for him to ask if he may come to see her. Both the invitation from the young lady and the request from the young man are natural procedure in this friendly age!

After the meeting Mrs. Coolidge served tea.

Miss Marion Rogers — Miss Marian Upton

Miss Marion Rogers and Miss Marian Upton are particularly popular and active members of the post-debutante set. Both are members of the Junior League.

WITTY MUSIC SCORES FOR "BARBER"

By MOSES SMITH

IN presenting Rossini's masterpiece, "The Barber of Seville," at the Arlington last night, the Cosmopolitan Opera Company performed one more of their services for which Boston ought to be grateful.

This witty drama with its equally witty music, constituting one of the few great comic achievements in the lyric theater, is in danger of dying from two factors which eventually resolve themselves into one—paucity of singers who know how to interpret the music, and a public whose taste is not for such things.

As a result, when "The Barber" is brought to performance it is usually degraded into farce, which it was never intended to be. Such was the case with this latest production, though, as we have intimated on other occasions, one ought not to examine too closely bargain performances like those of the Cosmopolitan Company. Let us be thankful that we can hear such works at all.

The central figure of the comedy, Rosina, was played by Tina Paggi. The part is a difficult one, requiring coloratura singing of a high order of excellence. Miss Paggi gave an acceptable rendering of the music, but her voice was in better form last week. Nor when she sings a contemporary waltz song in the "Lesson" Scene, time almost two centuries ago, is she the more justified because more famous singers commit similar incongruities.

Carlos Mejia, as Count Almaviva, made his first appearance here. He, together with Luis Trucchi as Dr. Bartolo and Benedetto Challe as Basilio, was content to play in the spirit of low comedy. Mario Valle, in splendid voice as Figaro, began in a more noble spirit, but ended by simulating the surrounding players.

Dinner Gown and Afternoon Frock Often the Same

THE mode becomes more intricate and yet more simple. It no longer can be said that this gown is informal, that that one is formal. There are so many degrees of formality that there can be no such definite dividing line between the two. Perhaps that is the reason for the existence of what has been called the Sunday evening frock. It is a definite type of formal dress which can be worn on many informal occasions. But this name is too limiting for a gown which has the possibilities of a frock that is informal enough for important afternoon occasions, and formal enough for a cafe or for dining with intimate friends.

The Paradoxical Mode

SUCH are the gowns sketched here. Two of them look informal enough, with their long sleeves, to appear at any simple bridge gathering, and the third could easily be worn to many an evening party. But note these points which make them formal by day and informal by night.

The one at the right is fashioned of coarse net, a material that is so wearable and an usable yet so formal withal, that it simply can't be omitted from this season's wardrobe. The one at the left is a supple lame made simply as gowns of this gorgeous materials always are.

For this season, if the fabric is rich, the lines of the gown are informal, but if the fabric is simple, the cut is intricate and of great dignity.

Sleeveless by Day— Sleeved by Night

THIS is a paradoxical season in other directions also. Note the sleeveless model in the center. It is quite proper to wear such a gown in the afternoon if the occasion demands, just as it is quite all right to wear the long sleeved models in the evening. These frocks often have demure little cap sleeves, designing for those whose arms are round and firm, and very smart either at a tea or across a dinner table.

We should sing the praises of the fashionable powers that be who have produced these go-between dresses. For when we can son such a "little" frock, one with cap sleeves or a bertha-covered shoulder, and attend our mother-in-laws afternoon musicale and then dash out to the club for dinner without having to change, the "little" frock becomes the most important costume in our closet.

Whether to wear plain or clocked hose with the new frock of "fiannel" is a problem that is solved by the appearance of a mesh hose for more formal wear. The lacy mesh continues the sheer and decorative quality of the net frock. The hose appears in colors and in the essential black. This is only one of the designs that has entered the hosiery mode since longer skirts have been giving increased importance to the portion of the hose appearing beneath the uneven hems of new frocks.

Beautiful hair!

Modern hair dressers arrange the hair so beautifully that it's bound to attract attention. That's why it's so important to guard its color and lustre; keep it in perfect condition.

There is no surer, simpler way to do this than with Danderine. Each time you use your brush, just moisten it with this delicately fragranced liquid. Then as you draw it through your hair, it removes the excess oil; brings out the natural color; makes the hair fairly sparkle with new life and lustre.

How much easier it is to arrange the hair afterwards. How it stays in place. And try "setting" the waves with Danderine. They stay in so much longer.

Danderine quickly dissolves the crust of dandruff; puts the scalp in the pink of condition; helps the hair to grow long, silky and abundant!

NEW ENGLAND SHOE TRADE PROSPERS

By FRANK R. WILSON
Financial Editor

Reassuring to New England industry is the statement of President H. L. Tinkham of the W. L. Douglas Shoe Co. that stock market liquidation has not been reflected to any great extent in the retail shoe trade. The president of Tinkham finds general business conditions fundamentally sound with shoe production at a new high record mark.

Announcement in our financial section yesterday that Chicago Stock Exchange tickers will make their debut in the city next Monday is one straw which indicates the belief of brokers that the stock market is not headed for the doldrums. It also strikes a chord that public purchasing power is still with us, despite the Wall St break.

Best opinion today appears to be that New Haven will not raise its dividend rate on the common Monday but will make the advance later on.

New values for seats in Wall and Broad Streets have just been established. Sale of a New York Stock Exchange seat at $305,000, ex-rights, compares with previous sale at $494,000, ex-rights sale of a New York Curb seat at $150,000 compares with the previous sale at $250,000.

A leading State broker tells us he believes the Wall Street crash will prove a good thing in the long run. He thinks the creeping inflation which the Babson statistician predicted would have done a lot of harm to business, whereas the fact that a constructive movement can now go forward all along the line will be helpful to business.

Total net earnings of 371 industrial corporations, 190 railroads and 96 utilities for nine months and exclusive of companies not included in the 6 months amounted to $3,204,524,686, compared with $2,669,426,929 for the same companies in the corresponding periods of 1928, an aggregate increase of 20.01 per cent, according to a compilation from published financial statements by Ernst & Ernst, accountants. This survey follows a preliminary study issued by Ernst & Ernst at the end of October.

For 371 industrials, the compilation shows aggregate net earnings of $1,324,344,911, which is 27.04 per cent greater than the nine months of last year. For 190 railroads, net operating income was $1,045,179, aggregate 17 per cent greater. For 95 utilities, earnings were 17.48 per cent greater. For 31 telephone and telegraph companies, comparing eight months, earnings were 7.41 per cent greater.

"A comparison of the third quarter with the second quarter can be made for a group of 224 industrials for which comparative figures are available. These companies had a net earnings 15.77 per cent higher for the third quarter of 1929, but 5.72 per cent lower than the second quarter of 1929 or 1928, and particularly the latter, was a period of record activity. In business, the third quarter of this year over last year represents a rather remarkable showing.

The fact that third quarter earnings fell below second quarter earnings this year by 5.72 per cent is entirely attributable to a lessening of regular activity, because number of industrial groups such as automobiles and trucks, auto parts and accessories, business equipment, restaurant chains and sugar refining, while showing the usual seasonable recessions during fall, or all of the third quarter recorded there was no definite although moderate tendency downward in business results as a whole during the third quarter this year.

"No definite figures are available on current fourth quarter earnings but they probably will show that this quarter will show in some degree a further recession in many lines. Normally satisfactory earnings for the year as a whole seem to be assured, since the nine months' figures show such a tremendous gain over the corresponding period of 1928, which in itself was a high point of business activity in post-war years."

Inter-Connected Super-Gas System Big Aid to Industry

By W. S. COLSON

NEW YORK, Nov. 22—The rapidly expanding natural gas industry is now entering upon the most important phase of its development, the formation of vast inter-connected super-gas systems, a step to the super power systems that have revolutionized the hydro and electric-power industry.

Outlining for International News Service some of the recent developments among these lines, E. G. Dorland, president and principal owner of the powerful and prominent United Gas Company, said today that the inauguration of these super-gas systems, extending thousands of miles in the thickly-populated sections of the Southwest, will be capable of effecting far-reaching economies and of affording immediate service to communities both near and far-removed from the natural gas reservoirs of the district.

"These vast natural gas networks, or super-gas systems," said Mr. Diefenbach, "will open up distant new markets, such as Omaha, Kansas City, Chicago, which have only recently been made available through improvements in the manufacture of pipe. They will extend to every electric power plant of the Middle and South West. Kansas City, St. Louis, Atlanta and other important cities will eventually buy natural gas as fuel for the generation of power."

In the current year the electric power plants of the country will consume approximately 77 million cubic feet of natural gas, which is hardly a drop in the bucket compared to the expanding future requirements of the power industry, according to well informed experts in the utility industry.

In the development of the super-gas system in the important southwestern sections of the country, United Gas Co., in conjunction with Standard Oil Co of New Jersey and other affiliated interests, is now constructing a 475 mile pipeline to St Louis. Other subsidiaries have already contracted to supply the power companies serving Birmingham, Atlanta and other southern cities. Civic officials have given unanimous testimony to the economy made possible in household and factory operations through the use of gas.

"Some idea of the vast development of the natural gas industry in the next few years," Mr. Diefenbach, "may be obtained from the fact that at this time United Gas Corporation has established a network of 4600 miles of piping for the direct purpose of transporting gas to the territory extending from St Louis to the Mexican border. This pipe network is centered in the Texas gulf and northern Louisiana regions, serving the cities of Houston, San Antonio, Austin, El Paso, Beaumont, Texas, Monterey, Mexico, Wichita, Kansas and Enid, Oklahoma."

Taking a leaf from the successful experience of the electric power industry, the beginning has already been made of the formation of gigantic inter-connected "super gas" systems, to which the important companies operating in that territory will make their contribution in the same manner as the electric power companies contribute to the success of the super-power network. In practical operation, it will be possible to furnish maximum service to strategic sections of the territory requiring gas for one portion of the day, while others come in for major attention at other hours.

This is the theory on which the electric power companies built up such a successful system, increasing power where not in maximum use, storing surpluses for short periods and directing the flow of maximum current where needed. It is the same theory on which the federal reserve banks preserve and utilize the reserves of the member banks of the country, serving as the working center of billions of dollars of bank resources.

It is estimated that United Gas Co.'s use this year will approximate 45 billion cubic feet of natural gas. In addition it is an important producer of crude oil, with 2900 barrels daily capacity and an output of 150,000 tons of sulphur annually.

BUSINESS FOR NOVEMBER UP

New York, Nov. 22 Remington Rand, Inc., today reported net sales for six months ended September 30, 1929, were $31,521,441 against $28,815,282 for corresponding period of 1928. October sales were excellent, and so far in November new business booked is comfortably ahead of November a year ago. Foreign business continues good.

Consolidated income account of Remington Rand for six months ended June 30, 1929, follows: Net sales, billings, $20,206,706 income $654,920; federal taxes, $381,205; minority interest, $12,141; net profit, $259,574; first preferred dividends $571,793; second preferred dividends, $129,686; surplus, $2,097,362; previous surplus, $2,053,380; earned surplus, September 30, 1929, $4,150,742.

Earned surplus September 30 1929, of $4,150,742 after providing for preferred dividend October 1, 1929, compares with $159,330 September 30, 1928."

President Merrill stated that, beginning with October and until close of fiscal year March 31, 1930, Remington Rand enjoys what is under normal conditions its season of greatest activity. The definite "programs due largely to greater efficiency and economies, made during the period which is usually the slow season, should continue for the balance of the fiscal year.

PROFIT-TAKING CHECKS RISE IN WALL ST.

Announcement was made today that the New York Stock Exchange will be closed Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 28, 29 and 30, and open from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. the first three days of next week.

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—The recovery in stock prices was resumed at the opening of today's market under the stimulus of an unexpectedly large decrease of $585,000,000 in Federal Reserve brokers' loans.

Underwood Elliott Fisher jumped 4 points on the first sale, Western Union 3, St. Louis Southwestern 2¼ and American Tobacco B, International Telephone, National Cash Register and American & Foreign Power advanced a point or two.

Westinghouse Electric dropped a point.

The market turned irregular soon after the opening when heavy profit-taking developed in a number of recent strong spots. The selling apparently was based on the belief that the stocks were entitled to a technical reaction after three days of steadily advancing prices and included Auburn Auto, Air Reduction, which ran up nearly 18 points yesterday, quickly fell back more than 6 points. U. S. Freight dropped 4½ and Union Pacific, Johnson, Mack Trucks, Union Carbide and Standard Oil of California yielded a point or two.

Radio jumped 6¼ points and Standard Gas & Electric, Louisville Gas & Electric, Safeway Stores, United Carbon, Lambert and New York Central sold 2 or more points higher. Among the many issues to advance a point or so were Erie, General Electric, North American Co., U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Public Service of New Jersey

Price Movements on Big Curb Are Mixed

New York, Nov. 22 (INS)—Price movements on the Curb market were decidedly irregular today. Cities Service opened off ⅛ at 20⅜ on a block of 9700 of preferred. American Superpower gained ⅛ at 24⅜ on its initial transaction of 7000 shares. Electric Bond & Share advanced ⅛ to 82¼ on its opening sale of 14,600 shares. Other prices were: Public Service of Northern Illinois, down ⅛ at 26⅜, Goldman Sachs, off ⅛ at 43⅜; Pennroad, unchanged at 19⅝; Gulf States, off ⅛ at 47; Transamerica, unchanged at 44⅞, and Standard of Indiana, up ⅛ at 54⅝.

STOCK 'MELON' IS PLANNED

Chicago, Nov. 22—Noblitt-Sparks Industries, Inc., has called a special meeting of stockholders for November 25 to increase the authorized capital stock from 750,000 to 1,500,000 shares of no par value common stock and to increase the number of directors. The purpose of the increased stock, it is stated is to permit the directors to vote an extra stock dividend.

It is understood the board is considering the declaration of either 50 per cent or 100 per cent annually in stock addition to the regular cash dividend of $3 a year.

An increase in dividends is justified by the Noblitt-Sparks earnings which exceeded $8 a share on the stock in the nine months ended with October The directors however, decided that in view of the large volume of new business of the company cash resources should be conserved. By paying an extra dividend stockholders are assured an even larger return on their stock than if the cash was were invested and the company's strong working capital position is not disturbed.

It is probable that the stock dividend policy will become operative with the Jan 1 dividend as the directors are scheduled to meet for this action shortly after the stockholders approve the increase in capital stock. On October 1 the cash dividend was increased from $2 to $3 annually.

The special meeting will be held at Indianapolis.

Gamewell Business Sets Fresh Peaks

The Gamewell Company reports net earnings for the five months ended October 31, 1929 after taxes and depreciation of $439,092.63 equal to $3.69 per share, or at the annual rate of $8.85 per share on 118,928 shares of common stock outstanding

Completed sales in October were $831,428 which represents an 80 per cent gain over the month of September and a 30 per cent gain over the same month of 1928 Net income of $108,972 for the month of October is the greatest for any month in the history of the company, representing a gain of 40 per cent over September and 50 per cent as compared with the same month a year ago.

Unfilled orders during the month increased approximately 10 per cent, in spite of a record volume of completed sales for October.

THE WORLD OF FINANCE

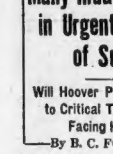
Many Industries in Urgent Need of Supermen

Will Hoover Prove Equal to Critical Task Now Facing Him?

—By B. C. FORBES—

NEW YORK, Nov. 22—Wanted —Supermen.

Had the original J. P. Morgan still been alive and active, Wall Street's forces would have been promptly marshalled to fight the insensate demoralization which overtook the stock market. At times of crises, J. P. by unanimous consent became America's financial Commander-in-Chief. And when he gave orders, no banker dared to disobey. Morgan became mighty not because his resources transcended all others, but because his downright honesty was recognized by every individual and interest in the financial world.



B. C. Forbes

Wall Street possesses today no Trojan standing head and shoulders above all others. The House of Morgan is, indeed, infinitely richer and greater in its ramifications than it ever was in the days of its founder. But the present J. P. Morgan never aspired to fill the role of American Acting Financial Commander-in-Chief in succession to his father.

Thus, Wall Street has no Superman in its hour of need.

What would a Mussolini have been worth to the oil industry of America and of the world in recent times? What would he not have been worth? Had there been in the oil industry a towering Superman, one whose leadership would have been unquestionably accepted by other leaders, think of the billions of dollars in iniquitous waste which could have been prevented? If such a Superman could have issued effective decrees to stop overproduction, to abolish criminally wasteful methods of exhausting the earth's storehouse of oil and natural gas, to forbid senseless duplication of drilling, he would not only have maintained business conditions throughout the industry, but would have conserved priceless, irreplaceable natural resources for which there may one day be the direct need.

True, Sir Henri Deterding abroad and Walter Teagle at home, both giants of great vision and ability, tried to bring about more orderly conditions, but they have not been able to overcome the forces operating against them—perhaps partly for the reason that they were looked upon as interested parties, whereas the late J. P. Morgan was never, in a crisis, even remotely suspected of desiring to play selfishly into his own hand.

The world's sugar industry is demoralized. T. C. Ulbright, vice president of the American Chamber of Commerce of Cuba, who has been visiting the Philippines, was quoted yesterday as saying in Manila:

"I have observed that leaders in both political and industrial groups concur in the opinion that one of the first steps here should be the voluntary limitation of the Philippine sugar production. We have reached the point where something must be done in a big, broad, international way to place the whole industry on a more economically sound basis through international co-operation."

In other words, a Superman, able to dictate to the world's sugar producers, is what is needed to evolve order out of chaos, profits in place of losses.

Perhaps the worst-managed industry of all has been coal. Its history has been blackened by periodical upheavals involving dislocation of general business, fuel famines, starvation of miners. The coal industry has always lacked masterly leadership, leadership acceptable to producers, to miners, to consumers. Nor is any person yet within sight to re establish the industry in public confidence.

The woolen industry needs a superman—not of the William M. Wood type. The cotton textile industry needs a superman. The cement industry needs a superman. Cotton growers need a superman. Wheat growers need a superman to direct their marketing. The lumber industry needs a superman—needs it very badly. The rubber industry needs a superman.

A number of industries have found ways and "cures." In most instances the results apparently have given reasonable satisfaction all round.

Judge Gary for long was the superman of the steel industry. He did not trot around with a rod of iron, but attained his farreaching influence by example rather than precept. It is interesting to reflect that this influence became greatest after competitors recognized that he was ready to consider, not only his own company, but the interests of competitors and also the public.

American's Financial Review

TICKER TALK

By THE WALL STREET SPECTATOR

Editor's Note: This report is written before the opening of the market today. The report is an effort to inform you of daily developments in active stocks. The Boston Evening American takes no responsibility for the statements of who runs this column, but gives them to you for what they are worth.

New York, Nov. 22—Easy money brought more active trading to the bond market yesterday, just as Spectator predicted, while stocks were absorbing profit-taking in an encouraging manner. It would not surprise Spectator if the Federal Reserve Board immediately reduced the rediscount rate still further. The fact that the Bank of England has reduced its rate to 5½ per cent is an incentive to another drop here, and the Street generally believed that the British move was made in anticipation of a reduction in New York. As a result of the easy money market a further extension of the stock market recovery is logical, but no one can count on it in this period of nervousness. It is an interlude that requires caution and careful measuring of basic values. Buy standard stocks, don't extend your commitments too far, and keep your margins within very reasonable limits.

Short-Term Loans

Banks are up against it these days to place their surplus funds. Brokers don't want them, either in the call market or on time loans. The bankers cannot put all their extra funds into bonds, and disposal of them is proving somewhat of a problem. It will not be surprising if these interests soon throw their surpluses into common stocks.

Public Utilities

The public has formed a dislike for public utility stocks because these securities broke more drastically than any other group in the recent cataclysm. It must not be forgotten, though, that the power and light stocks advanced more rapidly than others. It is said that holding companies, realizing the low intrinsic values of these stocks have been picking them up at bargain levels, thereby reducing the floating supply of such issues, and making them like media for speculation on the bull side.

Standard Gas Buying

Spectator hears that insiders in the Byllesby group have been picking up Standard Gas on a scale down ever since the beginning of the decline. It must not be forgotten that one of the smartest traders in the street ingfused a price of over $300 for a large block of this stock when it was selling in the open market for little more than $200.

National Biscuit Active

The action of National Biscuit for the last couple of days has been the normal action of a stock of this caliber. A sharp rise Wednesday was followed by a 8 point loss yesterday. It was to be expected that the stock would sell off on the news of the stock splitup and the proposal to increase the stock by $60,000,000. It must not be forgotten, however, that a stock dividend and a split-up were ordered in 1922 and that the company has increased its surplus tremendously in the last seven years.

Buying for Cash

While some prognosticators are forecasting an increase in brokers' loans, it is pointed out that many purchasers are paying cash for stocks, and their buying will not result in any increase in the loan total.

Exchange Seat Sale

Sale of stock exchange seat for $320,000 was a sharp drop from the last price of $494,000. A curb seat was sold for $150,000, a drop of $100,000 from the last sale. These transactions reflect slower trading and consequent loss of commissions.

Distress Stocks

There still remains a considerable amount of distress stock overhanging the market, stock which must be sold before long to relieve its owners of pressure. It is said, however, that arrangements have been made through leading bankers to "feed" this stock out gradually so that such sales will not depress the market in drastic fashion.

American Can Strong

Strength of American Can yesterday was out of all proportion to the advance in U. S. Steel, indicating the fact that these two stocks had been expected to move in sympathy. We claimed long ago that Can was one of the best securities on any market, and we see no reason to change our opinion.

Suspensions Ignored

The street ignored news of suspension of a curb firm for failure to meet obligations. This attitude is a favorable factor. In most cases of the kind, particularly when business is bad, such failures exert an adverse influence.

Banks Impregnable

Conning & Company, specialists in bank and insurance stocks, sound an encouraging note in their market letter, which reads in part as follows: "Some people have been comparing the present condition of banks with that in 1929. While it was undoubtedly true that a good many of the banks are and will be interested in the stock market, it is also undeniably true that their loans are comparatively liquid. The end of June of 1929 and 1921, where the banks found themselves owners of large quantities of raw and fabricated materials which could not be sold in a very far cry from the present situation. After all, a stock certificate is not perishable and, given a little time, the banks will have rid themselves of their present burden in a very painless manner.

EDISON UP $3 IN BOSTON

Prices were mixed on the Boston Stock Exchange today, with trading active. Edison soared 7 points at 243.

Anaconda dropped 1¼ at 84¼. Eastern Gas & Fuel rose a point at 25 and U. S. & Overseas was down 1 at 18.

General Capital gained 2 at 45. Railway Light & Security added a like amount at 65¾ and First National Stores was up 1¼ at 58½. Swift & Co. was up 1 at 128 and Utilities Equity preferred was down 1 at 83.

A profit of $103,000 was reported by Kuhlway Manufacturing Corp for the year ended Sept. 30, 1929. Of this amount $52,000 was paid in dividends and $51,000 charged off to depreciation. A total of $23,000 was added to surplus account. "Net quick" is over $1,100,000.

2 Billion Building Program Expected in Next 6 Months

A building program closely approximating $2,000,000,000 may be counted on during the ensuing six months as the building industry's contribution to continued American prosperity, Nicholas Roberts, president of S. W. Straus & Co., states.

"This program is exclusive of major engineering projects," he explained. "It does not include steel and highway construction, bridges, highways and similar projects. It pertains only to private and public buildings for which building permits must be secured.

"Official reports made to S. W. Straus & Co. of building permits issued from the 800 principal cities and towns of the country where the bulk of building exists show that building operations for the six months' period from December 1 to May 31 has not greatly varied during the past four years.

"During the latter months of this year there has been a rather pronounced slowing down in building activities and it is quite possible that for a few months more this downward movement will continue. There are, however, three major factors which betoken a great while should materially change conditions for the better. These are:

"(1) The period of easy money into which we have now definitely entered.

"(2) The vigorous efforts undertaken by President Hoover and the united business interests of the country to stimulate activities along every possible line.

"(3) The increase demand which has been created in most types of buildings through the slackened activities of recent months.

"We believe, therefore, that the ensuing six months period beginning December 1 should, on a conservative estimate, offer nearly as much potential public and private building as we have had during the similar period of the year just ending when the volume was but slightly less than $2,000,000,000."

NATIONAL WOOL MARKETING ON PAYING BASIS

San Angelo, Tex., Nov. 22 (AP)—Evidence that the newly organized National Wool Marketing Association is strengthened to avoid all financial stringencies in operating funds was seen today in disclosure that the association will charge its members "regulation" commissions on all wool handled.

This was interpreted as commissions corresponding to those now charged by privately owned buying and selling agencies.

L. B. Palmer, president of the association, explained that the organization will charge a handling commission on wool and mohair sufficient to cover all operating costs and that any excess fund accruing from such charges will be refunded to wool growers in proportion to the wool poundage contributed to the various pools.

In addition to this charge, which is said to average two-and-a-half cents a pound, the association will charge a commission of 1 per cent of gross sales to provide a reserve fund, and when dividends are declared from this fund they, too, will be returned to the producer.

BUILDING OVER LEVEL OF 1928

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Commercial building took the lead in the money value of contracts let in the country's construction and engineering projects announced throughout the country the past week, accounting for 67 per cent of the total, Engineering News-Record reports. The week's awards for all groups were valued at $62,190,000, which compares with $66,384,000 in the preceding week, and $54,379,000 in the corresponding week last year.

Paul A. Schoellkopf of Buffalo, N. Y., has been elected president of the Niagara Hudson Power Corporation, succeeding R. P. Stevens, who remains as a director of the company.

The Perimutt Company, of Binghamton, N. Y., manufacturers of boiler house equipment, has called for redemption on Jan. 1, 1930, its entire issue of $1,000,000 of 7 per cent preferred stock at $110 a share and accrued dividends.

Directors of the International Railways of Central America have authorized the purchase of $400,000 of new equipment.

Increase of Royal Dutch Is Approved

Amsterdam, Nov. 22—Stockholders of Royal Dutch Petroleum Co. approved the increase of capital to 1,000,000,000 florins from 600,000,000 and issue of bonus shares to that amount. An amendment to the bond proposal was made by shareholders to the effect that the bonds would never be issued in excess of half the issued capital, without authorization of shareholders. The directors again stated that shareholders would always be given preference whenever new capital was issued with the exception of a few cases in which the board might deem it necessary to make issuance in another way for the benefit of the company.

$5,000,000 Steel Mills Expansion

Cleveland, Nov. 22—American Steel & Wire Co., subsidiaries of United States Steel Corp., will build two rod mills and one billet mill in Donora, Pa., total cost of which is estimated at around $5,000,000. Plans are expected to be ready in order to get construction under way. Project will take between 12 and 14 months to complete. Plants of the American Steel & Wire will close for three days starting with Thanksgiving in order to take inventory. Officials report only a seasonal falling off in the company's business.

St. Mary's Orders $1 Dividend Paid

St. Mary's Mineral Land Co. declared a dividend of $1 a share, payable Dec. 10 to stock of record Nov. 26. This makes total dividends this year $5 a share, against $3 in 1928 and $2 in 1927.

St. Mary's has no fixed dividend rate. It is a holding company and as dividends are received from operating subsidiaries of revenue obtained from other sources, it is distributed to shareholders.

Extra in Stock Coming on Glidden

Glidden Co. declared extra dividend of 1 per cent in stock on the common and regular quarterly dividends of 50 cents on the common and $1.75 on the preferred, all payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 12. Three months ago similar dividends were paid.

Isle Royale to Pay 50-Cent Dividend

Isle Royale, Boston-listed copper mine, which was "worked" by a prehistoric race in Michigan, today declared a dividend of 50 cents per share, payable December 31, to stock of record November 30. This is the same rate as declared three, six and nine months ago and brings total payments for the year to $2 per share.

CASH BUSINESS OF A BILLION IS NEW GOAL

Food sales totaling more than $1,100,000,000 is the record which Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. expects to set up for the fiscal year to end February 28 next. This enormous volume will be just about double the combined gross of its three nearest competitors,—the Kroger, Safeway and National Tea chains, which should do a combined business of about $550,000,000 this year.

Last year the retail food business of the country (chains and independents) amounted to approximately $7,370,000,000, of which chains accounted for around $2,466,000,000. The A. & P. chain of "red front" stores expects this year to do about 12½ per cent of the entire retail food business of the country.

Grossing over a billion dollars annually, A. & P. is conducting the largest cash business in the world, with more than $3,500,000 being paid over every minute it is open for business day for groceries. Growth of the system in dollar volume has been spectacular, as revealed by the following table (for years ending with February):

1928*	750,000,000	1921 205,535,537
1927*	600,000,000	1920 194,644,850
1926*	450,000,000	1920 194,644,850

*Estimated.

A. & P. has in operation slightly more than 16,000 retail stores, scattered through 34 states in this country and two Canadian provinces. Of this total 3000 stores are in New England and 216 in Canada. The estimated business for the current year, therefore, indicates annual volume per unit of something like $59,000.

For some years the company showed earnings averaging 2¼ cents a dollar of sales. On the anticipated profit for year to end February 28, 1930, profit at the 2¼ per cent rate would total around $27,500,000, equal after 7 per cent dividends on $24,928,700 of preferred stock, to slightly over $12.50 per share on 2,039,592 common shares against $11.02 per share earned during February, 1929, and $8.23 in the preceding year. These earnings are after all charges, including new construction and store openings. The company finances all its expansion from earnings.

Hundred New Retail Stores Are Planned

Chicago, Nov. 22—"There has been a temporary recession in business, but I am sure I am not a neither violent nor long lasting," said Pres. Cunningham of Butler Bros.

"Our wholesale trade is going right ahead. We have just purchased American Wholesale Corp. in Baltimore, the largest wholesale house south of Philadelphia.

"We are in early stages of our chain store program, but are signing leases as fast as we find suitable new locations. Our plans call for opening 100 new retail stores in 1930, and I am confident we shall carry out this program in full."

Major Games on Local Stations

THE annual Harvard-Yale football battle will be broadcast by the Columbia System and National Broadcasting Company Saturday afternoon, with Ted Husing and Graham McNamee announcing. The game will be heard through WNAC and WEEI beginning at 1:45 p. m., when the announcers start a 15-minute talk before the kickoff.

The broadcast of the Ohio State-Illinois game will go over another NBC network including WBZ. Bill Munday will begin a description of the scenes in the stadium at Columbus, O., at 1:45 p. m., Eastern Standard Time. The kickoff is scheduled 15 minutes later.

Son and Tron Sing Popular Airs Sunday

Wayne King and his Sonatrons together with Al and Pete in the roles of Son and Tron will present a program of dance music and popular selections of the day during the National Union Radio Corporation's half hour on the air next Sunday evening over WNAC and the Columbia Broadcasting System, commencing at 5:30.

Son and Tron have included among their selections a clever new number which has just recently been added to their repertoire entitled "No, Sir, You Can't Park Here." Other numbers are "Here Comes Fatima," "Here Comes the Show Boat," and "Long, Long Ago."

Our Friendship for China

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S appointment of Nelson T. Johnson, Assistant Secretary of State, to be American Minister to China is a timely demonstration of the genuineness of American friendship for China.

With a record of twenty-two years' experience with Chinese affairs, gained in various parts of China and in the Department of State, with a knowledge of the Chinese language possessed by few foreigners, and a liking for the Chinese people and a faith in their future, our new minister owes his appointment solely to his pre-eminent qualifications for his post.

Recently as Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Far Eastern affairs, Mr. Johnson has been able to exercise a tremendous influence upon American policy toward China. President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg relied upon his advice and counsel throughout the Chinese crises that came during the Coolidge Administration.

And his selection for the Chinese mission proves that President Hoover and Secretary Stimson are no less appreciative of Mr. Johnson's ability as an authority upon China.

Fortunately for American prestige in China, the sympathy of our new minister for the aspirations of the Chinese people is widely known in China and as widely appreciated by the conflicting forces that are wrestling with China's vast and difficult problem.

The leading men of China know, and they know that Minister Johnson knows, that China is passing through a most difficult period. And the problems which the Chinese people are facing are too vast and intricate to be solved at once. They are waging a struggle on two fronts; they are trying to hold the gains they made in the 1911 revolution, and they are trying at the same time to westernize the whole of China.

President Hoover is sending to China in Minister Johnson an American diplomatist who has done his best for many years to find ways and means by which the United States could continue in most friendly relations with the people of China, even in the darkest days of their civil strife.

And that is the type of American diplomat who can be counted upon to carry to the Chinese people new proof of the friendship of the American people and of their desire to aid them in all their own struggles, and to co-operate with them in the common causes that brighter times in China are sure to bring.

Two Faces of the Hour

Do You Think the Owner of the Smiling Face Could Have Killed Rothstein, Owner of the Serious Face?

(Copyright, 1929)

GEORGE McMANUS ARNOLD ROTHSTEIN

Do You Think McManus Killed Rothstein?

THIS QUESTION a judge and jury will decide, the jury directed, after consideration of the evidence, and the lawyers regulated in their presentation of evidence by an able judge, Charles C. Nott, Jr.

McManus, about to be tried for his life, is, as he should be, protected by the power of the court from all outside action or comment that could in any way jeopardize his safety or influence the trial against him.

But all administration of justice and its work belong to the people and is done for the people and they are intensely interested in it.

You see here two faces; that of the man murdered, refusing to tell who killed him until death closed his eyes, and the other of the man accused of the murder, both extremely interesting.

On the one side you see a smiling face, that of a man accused of murder.

On the other the serious face of Arnold Rothstein, described by the police as a professional gambler, dealer in drugs and bootleg liquor, one who cynically defied the law and defied that which in our day is infinitely more dangerous than the law, THE GUNS OF THOSE THAT WANTED HIM DEAD.

One of those guns shot him eventually, as gangster guns "get" so many according to the racketeers' code of justice.

Here are the two faces in one of the most important and strange murder trials in the history of New York.

The jury will see only one of these faces, that of the man smiling here.

The other face, if it could be brought back from the grave, would not be recognized even by those that knew it well. Death and the grave act quickly.

The murder story will be told, witnesses will be examined, and the jury will be influenced by what they hear, as they must be, and by what they SEE in the face of the man accused of murder. How do these faces impress YOU? Which, if either, would you trust?

Discovery of Isotopes

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

FOR centuries there existed a school of scientists who believed that matter was continuous and infinitely divisible. Thus, one might take a cube of lead and keep on indefinitely cutting it up into ever smaller fragments—according to the view of this school.

But there was another school of scientists who believed and argued that at some stage in the operations the process would break down, and either the act of sectionizing would become impossible or the resulting piece would no longer be lead.

Today we know that the second school is correct.

Suppose we start with a decimeter cube of lead weighing 11.37 kilograms.

The object of cutting is to make three cuts at right angles to each other, dividing the original cube into eight smaller cubes, each of half the linear dimensions and one-eighth the weight.

It has been found that the last operation in this process of cutting is the 28th. Thus, the 28th cube contains 64 atoms.

AT the 12th division, we have an object just barely visible to the unaided eye. We are staggered by the number of atoms in any ordinary mass of material.

Suppose, for example, we slice our original decimeter cube of lead into square plates just one atom thick. These lead leaf plates will cover an area of one and one-quarter square miles.

If we cut these plates into strings of atoms, these decimeter strings put end to end will reach 6.3 million million miles farther than light will travel in a year!

One of the extraordinary outcomes of the study of atoms has been the discovery of "isotopes." This is the name given by Soddy to substances which, though chemically identical, have different weights.

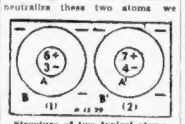
CONSIDER the structure of two atoms, the structure of which is represented roughly by Figures 1 and 2. The atom of (1) has in its nucleus six positive and three negative particles; whereas the atom of (2) has a nucleus composed of seven positive and four negative particles.

Now note that in each atom the excess of positive over negative charges is three; so that to neutralize these two atoms we shall require three electrons revolving around the central nucleus in each case.



Structure of two typical atoms—one has six positive and three negative particles, the other seven positive and four negative.

The chemical properties of the atom—and consequently of the element composed of millions of such atoms—depend only upon the number of electrons revolving in the orbits B and B'. Since this number is the same in each of our atoms, namely three, the chemical properties of the two elements must be the same.

NOW it has been definitely established, by Sir Ernest Rutherford, that the weight of the atom is almost entirely centered in the positive charge, or proton. Since there are seven such charges in atom (2) but only six in atom (1), it is clear that there must be an appreciable difference in weight between these two atoms.

These atoms, then, furnish us graphically with an example of "isotopes"—that is, elements having the same chemical properties but different atomic weights. The great authority on isotopes is Aston of Cambridge University, England. For his brilliant researches on isotopes he received the Noble Prize in physics.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

THE name of Grundy continues to be revered wherever factory chimneys are autographed.

Mr. Grundy apologizes to the moss-spangled West, the fungus-covered East and the mildewed South.

He plugged for the Hawley-Smoot tariff industry until the fuses blew out.

He inspired Senator Moses to intimate that the sons of the West had to get their shoes made in a blacksmith shop.

He started a debate in the Senate that sounded like 17 phonograph needles all trying to play the same record.

Mr. Grundy is no elusive ventriloquist in a huddle. He comes right out in the open and gets everything off his chest but the porous plaster.

He is now engaged in a delicate operation on himself. He will remove his own tonsils through the process of eating some very sharp words.

He has already started to Fletcherize the alphabet and manfully retracted his statement that Idaho was a backward state.

Idaho, famous for its potatoes and Senators, reached for its high hat when Grundy said it was a treadmill for flatfooted conservatives.

Mr. Grundy apologizes in the usual Pennsylvania manner by hoping that it ain't true.

In case you don't know who Mr Grundy was, we will tell you that he is the master of hounds of the lobbyist pack.

He is the lock, stock and barrel of the campaign funds. In return for his work all he expects is a prohibitive tariff on all foreign industries, including laughing and breathing.

The Senate crossed him by removing the tariff on Christmas tinsel which will come in very handy to decorate Wall Street and the Federal Reserve banks this winter.

We shall look very beautiful during the holidays all festooned and garlanded in free tinsel, which is noted for its warmth and wearing qualities.

It's an ill wind that doesn't blow somebody some static.

This latest investigation within the party resembles a daily picking off its own petals. The capering and gibberings of the statesmarts removes the Senate from the legislative bodies and places it among the national parks.

H. G. Wells Writes on

"The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

THE speed of the circulation as a whole depends on the output of the heart, the pump which keeps it all in motion, and any widespread dilation of the capillaries would result in a slowing rather than a quickening of the circulation unless the output of the heart were augmented at the same time. The two factors work together.

H. G. Wells

The disastrous effects of capillary dilation unsupported by the heart are seen in the condition called "surgical shock," which follows any extensive tearing of the flesh.

It appears that torn flesh pours a substance known as histamine into the blood, and that histamine causes the capillaries to relax completely without having any effect on the heart output.

The result of an extensive production of histamine, since the total volume of the capillaries is enormously increased (about 700 times more than normal) and the heart is only pumping just enough blood for a normal resting circulation, is that the blood stagnates in the bloated capillaries, and the whole blood stream becomes sluggish.

When, during exertion, the capillaries enlarge a similar condition would be produced, were it not for corresponding changes in other parts. Of the most important is an increase in the output of the heart.

Besides changes in capillary volume and heart output, there are yet other changes in the circulation during exertion; among them it is interesting to note a compensatory mechanism, only very recently brought to light, which involves the most mysterious organ in the human abdomen—the spleen.

The spleen is a purple organ, roughly oblong and about five inches long, lying behind the stomach and receiving copious blood supply direct from the dorsal aorta. Its minute structure is curious, for in its substance the blood is not confined within definite vessels, as it is in any other organ; the arterioles and vessels have open ends, and instead of passing through a capillary network the blood flows freely in the spongy tissue and directly bathes the spleen cells.

The spleen has long been a puzzle to physiologists, partly because it is an organ with many functions; probably, for example, it is concerned with the breaking down of old and worn blood cells and with manufacturing new ones to replace them.

But at present we are concerned with another aspect of its activity, which depends on the presence of a well-defined system of muscle-fibres, forming a capsule round the organ and sending interlacing strands through its substance.

During rest the heart is pumping just enough blood to keep it circulating at an effective speed through the partly-closed capillaries. If, as a result of exertion, the capillaries suddenly open up, the bloodstream will eventually be slowed unless the heart labors strenuously to keep up its speed.

But if at the same time some other part of the circulation which normally holds a considerable volume of blood reduces its own capacity and ejects its contents into the general circulation, then the expansion of the capillaries will be compensated for. Now, there exist in the body certain blood-reservoirs which have precisely this function, and of these the spleen is chief.

During rest the muscle-fibers of the spleen are for the most part relaxed; they are rhythmically contractile, beating slowly and indolently, like a very lazy heart, and so keeping a sluggish flow of blood through that organ.

In its distended tissue-spaces it holds about a litre of blood—about one-fifth of the total volume in our bodies. During exercise, on the other hand, the muscle-fibres are permanently contracted and its capacity decreases to only about one-third of the resting value.

The reserve blood in the organ is therefore driven out into the rest of the circulation, and in this way the blood supply to the muscles is increased.

The spleen, then, is essentially a blood reservoir, and during moderately severe exercise the contribution which it makes to the muscular blood supply is sufficient. During very severe exercise, when every source of the organism is called upon, the blood in the spleen may not be enough, and in this case the process is carried a step farther—blood is taken from other organs, such as the digestive organs, and sent to the toiling muscles, the activities of the former being temporarily suspended.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

MEN and women are always "misunderstanding" each other, because they refuse to speak the same language.

A man is ruled by his head and his impulses, while a woman is ruled by her heart, her sentiments, and her intuition.

Half the heartaches and love mix-ups in this world are caused by a woman's tendency to judge a man's sentiments and emotions by her own.

She is forever exaggerating a man's sentimentality, idealizing his motives, and crediting him with a lot of beautiful, hidden impulses that "aren't there."

If he happens to drop around, two evenings in succession, she jumps immediately at the thrilling conclusion that it is because he can't live for twenty-four hours without seeing her! Whereas, it may be simply because the girl in the next block happened to be "out" when he called.

If he doesn't show up for a week she lies awake nights, wondering "what has happened," or what she could have said to "hurt" him—whereas probably nothing has happened but a few nice parties of a new blonde in town, and she couldn't "hurt" him unless she hit him with a mallet.

A woman pours her sentiment over everything, just as she pours maple syrup over a waffle, or chocolate syrup over a sundae. But, when she lets it slop over and glorify a man's most casual act or kiss, she is riding for a bad and a smashed vanity.

Nine-tenths of the time a man doesn't mean ANYTHING! And whatever he happens to do, is done on an impulse arising from the state of his digestion, the state of his pocket-book, or the state of his mood. The GIRL is just the innocent bystander!

Men are not naturally sentimental; and a little act or word that "means words" to a woman doesn't means a thing to them. To paraphrase a popular book, "A kiss is a kiss; you take it. A girl is a girl you call on her. An evening is an evening; you amuse yourself!"

When a man feels any sentiment, he is so surprised and embarrassed that he blurts right out. He doesn't "say it with flowers," or with stunts or with subtleties—he says it with WORDS!

But girls will go right on courting heartaches, until they discover that a man is a perfectly literal, simple-minded creature with no complexes, no "deep underlying nature," no subtle motives, and mighty few emotions!

Men and women will never understand each other until a man stops saying twice as much as he means—and a woman stops thinking that he MEANS twice as much as he says! And this will never come to pass, until woman ceases to be the weaker vessel—filled with romance!

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 22—Thoughts while strolling: Wonder if fish merchants ever eat fish? Sign on a blind man's hat: "Cheer up—it might be worse!" A 5 and 10 groceteria. The melancholy wail of the river tugs. Jane Cowl's dreamy languor. Male flappers with eyebrow mustaches. Few of us are as well to do as formerly, heigh ho! Gil Boag, former king of the night clubs. Now a Broadway producer. Two dollar jellies in gold-leafed jars. Barber shop sign: "Our manicure girls are beauty prize winners." Joe Williams, the sport writer. Clay Morgan of the French line.

The white taffy blondes featuring heavy black eyebrows. Near-society chatterers who call each other "Old Dear." And rush up and down theater aisles waving at people between acts. Mrs. Flake's mincing walk. And the bird-like flirts of her head.

Those snooty imported cars without an identifying name anywhere. The melancholy placidity of a curio shop. A playwright wearing patent leather spats and a red lapel rose. Phil Plant, the young millionaire sportsman. The real countess who is housekeeper at a fashionable hotel.

The venerable East Side hags with discarded baby carriages who hunt kindling. Always blooming flowers in Helen Gould's window boxes. The little girls who used to roll hoops now drive roadsters. Henry Blackman Sell, a Chicago, Ill., boy who made good in the city.

Cream colored overcoats with dazzling polka dot handkerchiefs. Nothing looks so utterly bored as a stretching dog. Unless it is a stretching cat. Dice shaped hats for girls. A new drink—beet juice. "Duke" Herrick, the park commissioner, who looks like the mayor.

The silver-haired twins who promenade Fifth ave. wearing gray derbies. The grim look of back seat motor cycle riders. Billie Burke wears her hair in a little knot in the back. Night watchmen who sit on chairs backward and lean on the backs. Who remembers when a chateau was a house?

A department store has an all night telegraph service. If a customer wants something after closing, a wire order will bring it on in the first morning delivery. Thus making it dandy in case you should run out of book-ends or something.

Scandal does not always affect property or trade values. The hotel where Rothstein was murdered and the apartment house in which he lived have had a greater prosperity since his mysterious murder than ever before. And the little Broadway cafe from which he was called to his death is usually packed to capacity.

On the other hand, a west side apartment house in which a deflowered Broadway rose was found married several years ago, proved such a heavy financial loss it was finally torn down, and is now occupied by a garage.

A great theatrical producer now in ripening years and very rich has a household keyed up to royal pretensions. His insatiable vanity is fed with all the flattery and complete servility of noblesse oblige. Even his bed is that of a dethroned ruler in a small European principality. He usually dines alone and with great pomp and perhaps with a sly chuckle He says he has always lived in a world of illusion and he wants to continue the regal manner until the end. It might be added, too, his name is not David Belasco.

Many of us appearing so prosaic are nursing romantic repressions. Since boyhood I have dreamed of being the swashbuckler with flashing lance, hip boots and jangling spurs. The nearest I came to it was to don chaps and a six shooter on far away Mexican ranch and at last reports the boys around the bunk house were still hysterical.

From T. S: "On West 47th st. at night we are making the short skirted flappers step. With invisible strips of leather we flick their calves as they pass along. And you should see them jump!"
